Getting Set for 1922!

1922 is going to be a fine year for business. If we all think so, say so, and ACT so, we can make it so. It is encouraging to see how many far-sighted, long-headed business men have already drafted their plans for an intensive advertising campaign—they are getting set for 1922 and at the crack of the pistol will be off to a lead that their less aggressive competitors can never wear down. And you—YOUR schedule, like theirs, must surely include

Mayor Hylan's Second Administration

Mayor Hylan was in happy mood last Monday when he entered upon his second term as Chief Executive of this great city. Much can fairly be said in praise of, and less in criticism of, his second inaugural address. In most respects Mayor Hylan put his best foot forward and unquestionably he pleased the great majority of New Yorkers by his call to everyone to "Boost the Metropolis." Mr. Hylan contends, and undoubtedly he is right, that there has been too much knocking of this imperial city by some of its residents. It would be a great deal better, as he points out, if the knockers would turn boosters and thus make unanimous the effort for a greater and better New York.

Mayor Hylan talked good common sense to his heads of departments and to all other city employees. "Our plain duty to the people," he said, "is to see to it that taxation is reduced to the minimum expenditure required for an economical operation of government. This is common honesty. With this in mind, every item of departmental expenditure must be limited to the lowest point consistent with effective service; all unnecessary positions should be abolished and the employment of any individual whose services are of scant or doubtful value should be discontinued forthwith." These are laudable sentiments and the RECORD AND GUIDE hopes that the Mayor will enforce them.

Mayor Hylan's inaugural address would not have been complete, of course, if he had failed to utter a new protest against the heavy burdens imposed upon the people of this city by the State rulers at Albany. His demand for a greater measure of Home Rule in the metropolis undoubtedly is backed by a large majority of our citizens. This fact was amply attested at the recent election and it seems reasonable to expect that the Mayor's desires will have due consideration, because the commission recently appointed to revise the charter gives evidence of its purpose to provide genuine Home Rule for New York City. Public interest in this matter has been so thoroughly aroused that New Yorkers will be satisfied with nothing less. Mayor Hylan expressed the belief that if New York had enjoyed heretofore the same right to govern itself as prevails in second and third-class cities up the State, it would have been possible for the city administration to effect economies and to make more efficient the transaction of city business.

On the same day that Mayor Hylan began his second term in the City Hall, another well-known Mayor, Mr. Edwin W. Fiske, entered upon his ninth term as Mayor of Mount Vernon. Mount Vernon adjoins New York City on the north and conditions there are not dissimilar from those which prevail in the metropolis. It is interesting to note, therefore, that Mayor Fiske started out by reducing his own salary ten per cent. along with that of several other important city officials, at the same time abolishing several positions which he considered useless. Reference is made to this action of the Mount Vernon Mayor because it illustrates one way in which Mayor Hylan can give that more economical government of which he treated in his inaugural address. No one would suggest, of course, that Mayor Hylan should set the example of reducing his own salary, but he could accomplish a great deal for the taxpayers of the city if he would emulate that other feature of Mayor Fiske's action and have stricken from the city pay roll the name of every unnecessary employee. Along that line lies one method of cutting the city budget down to a figure well within the legal limit.

Ambitious Boston and the Census

Boston has been importuning the Census Bureau to revise its count of population, which was given out as 748,000. What the civic authorities of the Hub want is for the census officials to include, in their enumeration of its citizens, all the inhabitants of its numerous suburban colonies within a radius of about fifteen miles from the State House. If this were done, Boston would have a population of 1,772,254 and rank as fourth city in the country, being outnumbered only by New York, Chicago and Philadelphia, instead of seventh in line, below, Detroit, Cleveland and St. Louis.

That there is merit in the contention of the Mayor and other citizens of the municipality having a codfish on its escutcheon is borne out by the action of the National Geographic Society, which has gone on record as favoring the measurement of population by the group method rather than according to the strict demarkation of municipal boundary lines.

For a community that had the enterprise and hardihood to successfully bring off a certain celebrated Tea Party, it is inconceivable that Boston will not eventually find a way to get itself higher up in the census scale. Chicago, it may be certified, took in the whole of Cook County in its mad endeavor to minimize New York's supremacy. Other cities have gradually garnered voters and their dependents by annexation. New York, it may be admitted, welcomed Brooklyn to more intimate civic association.

Why then should not Boston take into its municipal bosom Wellesley Hills, Newton, Somerville, Malden, Duxbury, Roxbury, Lynn, Brockton and other outlying but closely linked communities? Probably this comparatively easy way to become the fourth city in point of population has never appealed to the conservatism that is figuratively set forth by a century or more of addiction to brown bread and beans for Sunday Morning Breakfast.

Miss Mathews Becomes Register

New Yorkers in general, and those having realty interests in particular, felt a special interest in the induction into office of Miss Annie Mathews as Register of New York County on New Year's Day. Register Mathews is the first woman chosen to an elective office in New York County or New York City, which is a notable distinction in itself. Any woman who attains to an outstanding position in society, business or public affairs becomes an interesting personality from the public viewpoint. To be the first of her sex to gain high official position makes the case of Miss Mathews especially interesting. And, it must be admitted, the special touches of femininity which attended her inauguration furnished a good sign in themselves, adding as they did dignity to the occasion and expanding the new spirit which was reflected in the adoption of equal suffrage.

The office of which Miss Mathews has just assumed control is a very important one, and its successful management calls for executive ability of the first order. The RECORD AND GUIDE, while appreciating fully the importance of the Register's office to the realty owners which it represents, does not share in the old-fashioned belief of some that the business of the office can be handled properly only by a man. On the contrary, there seemed no occasion for uneasiness during the recent campaign because of the fact that each of the leading political parties had nominated as its candidate for Register a woman. Miss Mathews, who won the election, and Miss Boswell, who was defeated, were both recognized by well-informed citizens as women of unusual capabilities, either of them very well qualified to conduct successfully the important office to which they aspired.

Register Mathews enters upon her new duties with the cordial good wishes of all who favor competent administration of public affairs. The RECORD AND GUIDE is confident that she will prove entirely equal to her new opportunities, and that her administration will give satisfaction to all having business in the Register's office, and at the same time reflect credit on her sex. New York City has many women of high character and ability filling important executive positions and making good in them, just as Miss Mathews, who happens to be the first of them to assume an important public office, will make good in it.

William L. De Bost Clears Up Facts About Macy Site

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

I have read with much interest the article on page 807 of the RECORD AND GUIDE, issue of December 24th, on the new records set for land rentals in the Metropolis. Referring especially to that portion of the article regarding the renewal of the R. H. Macy & Co. leaseholds on Broadway, West 34th and West 35th streets, I should like to take this opportunity of correcting in your next issue some errors in this article, especially in respect to the ownership of the properties.

The firm of R. H. Macy & Co. are the lessees of the whole property occupied by their store and this large plot is divided into twelve individual plots, each one covered by different leases. Mr. Frederick Brown is the owner in fee of the Plots Nos. 1317 Broadway and 109 West 34th street and 115-121 West 34th street, and also owns a one-quarter interest in the Plots Nos. 1323 Broadway and 113 West 34th street, 141-147 West 34th street and 134-138 West 35th street. The balance of the property, with the exception of minor interests which have been acquired by R. H. Macy & Co., the tenants, is owned by the Hegeman, Ayer, Grinnel, Lillibridge families and others.

Under the terms of these twelve leases, the first twenty-one year term of which expires May 1st, 1922, it was necessary to fix the rentals for the next term of twenty-one years by arbitration and the arbitrators were instructed to fix this rent at the fair rental value of the property.

Mr. Frederick Brown appointed Mr. Frank D. Ames to represent him in the two plots which he owned in fee and all of the other owners of the balance of the property, including Mr. Frederick Brown, owning a one-quarter interest in certain parcels, appointed Mr. William L. De Bost, vice-president of Cruikshank Company, to represent them as their arbitrator and R. H. Macy & Co. appointed Mr. Lawson Purdy to represent them as tenants in the arbitration.

As Mr. Ames and Mr. De Bost could not agree with Mr.

Purdy as to the fair rental value, by mutual agreement, they appointed Mr. Clarence H. Kelsey, president of the Title Guarantee & Trust Company, to act as third appraiser or umpire and by this process an agreement was finally reached, fixing the rents as mentioned in your article, at $395,000 per annum net for twenty-one years, commencing May 1st, 1922, or a total rental for the term of $8,295,000 net, that is, the tenants paying taxes and all other charges.

From the intensive study which it was necessary for me to give to this property during the arbitration, and which lasted for a period of over six months, I concluded that the site of the R. H. Macy & Co. store is, without doubt, the finest location for a retail store. There is no other section of New York which is reached by so many transit lines; the Pennsylvania Railroad station is within a block of the property and it is within the great hotel centre, accommodating thousands of people who come to New York daily to shop.

You have covered in your article the activities now going on in the neighborhood, that is, the new lease of the Saks' store and the old Herald Building, but an inspection of the location will show that there are many other smaller improvements now actually in progress or in contemplation, both on 34th street and adjacent streets.

I was prompted to write this letter to you especially for the reason that your article gave the impression that R. H. Macy & Co. were practically the owners of the balance of the property not owned by Mr. Frederick Brown.

The following law firms were active in the arbitration: Charles M. Bleecker, 49 Wall Street, and Fraser & Speer, 16 Exchange Place, representing the majority of the owners; Messrs. Marks and Marks, of 358 Fifth Avenue, representing Mr. Brown; Wise & Seligsberg, 15 William street, representing R. H. Macy & Co. Laurence McGuire and Charles F. Noyes Co. sold the interests in the property to Mr. Brown.

Joseph P. Day Reviews Auction Market of Past Year

Joseph P. Day, in discussing the remarkable interest shown by the public generally during 1921 in the sale of building sites, declared that the year just closed will go down in history as a record-breaking auction period.

"Since last Spring," said Mr. Day, "I have sold more lots and houses and at better prices than ever before, and the totals of my sales aggregate a volume of business larger by many millions of dollars than in any other corresponding year.

"After one of the most strenuous lot sale years in the history of the market, it seemed a fitting climax to hold the record breaking auction sale of all time and sell 1,898 houses for the United States Government.

"The auction lot market is in a healthy condition, the housing shortage being a large contributing factor. Today, the demand is far from satisfied. The 'Build Your Own Home' movement is well under way, and, in my opinion, many more thousands of lots will be purchased on the auction block for the erection of new homes.

"Since last May I have sold about 13,000 lots, located in every section of New York City and surrounding territory—Manhattan, the Bronx, Brooklyn, Long Island City, Nassau and Westchester counties, and New Jersey. These lot sales have totaled about $28,000,000. In addition, I have sold about 2,500 houses for almost $7,000,000.

"1920 was a record year in the auction market and few people thought that the 1921 totals would even equal it. That they were mistaken is now a matter of history, and 1921 will certainly go down as a banner year. The home and lot buying movement is in full swing. The demand is far from satisfied and I look to see great activity during the next year."

Governor Miller Urges Further Economy at Albany

In Annual Message to Legislature of 1922 the State Executive Outlines Plan to Lessen Burden on Real Estate by $22,500,000

Albany, Jan. 4.

IN the longest annual message sent from the Executive Chamber in recent years, Governor Miller today advised the Legislature of 1922 as to the condition of state affairs and his suggestions for their management during the next fiscal year. Adhering to the policy which he outlined in his message to the Legislature of 1921, Governor Miller urged further economies in state expenditures and the consolidation of various state departments not effected during the first year of his administration.

The Governor followed an established custom in opening his message with a summary of the state's financial condition. His statement showed a surplus of $43,613,077.85, as of July 1, 1921, adding that this greatly exceeded the estimates of a year ago. After pointing out that the departmental requests for the next fiscal year total about $145,000,000, as against $201,000,000 a year ago, the Governor continued:

If the appropriations can be kept within approximately $125,000,000 it will only be necessary to levy a direct tax of $12,181,895.49 for debt service, thus relieving real estate of the burden of the direct tax of $22,500,000 for teachers' salaries. That result can be obtained without impairing the efficiency of any activity of the State, provided no new or unusual expenditures be undertaken, and if attained the public business will then be upon such a basis that it can reasonably be expected that under normal conditions the present sources of revenue, with the direct tax for debt service, will be adequate to meet the expenses of the government and that the normal increase in such revenue will adequately provide for the inevitable expansion in the needs of the State government.

It is not just to the taxpayers to accumulate an unnecessary surplus, and it is sound policy to use the existing surplus to tide us over the present period of lean revenues. The total amount of appropriations requested by each State department will be transmitted as requested without revision. The departmental studies made by the newly created bureau set up by the Board of Estimate and Control were not completed in time to be available for a revision of the requests before submitting them to the Legislature. Indeed, those studies are still incomplete. Detailed reports of examinations, with the comments thereon by department heads, are available for the information of the Legislature.

The requests as compiled total $145,019,665.08, which is $56,624,627.35 less than the requests submitted last year, totaling $201,644,292.43, and not including requirements which had to be met of $4,621,545.61.

That comparison is the best evidence of the new spirit which pervades the public administration and demonstrates that notwithstanding the drastic reductions made last year the actual needs of the State were amply provided for.

"A significant absence of the usual requests for deficiency appropriations for administrative expenses will also be noted. Department heads and institutions have administered their functions within the appropriations, and instead of asking for deficiencies, many will show surpluses at the end of the year.

Governor Miller's message contained many recommendations of importance, not only as to the consolidation of state departments, but urging the establishment of a central purchasing body to buy all supplies for every state department and institution; open competition for state printing; a comprehensive welfare program; obligatory use of voting machines in cities of the first and second class, better distribution and regulation of the water power of the State; reforms in the operation of prison industries, and the sale of 1,600 parcels of non-revenue producing State lands.

Governor Miller gave considerable attention to the subject of taxation, declaring:

With the task of reducing the expenditures of the State government to a point where its revenues may be expected to keep pace with its expenditures nearing completion we should now seriously address ourselves to the problem of removing the inequalities and injustices of our tax laws by a careful revision of them. This is a task which must be approached with caution and worked out by degrees so as to produce no serious derangement of the State's revenues. We are not confronted with the necessity of seeking new revenues. The construction of a just and equitable tax system is our problem. The report paves the way for such a piece of constructive work, which I trust will be accomplished as soon as the subject has received the consideration which its importance and intricacy demand.

Although the direct State tax was reduced this year $12,802,815.94, there was in many counties little net reduction in taxation and in some counties there were actual increases, the saving effected by the State administration being thus in whole or in part absorbed by the increased cost of local governments. The great burden from direct tax resting upon real estate results from the cost of local, county, town and municipal governments, and that cost has been increasing at a time when it has been demonstrated to be practicable to reduce the cost of government. The demand for a change in methods of local administration led to the adoption of a constitutional amendment at the last election relating to only two counties in the State. It may be that the need was greatest in those two counties because of developments incident to their proximity to the City of New York, but I have no doubt that there is some need, though possibly of varying degree, in every county in the State. I recommend that provision be made for an inquiry into the causes of the excessive cost of local governments and the remedies therefor. The Joint Committee on Taxation is well organized to conduct such an inquiry.

Governor Miller urged the Legislature to postpone action on all local legislation affecting the City of New York, explaining:

The New York Charter Commission recently appointed by me is now engaged in the work of revising the Charter of the City of New York. I hope that it will be able to report to the present Legislature, in which case I shall convene it in extraordinary session. In view of that work I recommend that, except to provide for emergencies, all proposed local legislation affecting the City of New York be held for consideration together with the report of the Charter Commission.

The Governor also recommended various election reforms and the equal participation of men and women in party management. Taking up the State's institutional problem Governor Miller groups this in three sections, (1) the hospitals, (2) the penal institutions and (3) the asylums for mental defectives. The message said that housing, food and clothing conditions in all classes of State institutions are good. Concerning hospitals the Governor holds that the chief problem lays with the curative side and advances the belief that the number of discharged and paroled inmates should be increased. In 1921, the increase in the number of patients in State hospitals was 1,337, as against only 299 in the preceding year.

Regarding the assembling of ex-service men in the new Kings Park Hospital the Governor declared:

There are within the metropolitan district 530 ex-service men in the State hospitals, excluding paroles. The Federal Government makes compensation for the care of 257 of them. There are at Kings Park two units admirably suited for the care and treatment of the ex-service men. One hundred and seventy-two are now being cared for in one of such units. There is nearing completion at Kings Park a reception hospital which is believed to embody the last word in modern psychiatry. It is desirable, if possible, to assemble the ex-service men from the metropolitan district at one place, so that the assistance in therapeutic work and occupational training which the Federal Government is willing to render may be utilized to the maximum. I am advised by the officers of the State department of the American Legion that the executive committee of that organization, after a thorough investigation, approves of the bringing together, if possible, of the ex-service men in the metropolitan district at Kings Park Hospital, and at my request the Hospital Commission now has under consideration the method of effecting the necessary transfers to make that possible.

Governor Miller did not discuss in his annual message the plans of the New York Port Authority, but informed the Legislature that he would treat this subject in a later communication to that body.

"The State," says the message, "is the owner of tax titles to 1,600 parcels of real estate; it has acquired title to 113 parcels by foreclosure of United States loan mortgages; it is the owner of 607 mortgages on real estate and has other miscellaneous holdings, not devoted to public use and not within the forest preserve counties. It receives from all of its real estate an annual rental of about $1,400. The land acquired at foreclosure sale has been owned by the State from sixteen to seventy-five years. It owns mortgages which are more than eighty years old, many of them for small sums.

"The Commissioners of the Land Office have the power to sell real estate owned by the State not within the forest preserve and not devoted to public use, but it is obvious that that power is inadequate to deal with the situation.

"I recommend the adoption of some simple procedure to have the State-owned property appraised and sold with as little formality and red tape as possible. I also recommend that the Comptroller be authorized to accept transfers of title to mortgaged property with the approval of the Land Board."

After the reading of the Governor's message, both houses of the Legislature adjourned until next week.

Tax Exemption Little Help to People of Moderate Incomes

Measure Stimulated Building, Says Frank Bailey, But New Construction Has Been Almost Entirely of High Priced Apartments

FRANK BAILEY, vice-president of the Title Guarantee and Trust Company, discussing the housing situation in its relation to high prices generally, declares that the exemption from taxation of new houses for ten years have not relieved the people for whom relief was most necessary.

"Tax exemption," said Mr. Bailey, "has stimulated building to a great degree, but the new construction has been entirely of that class which is not available because of its cost to the people of moderate incomes.

"In Greater New York at the present time those having moderated incomes are under greater pressure for rent than ever before, and as incomes decrease the high rents of cheaper apartments will day by day oppress more people. At the present time it is absolutely impossible to produce a house which can be occupied by a tenant who can afford to pay a maximum of $12 a room, and when one remembers that the greatest number of people are in the class that can pay $12 or less a room, then it is perfectly obvious that the poor man is not approaching cheaper rents, but is approaching higher rents.

"There has been immense relief in the construction of houses where the rent is from $20 a room up, and the peak of prices of that class of apartment has long since passed.

"The exemption from taxation has produced so much construction that the labor unions have been able to work their will with the builders, until the cost of construction is but a little under the so-called war prices. As long as this enormous construction of buildings for the more wealthy continues and is stimulated, prices for materials and for labor will probably continue and the poor man will receive no relief.

"Relief of housing will be worked out in two ways, and in two ways only, in my judgment. One is by stopping the stimulation of construction which is no longer in great demand, to wit, the higher priced apartments. Second, by the American people rising superior to the domination of people who work as little as they can for wages away beyond those they are entitled to earn, and thereby inflict upon the people of Greater New York almost a calamity.

"Eighteen dollars a day for plasterers with the wage scale of $10; bricklayers handling from 600 to 1,000 brick a day against a capacity of over 2,000 for a good workman; electricians paying a gang for the privilege of working, with the ability of a builder to employ only one man to put on his lath and at any old price that man may ask; with the persistent strikes for no reason whatsoever—the poor people and those who can pay moderate rents can hope for no relief.

"There is just one old-fashioned rule which can help, and that is for 5,000,000 people to assert their independence against possibly 40,000 people.

Bryan L. Kennelly Sees Bright Outlook for 1922 Auction Market

BRYAN L. KENNELLY, president of Bryan L. Kennelly, Inc., and vice-president of the Harriman National Bank, when asked about the outlook for the real estate auction market for 1922, declared that it promised to be the brightest in the annals of New York realty.

"I am as confident of this," said Mr. Kennelly, "as I am of the ultimate results of the Washington disarmament conference. The auction market was never better than during 1921 and the market for 1922 promises to overshadow it, particularly in the volume of vacant lot transactions. And there is good reason for believing this. Civilization has begun to put its house in order again. It is recovering from the moral slump which has kept the world in a state of paralysis for almost a decade. It is turning to peace and is making its position more stable and secure. It is getting rid of disorders and restoring confidence. It is reviving trade everywhere, setting in motion all its industrial looms and creating a demand by one nation for the wares and goods and good will of another. It is extracting the dross from credit, restoring currency to its real value, and checking the sinister fluctuations of foreign exchange. A world-wide awakening to sanity is developing; unity of purpose and endeavor is being re-kindled; doubts and discouragements are being dispelled; false prophets and their vicious and misleading prophecies are being thrown into the discard.

"Other things upon which my confidence is founded is the amazing shipment of gold to the United States by foreign capitalists for investment here—a sum almost totalling a billion dollars; the enthusiastic response of the world's leading governments, rulers and statesmen to President Harding's invitation to meet in Washington and discuss ways and means to end wars and their causes; the attitude of the whole American public toward the proposal to scrap navies and eliminate further danger of general economic disaster and forestall another conflagration of anarchism; the universal joy over the prospect of the establishment of a super-government; the uniting of nations by unbreakable treaty or agreement, or by bonds of sound and unalterable friendship, so as to permanently guarantee peace and good will between all peoples whatever their race, their color, or their creed.

"That the world will some day be united in some way as the result of the epoch-making conference in Washington I am certain of as I am of the wave of prosperity that will sweep over America and the rest of the world before another year is past. With the coming of this wave of prosperity there will naturally eventuate a great business boom, widespread good times, and an unprecedented outpouring of home-seekers, investors, speculators, developers, operators and builders to absorb vacant land in New York City and all other sections in the metropolitan area.

"Added strength is given to my faith in the future of the real estate auction market in the return of investors to the field of realty and their active participation in most of the important transactions. For several years past they have held aloof, devoting most of their attention to stocks and bonds and other securities. They lost sight of the solidarity of New York real estate and of real estate as a source of constant and steady income. Having sustained tremendous losses in other fields, which they had been led to believe offered fabulous profits, the truth has dawned upon a large number of investors that the safest kind of an investment is improved real property which produces substantial returns.

"Let me say that investment in the real estate market during the 1914-1918 conflict against militarism and during the post-war period to date has meant the conservation or saving of fortunes for many American citizens, because of the soundness of real estate and its ability to stand up against even so great a catastrophe as the World War. It is truly remarkable that while everything else virtually went to smash, real estate, especially New York real estate, stood the shock without once feeling it.

"When one considers Manhattan real estate by itself, what equals it from an investment standpoint? There is no spot on the Island whose value of the moment is not fixed and whose greater value of the future is not assured.

than ever before, and they realize more than ever before the
 "My confidence in the future of the real estate auction market is also strengthened by the increasing number of women investors, operators and speculators at all my sales.

"What is the outlook for real estate? I say, all signs point to an unprecedented volume of business in 1922."

Miss Annie Mathews New York's First Woman Register

Elected by a Decisive Plurality the First Representative of Her Sex as Head of a Department Takes Important Office

THE first woman to be the head of an important branch of the local government took office on Monday, when Miss Annie Mathews became Register of New York County, as a result of her election thereto last November. When interviewed about the duties of the office, Miss Mathews said that necessarily she could say little, as she had not been in office long enough to fully acquaint herself with its ramifications and to become fully acquainted with the entire working force.

"I do not care merely to express vague phrases about my duties," she said. "When I can say something tangible about this place I hold that is of personal interest to every property-owner and builder in town then I will be heard from. Wait until I get over the brand newness of the position. I am beginning to settle down to business. The first day or two were days of congratulations, bouquets and kind words, as they are for all new incumbents in office.

"There is this much that I can say with some sense of statement: I am deeply appreciative of the great honor which the voters of New York conferred on me by the splendid plurality (86,000) given me in the recent election. I am assuming office with a full determination to prove to the voters that they made no mistake in their choice, and that a great public office can be administered by a woman.

"I count myself fortunate in taking over from my predecessor a competent and experienced staff and feel sure that I can count on their full co-operation in the effort to make our office record, if possible, even better in the future.

"One of the most urgent problems of our day is the making of democratic institutions efficient and thus economical. I believe that at least one vital factor in the solution of this problem is the awakening in each official of a department a sense of his importance to and responsibility for the success of the whole. If we can work in this spirit, as I sincerely believe we can, I am confident we can be happy in our work, and promise the public good service with courtesy and promptness."

The new Register is a native of this city, a daughter of John and Elizabeth Gillespie Mathews. She was educated in the New York public schools. Her further education has been obtained by travel, by keen observation, by long business experience and as an ardent advocate of woman suffrage before it became a reality. Since it has been in effect Miss Mathews has been Democratic leader of the Nineteenth Assembly District of Manhattan. She was such a good campaigner that she ran ahead of some others on the Democratic ticket as much as 5,000. Miss Mathews has traveled abroad extensively during her vacations, and she believes that is the best finishing off process that any one's education can get. As a result of her travels and her political experience she has met all kinds of persons, so that she comes into office with her powers of observation well developed.

The retiring Register, James A. Donegan, on Monday posed with his fair successor for a picture. And in turning over the office to Miss Mathews, Mr. Donegan said: "From my acquaintance with you I know you are capable and competent to discharge its most responsible duties. I know you will discharge those duties as economically as I have. The office has become self-sustaining since I came here."

Responding to the compliment, Miss Mathews said that the important thing now to do was to demonstrate to the New York public the success of good municipal principles and to prove by action in office that the era of the Czar and boss rule are over.

All of Register Mathews' immediate assistants are new incumbents, except the cashier, who was promoted from the place of assistant cashier. They are, in order, as follows: Edmund P. Holahan, Chief Deputy Register; Mrs. Josephine Flynn, Secretary to the Register; Thomas F. Murray, Cashier, and Miss Loretta Bonner, Assistant Cashier. Two of this staff reside on Washington Heights, one in Harlem and one on the West Side.

Regarding the Torrens Law confirmation of titles and the work of title insurance companies, Miss Mathews said that she would be perfectly impartial so far as the Register's office is concerned, that it is up to the property-owner affected to have any kind of search desired, without any attitude being taken in favor of the Torrens Law or against it.

Former Register Donegan is now County Clerk, succeeding William F. Schneider; while Martin Hoffman, formerly cashier to the Register, is head of the Naturalization Bureau of the County Clerk's office.

Real Estate Board to Hold Monthly Dinner Meetings

THE Real Estate Board of New York has decided to hold monthly meetings for its members. The first of these meetings will be held on the evening of Thursday, January 12, at which time the proposed development of the Port of New York will be presented by members of the Commission of the Commission, former Governor Alfred E. Smith and Mr. Simon including, it is expected, Mr. E. H. Outerbridge, Chairman Lewis H. Pounds. The proposed development of the port will be illustrated with motion pictures.

The dinner will be held at Delmonico's. It will begin promptly at 6.30 and it is planned to conclude the meeting not later than 9.30. Members have been asked to reply promptly and informed that reservations cannot be made later than Tuesday, January 3. Referring to these meetings which the Board plans to hold monthly from now on, Mr. Charles G. Edwards, President of the Board, says:

"It is the purpose of the Board of Governors to make these meetings entirely of an educational character. There are so many important public projects of vital interest to members of the Real Estate Board that it should not be difficult to select subjects upon which our members will be glad indeed to be informed. The success of these meetings will depend entirely upon the reception by the members but it seems to me that these gatherings should prove successful from the very first.

"The development of the Port of New York, for instance, is of greater importance even than our transit problem, and yet I doubt very much whether the public generally and even members of the Real Estate Board, who are supposed to follow matters of this kind, know very much about it.

"It will probably be necessary to omit a meeting in February because of the annual banquet which the Board will hold on the evening of February 4. But the Board of Governors is determined to try out this method of interesting its members in the great business affairs of the city and they feel sure that the members will respond to the call for the meeting on January 12 and on succeeding occasions."

Improvement in Gypsum Plaster

Manufacturers of gypsum wall plaster announce that a new manufacturing process has been adopted. The statement is made that this is the first radical change in 4,000 years. The new product is known as syanized plaster. The process seals each minute particle of gypsum against atmosphere moisture.

The plaster loses none of its sand-carrying capacity, even when stored for many months. It does not go "dead" while in storage, and, being always "fresh," assures full coverage. Other economies of this plaster are the rapidity with which it takes the water in mixing, and its unusual plasticity under the trowel.

Review of Real Estate Market for the Current Week

Several Large Sales in Manhattan Added Tone to Dealing There, While Sales of Apartment Houses Shared Honors With Plots in Bronx

THE New Year, in real estate, started well. The week shows transactions closed of substantial size that indicate that the market is likely to show greater strength as it progresses toward Spring. All parts of town were represented in the dealing this week. Even an old tenement house in Market Slip, a part of the city that seldom figures in the trading, changed hands for improvement. The Corn Exchange Bank acquired an improved West Bronx corner which will house a new branch of that widespread financial institution. An old builder bought another West Bronx corner for improvement with a taxpayer containing stores. One store has been leased, on the plans, to a chain grocer. This reflects the neighborhood growth steadily going on in the Bronx, especially in the western half of it, where new rapid transit routes are making themselves felt. The New Year witnessed a continuity of general buying and selling of vacant plots in the northerly borough, for improvement with apartment houses.

A new feature was the sale of some large new apartment houses, showing that investors are interested in these modern properties.

Giving impetus to this year's dealing in Manhattan was the sale of a large mercantile building at West 57th street, adjoining the Hecksher building at the corner of Fifth avenue, the sale value approaching $1,500,000. Among other notable transactions were the sale of a large West Side plot for re-improvement with a 17-story building; the sale of the old Hôtel Grosvenor, on a lower Fifth avenue corner, and the enlargement, by purchase, of a plot near Madison avenue, owned by William R. Hearst.

The 12-story Strathmore apartment house, on an upper Riverside Drive corner, again changed hands. This, together with numerous recent sales of vacant corner plots on this famous river front thoroughfare, shows that the Drive is in steady demand as a residential center and that it is not so remote from traffic routes as many suppose. The fee to a large loft building on a Fourth avenue corner was bought by the owners of the building, who are the tenants. A large site for a 12-story loft building in the Garment Center was bought. This, together with other site sales in that zone recently, indicates that the sky line of that new business section will be materially changed by next year and that the concentration of cloak and suit makers there will be stronger and rental values better and fee values higher.

The Sydenham Post Graduate Hospital bought a block front in West Harlem, which means that that institution will remove from the East side of the city eventually to a new million dollar structure to be built on the new site. It is not believed that this semi-fashionable part of town welcomes the coming of the hospital. But, institutions of this character must necessarily follow trend of population and settle in accessible neighborhoods.

The march of trade northward, in Madison avenue, was shown by the purchase of two fine dwellings there for the purpose of remodeling them into mercantile buildings. There was considerable dealing in fine dwellings elsewhere in town. Apartment house dealing was fairly active. Some mercantile buildings, downtown, changed hands. An old mansion on Washington Square was bought to remodel for trade.

That large summer hotel properties are still doing business, in spite of the travel by automobile, is indicated by the sale, for about $1,000,000, of the Hotel Kaaterskill, in the Catskill Mountains, together with 600 acres of mountain land. The new State highway, along the west bank of the Hudson River, undoubtedly had much to do with the determination to acquire this large property and remodel it.

PRIVATE REALTY SALES.

THE total number of sales reported, but not recorded in Manhattan this week, was 81, as against 69 last week and 88 a year ago.

The number of sales south of 59th st was 26, as compared with 29 last week and 41 a year ago.

The number of sales north of 59th st was 55, as compared with 40 last week and 47 a year ago.

From the Bronx 35 sales at private contract were reported, as against 39 last week and 24 a year ago.

Statistical tables, including the number of recorded instruments, will be found on page 18.

Real Estate Lecture Next Week

Harry Hall, vice-president of the old and prominent brokerage firm of William A. White & Sons, will deliver the first lecture in the real estate course for 1922 of the West Side Y. M. C. A., at 318 West 57th st, on Tuesday evening, January 10.

An open forum follows the lecture.

Real Estate Firm Celebrates Anniversary

Last Monday the well known real estate firm of Schindler & Liebler, of 1393 Third avenue, celebrated the 25th anniversary of its establishment. Each, personally, still active, Philip A. Schindler and Jacob F. Liebler, who comprise the partnership, received many congratulations and looked back on their silver jubilee, at a successful and gratifying business career.

The firm, during all these years, has been located in the Yorkville section, of whose real estate values it is a recognized authority. It has not confined its operations to this locality alone, but has done an extensive business throughout the entire city, making a specialty of management of estates. It still retains, as clients, a number of large estates with which it began business 25 years ago, the most important of which consists of the large real estate interests of the Hoguet family.

Taxpayers' Association Officers

At a meeting of the Greater New York Taxpayers' Association, held on December 29 last, the following were elected for the year 1922: Elias Diamond, president; Louis Roosin, first vice-president; Karl Shapiro, second vice-president; Julius Feinberg, treasurer; Samuel S. Isaacs, secretary.

Harlem Firm Opens a Bronx Branch

Shaw, Rockwell & Sanford, who for many years have maintained a general real estate office on West 125th st, have opened a Bronx branch office at 1972 Jerome av, which is fully equipped to offer complete real estate and insurance service for all parts of both the Bronx and Manhattan. The firm, until during the last year, was known as Shaw & Co., its Manhattan office being at 1 West 125th st.

Architect Member of Budget Guard

Goodhue Livingston, of Trowbridge & Livingston, has accepted appointment as Commander of the Architects' Division in the mobilization of New York business men in the "Budget Guard" being organized by the National Budget Committee, of 7 West 8th st, under direction of Sam A. Lewisohn, well-known banker and city chairman, to support the movement for national economy and lower taxes. Every trade and industry in New York City is being mobilized with the most prominent men in their respective trades as division commanders.

Columbia Stadium Site Assured

A donor, whose name is, for the present, withheld, has given the $700,000 necessary for Columbia University to acquire a large tract of vacant land in the northern part of Manhattan as the site for a university stadium for all kinds of athletic events. Fronting on the south shore of Harlem Ship Canal and the west shore of Harlem River, the tract embraces 26 acres. Broadway and 218th st are the other boundaries. A short distance away is Isham Park.

Its acquisition will mean that New York City will offer the greatest facilities for intercollegiate tests of every kind and for such public spectacles as the Horse Show, brigade reviews, etc. The action to acquire the tract was the result of the study of the university stadium project made by a committee consisting of representatives of officers, alumni and students appointed by President Butler on March 17 last to take up the whole question of a Stadium and athletic field, to plan how best to carry the matter forward and to recommend to President Butler for transmission to the trustees such steps as they might think desirable.

A committee of alumni and students under the chairmanship of Archibald Douglass, graduate of Columbia Law School of the class of 1897, has been working since May, 1921, to raise the needed amount. At the Columbia holiday luncheon on December 29, Dr. Butler announced that up to that time the efforts had been unsuccessful. The raising of the money by Dr. Butler at the last minute came to Columbia and to the city in the nature of a New Year's surprise.

Steps will be taken at once to develop the tract in accordance with the plan which has already been mapped out in detail. Dr. Butler made the announcement of the gift, which comes from a personal friend, in the following statement:

"It is with profound satisfaction that I am able to announce that a warm personal friend, who wishes for the time being to remain anonymous, has made a princely gift of the sum needed to enable Columbia University to acquire for an athletic field and stadium the Dyckman tract of more than 26 acres, which has been held under option since May last.

"The total cost of acquiring the property will be about $700,000. The option to purchase was to expire at noon Saturday, December 31, and the generous donor, who had been greatly interested in the project from the time it was first brought to his attention, made his gift on Friday.

"It is difficult to exaggerate what possession of this property will mean to the health and the enjoyment of generations of Columbia University students and alumni. When developed as we plan to develop it, it will be as notable an addition to the resources of New York as a metropolitan city as has been made in many a day."

Dr. Butler stated that the committee of alumni and students who have been at work on the plans since last spring have before them a complete scheme for developing the property prepared by Eugene Klapp, engineer of the Columbia class of 1912, and Henry F. Hornbostel, architect, of the Columbia class of 1891.

Speaking of the plans for athletic fields, Dr. Butler said that they provided for a football stadium with a seating capacity of 56,000, costing $750,000; a separate baseball field with a capacity of 10,000, costing $125,000, and an athletic field with three tracks and a 220-yard straightaway with a capacity of 8,000 or 9,000, costing $450,000.

A field boulevard 200 feet wide that will park from 1,000 to 1,500 automobiles will be built across the property at a cost of $120,000. This road or boulevard will look down over the football and baseball fields on the one hand and look out on the athletic fields on the other, Dr. Butler explained.

A boathouse and rowing headquarters will be built in the extreme westerly part of the property in a cove protected from the tidal currents of the Harlem River. A sea wall costing $135,000 is also provided for in the plans, which further contemplate the erection of a war memorial, whose cost, like that of the boathouse and a clubhouse, has not yet been estimated.

Madison Av. Dwellings for Trade

Pease & Elliman sold for Miss Cornelia Williamson, Mrs. Alice F. Bodwell and Mrs. Mary E. Bodwell to George C. Camas 683 Madison av., a 4-sty and basement brownstone dwelling, on a lot 18x86. It is the first sale of the parcel since 1879. The buyer will remodel the structure and use it for his lingerie business.

Negotiations are pending for the sale of 681 Madison av., adjoining, a dwelling on a lot 21.5x85.

Sells Fee to Fourth Av Corner

A tenant syndicate, in which Herring Bros. and J. I. Granowitz, silk and woolen merchants, are interested, has purchased from Esther E. de P. Hosmer the land, 98.7x75, at the northwest corner of Fourth av and 21st st, which it leased a few years ago and improved with a 12-sty building. Title has been acquired under the name of the Leah Realty Co.

Papers have also been recorded in which the seller allows a mortgage for $337,500 to remain for 10 years at 5 per cent. and a further loan of $225,000, payable in installments and bearing 6 per cent. interest is advanced by Paul Herring and others.

Evening Post Sells Its Uptown Site

It is understood that the New York Evening Post has sold the site for a contemplated new building, at 255 to 265 West 33d st, which it bought about two years ago. The name of the buyer is not disclosed. The plot is 125x98.9 and, with the exception of a 25-foot front apartment house, the site is vacant. It adjoins the northeast corner of Eighth av and is opposite the Pennsylvania Station and close to the General Post Office.

Last May the Post borrowed $250,000 on the property from the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. The loan becomes due in June, 1926, and bears interest at the rate of 6 per cent.

The Post has been on Vesey st for a decade or more. Soon after the paper was purchased by Thomas W. Lamont the uptown site was acquired, presumably with the intention of utilizing it for the plant when the Vesey st lease expired.

Sale of Big Broadway Corner

The 16-sty Merchants Building at the southwest corner of Broadway and 4th st, has been sold for Morris P. Altman and the Broadway Fourth Street Corporation to Joseph & Zeamans, representing a syndicate of investors. The price was reported to be in the neighborhood of $1,000,000. William Sussman, Inc., were the brokers.

The structure, which covers a plot 80.5x110, was erected about 15 years ago by the late Philip Braender, one of the pioneer builders of steel and masonry structures in the city.

Sells Dyckman Block Front

Bernard Smyth & Sons sold to Gustavus L. Lawrence for the estate of Frederick Mead the plot of more than 21 lots, comprising the entire block front on the east side of Broadway, between Dyckman and Thayers sts, in the Dyckman section, having a frontage of 202 feet on Broadway, 282.7½ feet on Dyckman st and 250.10 feet on Thayer st. The plot will probably be divided and sold to builders for improvement.

West Side Sale Involving Old Lane

Another loft operation is indicated in the purchase of the vacant plot 67x95, at 146-152 West 37th st, 75 feet east of Seventh av, by Frederick Brown through Harry B. Cutner, as broker, from the M. Cohen & Bros. Realty Corporation.

Mr. Brown also purchased the rear gore plot, size 3.9x67, from Jefferson M. Levy, making the total depth 98.9. Mr. Levy has owned this gore plot, which was formerly an old lane running from Broadway to Seventh av, for more than 40 years and it is the last of his holdings of this strip.

Sell a Cooperative Apartment

Douglas L. Elliman & Co. sold a large cooperative apartment, containing 15 rooms and 5 baths, in 290 Park av, for Edward H. Everett, of Washington, D. C., to Mrs. George S. Dearborn, who now resides at the Carlton House, 22 East 47th st.

Mystic Shriners Buy West Side Plot

The Masonic Order of The Mystic Shrine bought through Clarence H. Kelsey, president of the Title Guarantee & Trust Co., the plot 131 West 55th st, extending through to 130 West 56th st, at present covered by a 3 and 4-sty brick building, the plot 200.10 feet in depth and fronts 101 feet on 55th st and 99.6 feet on 56th st. Yale University was the seller. The purchase price is understood to be $400,000.

The site chosen for the elaborate temple of the local organization of Shriners has recently been used as a moving picture studio by the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation. The old buildings will be razed to make room for the mosque, which is to be of the finest execution, as befits the mother of all Temples of the Ancient Arabic Order of the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine. With the cost of the plot, the new home of the Shriners of Mecca Temple will cost them nearly $2,000,000, and it will represent one of the most expensive as well as one of the most striking works of architecture ever erected in this country for the exclusive use of a fraternal order.

Work on the Temple will be begun at once, and it is to be completed and opened in connection with the jubilee celebrating the fiftieth anniversary of the order, to be held in this city the latter part of 1922, when 12,000 representatives of the 160 Temples in North America, including Canadians and Mexicans, are expected to be present and parade through the streets of New York in their picturesque Oriental costumes.

The consummation of the real estate deal was the occasion of a quiet celebration in the evening by prominent Shriners at Mecca Temple in West 45th st, where the details of the undertaking were explained by Louis N. Donnatin, Recorder of the Temple.

"Originally we had planned to combine the new home for Mecca Temple with an office building, so that the expenses might be partly defrayed by rentals," explained Mr. Donnatin. "But we now find that our finances are in excellent shape, as is indicated by the fact that our surplus is $75,000 in excess of that of last year, and we feel that we have an organization than can carry out the undertaking."

"We have nearly $1,000,000, and what additional funds we may need we will raise through the Mecca Temple Holding Co., recently organized to do the underwriting. The holding company will raise additional funds by selling bonds to the members of the Mecca Temple. We have 11,080 members, and it is apparent that the cost of the mosque when pro-rated among this number represents an insignificant sum. However, we cannot expect every member to furnish his theoretical share of the cost."

"We are going to build a mosque without asking help from any other temple. It is purely an affair for the local organization and Mecca Temple will take pride in the fact that it alone built the home for the mother temple."

"Several sketches have been submitted by nobles who are skilled architects and are interested in the type of mosque that is to be constructed. But no decision has been reached as to the exact plan. The only definite decision has been that we are to have a building of our own here where the mother of all temples may be properly housed."

"Our great drawback has been the comparatively limited number of plots offered. We must build for the future. It has been the history of every temple that the original plans have proved too small by the time that the building was completed."

"Take Syria Mosque, in Pittsburgh, for instance. At the time this work was started it was declared that it would meet all requirements for years to come. Two or three months ago the trustees were empowered to purchase an additional plot on one side for the purpose of building larger foyers. It will not be possible to enlarge the auditorium, but they want to make at least standing room for those nobles who cannot gain admission to the ceremonial itself. Medina Temple, in Chicago, with her great membership is in even worse condition. They cannot enlarge."

"We do not want to make the same error, and this in part accounts for the magnitude of the undertaking. We want an auditorium that will meet the demands of the members. We will have not only an auditorium with a suitable capacity, but we will have smoking rooms, a banquet hall, committee rooms, executive offices, club rooms and a limited number of rooms for visiting Shriners."

The bonds by which it is planned to raise the necessary funds to carry out the construction of the mosque are offered to the members of Mecca

Temple in denominations of $50, $100, $500 and $1,000, by the Mecca Temple Holding Company, which includes Robert D. Williams, Charles A. Benedict, William J. Matthews, Louis N. Donatin, Henry C. Arthur, Paul Jones and R. A. Mansfield Hobbs.

Mecca Temple was founded in this city 50 years ago by William J. Florence, an old actor, who came to this country from England. The first home of the Temple was at the Old Cottage, 464 Sixth av, now occupied by Mouquin's Restaurant. In the 160 temples on the North American continent today there are 500,000 members, each of whom is assessed $2 a year, which is to be devoted to hospitals, charities and other worthy purposes.

Robert Levers was the broker in the sale of the new Temple site. The order has long occupied a converted dwelling at 107 West 45th st.

Hearst Adds to Holdings

E. K. Van Winkle and Huberth & Huberth sold 19 East 57th st, a 6-sty apartment house with store, on lot 23x100, for the 19 East Fifty-seventh Street Co. to a client for investment. It was held at $300,000.

The property is just west of Madison av and is understood to have been purchased in behalf of William Randolph Hearst. Last April Mr. Hearst leased through his representatives, Huberth & Huberth, the former Wilson residence at 15 East 57th st, a 43-foot parcel, for 21 years at an annual rental of $36,000, and with an option of purchasing the property for $500,000.

Subsequently he purchased the adjoining altered dwelling at 17 East 57th st from Stephen O. Lockwood. The latest purchase will give Mr. Hearst control of a frontage of 82 feet at this point.

Hotel Grosvenor Acquired

The old Hotel Grosvenor at the northeast corner of Fifth av and 10th st has been sold by Leonard D. and Arthur J. Baldwin to John A. McCarthy, the building material dealer who recently bought the adjoining vacant plot, 24.6x94.9, on East 10th st, which is to be utilized for a 12-sty annex to the old downtown apartment hostelry. The Grosvenor is a 7-sty structure, on a plot 80.8x100. Extensive alterations will be made to the building. The transfers have been recorded.

Valuable Dreicer Holding Sold

Dreicer Realty Co., of which the late Michael Dreicer was the head, sold to Isaac D. Levy, head of Oppenheim, Collins & Co., the 11-sty mercantile building 6-8 West 57th st, on a plot 65.6x100.5, adjoining the Hecksher building at the southwest corner of Fifth av and 57th st. The new owner has not announced his purpose in buying the property. The price was about $1,500,000.

Site for Big School Bought

An important step toward a large headquarters and resident school building was taken this week when the National Bible Institute of 214 and 216 West 35th st (Don O. Shelton, president, Hugh R. Monroe, treasurer) acquired title to the property at 330 to 348 West 53th st. On this site are 10 dwellings with an aggregate frontage of 200 feet, located about 500 feet west of Broadway.

The building to be erected will be a 17-sty fireproof structure and will be divided into two sections, providing for the general offices of the institute and for a library, study rooms, class rooms, social rooms, dining room, an auditorium on the main floor that will seat approximately 1,200 people, and 550 rooms that will accommodate between 600 and 700 students. The site and the buildings will involve an aggregate expenditure of approximately $1,500,000. The architects are McKenzie, Voorhees & Gmelin. The sale of the property was negotiated through the Manning-Bernhard Co.

Operator Buys Dwellings

Frederick Brown purchased as a site for an apartment house operation the three 4-sty and basement brick dwellings 147-149-151 West 74th st, covering a plot 64.6x102.2. The sellers were Alice C. Phelps, the C. A. Miunt estate and Caroline K. Burr. The Brown, Wheelock Co. were the brokers. Negotiations for a resale to a builder are pending.

Riverside Drive Corner Plot Sold

Slawson & Hobbs sold for the Liberty & Church Street Corporation, Robert E. Dowling, president, to the 610 West 110th Street Co., Benjamin P. Walker, president, the north corner of Riverside dr and 109th st, a vacant plot fronting 74 feet on the drive and 151.7 on the street.

The buyer will immediately improve the plot with a 14-sty fireproof apartment house to be ready for occupancy on October 1, next. The plot is one of several Mr. Dowling bought from the estate of Russell Sage.

Former Owner Buys Back a Parcel

Resale of the Linlithgow, a 7-sty elevator apartment house at the southeast corner of Riverside dr and 129th st, has been made by the West Heights Realty Corporation (Sol Levine president and Jacob Granat secretary and treasurer). The purchaser is Joseph Shenk, who formerly owned the property. The house rents for about $70,000 annually and was valued at $400,000. It fronts 100.8 feet on the drive and 157.6 feet on 139th st, and accommodates 60 families, who occupy suites of from 4 to 6 rooms each.

Mr. Shenk disposed of the structure last March to the Ardmore Estates, Inc., from which the present selling company acquired it. The grounds of the St. Regis Convent are directly opposite.

An East Side Investment

Maurice Wertheim sold for Dennis J. McDonald, of Yonkers, N. Y., to Patrick Coughlin and John Ryan, for investment, 155 East 39th st, a 5-sty stone apartment house, on a plot 27.3x98.2; and 157 East 39th st, a 5-sty stone apartment house, known as the Edgewood, on a lot 19x91.3. The first is a double apartment building and the second a single one. The sales have been recorded.

Garage To Supplant Factory Building

S. & H. Realities, Inc., or the Herman Lumber Co., sold to Isidor Friedman 196-204 Mulberry st, northeast corner of Kenmare st, a 6-sty and basement brick factory building, on a plot fronting 118.2 feet on Mulberry st and 100.2 1/4 feet on Kenmare st.

On the site the buyer will build a 4-sty fireproof garage, with stores and showrooms on the Kenmare st side. It is the first sale of the property in more than 50 years. Shaw, Rockwell & Sanford were the brokers.

Builders Buy Large Heights Plot

The 615 West 164th Street Corporation, composed of Theodore Klein, Abraham Bricken, Isidore Friedman and Leo Schloss purchased from the Waunegan Realty Co. the vacant plot, 175x140x irregular, on the south side of 165th st, 200 feet west of Broadway. They will improve the property with two 87-foot front 5-sty and basement walk-up apartment houses, which will be ready for occupancy October 1, 1922.

This is the fourth block front which the purchasing company has acquired from the Waunegan Realty Co. in the last year.

Ardshane Apartments Bought

Michael J. Connaughton, of Flynn & Connaughton, sold for Max Gold and Henry Bernstein the 5-sty and basement brick apartment house known as "The Ardshane," 562 and 564 West 191st st, on a plot 51x98.7 1/2 x irregular, to the Ginkenna Realty Co., Inc., Michael McKenna, president; John Ginnity, secretary and treasurer. The property was held at $100,000.

Markeen Apartments Resold

Charles Galewski purchased from Matilda Sussman the Markeen apartments at 570 West 156th st, a 6-sty brick elevator semi-fireproof structure containing 9 families on a floor, with from 2 to 5 room suites. It stands on a plot 125x100, located 100 feet east of Broadway. The property was held at $425,000 and returns a rental of $50,000 per annum.

Company Buys Tiffany Arms

The newly formed Tiffany Arms Realty Corporation (A. M. Bloch, A. J. Shapiro and H. Dann) purchased the 6-sty elevator apartment house, on plot 100x108, at the southeast corner of Tiffany and 163d sts, Bronx. The house is known as Tiffany Arms and shows a yearly rent roll of $46,000. It was valued at $225,000 and contains 51 suites of from 3 to 6 rooms each and 7 stores. The Great Northern Apartments Corporation, the seller, acquired the property last June. The buying company is represented by C. Diring, attorney. It is capitalized at $50,000.

Hospital Goes from East to West Harlem

Leon S. Altmayer sold for Elizabeth McDougall the block front on the west side of Manhattan av, from West 123d st to Hancock pl and West 124th st. The purchaser is the Sydenham Post Graduate Course and Hospital, who will immediately erect a 10-sty fireproof hospital on the plot. The hospital will be non-sectarian in character and upon its completion will be one of the most modern and up-to-date hospitals in this country.

The location is unusually accessible, as it is but one block from the elevated railroad station on Eighth av and is but one block from all crosstown lines on 125th st and the Fifth av bus and St. Nicholas av electric carlines pass the door. It has unusual light and air advantages, having frontages on four streets. It is but a short distance from the new Rockefeller School being erected on West 123d st.

One of the features of the new hospital building is the elimination of wards, as every patient, whether charity or pay, will have a separate room, and this privacy tends to hasten recoveries. There will be five operating pavilions.

The Sydenham Post Graduate Course and Hospital has been functioning for the last 18 years in the nine old buildings at 331 to 347 East 116th st, which location it has outgrown and which buildings have recently been sold for the hospital by Mr. Altmayer to the American National Red Cross of Washington, D. C., and other institutions and private parties.

When completed, the new building, land and equipment will represent an outlay of about $1,000,000. The plot is 116.11x101.5x163.7x90.

Hotel Kaaterskill Sold

The Lewis H. May Co. sold for the Girard Trust Co., George J. Harding, and William Pitt Mason, trustees, the Hotel Kaaterskill property at Catskill, N. Y., to Harry Tannenbaum, of Oak Court, Lakewood, N. J., and formerly of the Hollywood Lodge, Highmount, N. Y.

This property covers an area of 600 acres, comprises a township and contains main building, annex and outbuildings, with several lakes. The main building contains 1,000 bedrooms, exclusive of other rooms, also bowling alleys, billiard rooms, and numerous recreation rooms. The outbuildings consist of garage, stables, carriage houses, dormitories, power houses, etc. Property also includes a 9-hole golf course, which will be extended to the regular 18-hole course.

Property was originally constructed by day labor in the year 1882 by George Harding, leading patent attorney of his time, and cost more than $1,000,000 to complete. It was necessary to cut roads through and level mountain tops in its erection. Its altitude is 2,800 feet, which is believed to be the highest point of habitation in New York State.

It is historical as the summer capitol of General U. S. Grant in the year 1882, at which time Mr. Harding deeded to the General what is known as Boulder Rock, one of the highest points in the Catskill Mountains. It again became the summer capitol of President Arthur in 1884.

The Kaaterskill is the largest mountain hotel in the United States, is the highest point in the Catskills, and is one of the famous sights of the tourists up the Hudson, comparative to the castles built along the famous rivers of Europe.

Mr. Tannenbaum has contracted for extensive changes and alterations, including private baths throughout, running water and electricity, also general remodeling. The larger lake will be dredged and steam coils will be installed for tempering the water. Upon the lake shore will be constructed a large Casino and bathing pavilion.

The Kaaterskill is 100 miles from New York on the State road, recently completed, and is now one of the famous rendezvous for automobilists. The total cost of the improvements will exceed $200,000.

Manhattan Building Costs in 1921 Aggregate $142,448,868

Rudolph P. Miller, on Relinquishing Office of Superintendent of Buildings, Reviews Condition of Business, Only Once Before Exceeded in Amount

RUDOLPH P. MILLER, for the last two years Superintendent of Buildings in Manhattan under Borough President Henry H. Curran, upon turning over the office to his successor points out the great increase in the magnitude of building operations that have taken place although there has been an almost steady decrease, in recent years at least, in the number of building erected each year.

"With the close of the year 1921," said Supt. Miller, "the several bureaus of buildings of the city close the second decade of their existence as separate administrative bodies under the direction of the respective presidents of the five boroughs. It would seem interesting, therefore, to consider the present activities of the bureau of Manhattan in comparison with those of the past.

"The building operations for the year 1921, up to and including December 24th, may be briefly stated as follows:

	Application Filed	Building Contemplated	Estimated Cost
New Buildings	601	892	$119,107,278
Alterations	3,078	3,368	23,341,590
Total	3,679	4,260	$142,448,868

"For the purpose of comparison with the activities of previous years, I have prepared a table, divided into periods of ten years with the exception of the first and second periods which are respectively six and eight years, of the building operations of the past so far as we have any official knowledge. This table is largely based on a statement in the annual report of the bureau for the year 1910, showing the building operations for each year since 1868, prepared by Mr. William H. Class, for 45 years a faithful employee and, at the time of his death at the close of the year 1909, chief clerk of the bureau. Unfortunately, the record for the years 1862 to 1867 is missing and no longer available. The following table shows the periodic annual averages of building operations of the borough of Manhattan and the former city of New York:

NEW BUILDINGS

Period	Applications Filed	Cost	Approx. Av. per Bldg.	Alterations Cost	Total Cost
1868-1873	2,089	$34,157,589	$16,300	$3,308,301	$37,465,890
1874-1881	1,784	21,807,115	12,200	3,438,566	25,245,680
1882-1891	3,354	54,981,181	16,400	6,184,628	61,165,809
1892-1901	3,157	79,401,104	25,000	7,113,856	86,514,960
1912-1921	438	74,027,572	140,000	18,555,923	92,583,496

"The history of building inspection in the borough of Manhattan dates back to 1862, completing with this year sixty years of activity. When first inaugurated, building inspection was under the jurisdiction of a bureau of the fire department and the enforcement of building requirements continued under such direction until 1892 when by the enactment of Chapter 275, Laws of 1892, a department of buildings was created, to which was transferred the jurisdiction of the matters relating theretofore administered by the bureau of inspection of buildings of the fire department. At the same time all matters under the control of the board of health in regard to light, ventilation, plumbing and drainage were delegated to the new department. This arrangement prevailed till 1898 when the consolidation of the five boroughs into the City of New York was effected. With this change came a new department of buildings, headed by the board of buildings, consisting of three commissioners, one of whom had jurisdiction over the boroughs of Manhattan and the Bronx. In 1902, there was a general reorganization in the city government under the present Greater New York Charter, by which the present bureau of buildings with the superintendent as its head was given jurisdiction in the borough of Manhattan alone.

"Previous to 1902, a real comparison with the present conditions is possible only for the period including the first six years of the table (1868-1873) when the City of New York still consisted solely of the island of Manhattan. In 1874, a portion of what is now the Bronx, was annexed to the City of New York, as the 23rd and 24th wards. From that time on, the figures in the table include the operations of Manhattan Island and such portions of the present borough of the Bronx as were at these different periods a part of the City of New York.

"The second period of eight years, (1874 to 1881) brings us up to the time when a general revision of the building laws was made by the Legislature. From that time on, the periods which have been selected are each ten years long and represent successive decades of building operations fitting in with the time when the activities were transferred to the department of buildings in 1892 and when the reorganization creating the separate borough bureaus was effected in 1902.

"Only once before in the history of the bureau was the total cost of building operations for 1921 exceeded by that of any other year. That was in 1909, when the total operations for the borough of Manhattan were $144,332,212. The nearest approach to the 1921 figures were those of the year before, 1920, at $139,199,563. These statements apply even considering the years preceding 1902 when the figures for the entire city (Manhattan and the Bronx) are included.

"Taking new buildings apart from the total operations, to find an excess over 1921, we must go back to the year 1909 again, the most active year the borough of Manhattan or the former city ever experienced, when the estimated cost of new buildings amounted to $131,246,483, and to 1905, the year just following the opening of the first subway, when they totalled $124,746,552. Once during the period when the Bronx operations were included, the new building operations exceeded those of 1921, namely, in 1899, the year in which the first building code as a city ordinance was enacted and to anticipate which many applications were filed for buildings which were never actually constructed. Another comparatively active year was that of 1901, when the operations were increased to a great extent just preceding the enforcement of the present, but then new, tenement house law.

"Generally speaking, there had been a gradual advance in the value of building operations as shown by the figures of the 1910 report. In the 70's there seems to have been a slump, which is reflected in the average for the period, and not till the recent war period, when there was a drop which left its impress on the ten-year period, has there been any marked retrogression. While the cost of new buildings has increased during the history of the building department, there has, on the other hand, been a very decided decrease in the number of buildings erected, at least in recent years. The slump in building operations already referred to as occurring in the 70's, showed itself also in the number of buildings erected at that time. After that there was a gradual increase in the latter part of the '90's, since when there has been a steady

N. Y. City Contracts Awarded in 1921 Total $394,754,400

Amount of Construction Work Undertaken by Builders 25 Per Cent. Greater Than 1920 and 41 Per Cent. Over the Figure for 1919

IN 1921 New York City carried through the largest construction program on record for many years, according to the F. W. Dodge Company. The total amount of contracts awarded during the year was $394,754,400. This figure is 25 per cent greater than the total for 1920, which was $315,048,650; it was also 41 per cent greater than the total for 1919, which was $279,478,200. The actual volume of construction, distinguished from the dollar cost, was very considerably greater in 1921 than in either of the two previous years.

Residential construction, greatly stimulated by the Tax Exemption Act, has been largely responsible for this record volume of building. This class of construction accounted for $262,184,400, or exactly two-thirds of the total.

In 1921, there were 56,356,700 square feet of residential floor space contracted for, compared with 15,142,000 square feet in 1920, and 38,179,500 square feet in 1919.

Second in importance to residential construction in 1921 was the construction of commercial buildings, which accounted for $70,062,200, or 18 per cent of the year's total. Although this was considerably less than the 1920 volume of construction of this class, it was greater than the corresponding amount for 1919.

The total amount of contracts awarded in December was $44,071,500, an increase of 17 per cent over the November figure. This increase, unusual for the closing month of the year, taken with the fact that there is still a great quantity of construction planned which has not yet been started, is an indication of a healthy volume of activity during the coming year.

Federal Census Shows Industrial Growth of Queens

THE industrial importance of Queens Borough can be best gauged by the facts disclosed in the figures recently published by the United States Census, showing the amount of manufacturing in each State in the Union for the year 1919," Ray Palmer, Chairman of the Industrial Promotion Committee of the Queensboro Chamber of Commerce stated today. "These figures show that Queens Borough exceeded nineteen different states in the amount of capital invested in manufacturing, fifteen states in the total value of products and eight states in the number of industrial establishments. Moreover, there were fourteen states which had a less number of industrial employees and sixteen states in which a less amount was paid for salaries and wages of industrial employees."

The states which Queens Borough surpassed in the amount of capital invested in manufacturing are Arizona, Arkansas, Colorado, Delaware, Florida, Idaho, Kentucky, Mississippi, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, New Mexico, Wyoming, North Dakota, Oklahoma, Oregon, South Dakota, Utah and Vermont.

drop to 1906 from which time on the number of new building operations were about the same each year till the war broke out.

"On the other hand the average cost of new buildings has proceeded in the other direction. It kept fairly steady from the beginning to early in the '90's, when it began to rise. At the end of that period, the average cost of a new building was about $60,000. This condition continued along until about 1907 when quite suddenly the average cost of a new building nearly doubled, remaining in that condition for a period of about 10 years, when it rose again, due to high building costs.

"For 1921 the estimated cost of alterations constituted about 16½% of the total value of building operations. Comparing this with previous periods, there is indicated a gradual rise in this proportion; in other words, and generally speaking, as new building operations decreased in number, alterations increased. Looking back over the table of the 1910 report, it appears that there has been always a considerable reconstruction going on in Manhattan. The earlier years of the table show that the numbers of alterations are not much different from the numbers of new building operations. Since the record of building operations has been separately kept for the borough of Manhattan, it appears that the number of alterations far exceeds that of new buildings; that is, Manhattan is being steadily reconstructed."

Figures of the United States Geological Survey show that the production of cement for the first eleven months of 1921 amounted to 91,734,000 barrels, and shipments to 91,354,000 barrels. This latter figure is about 1 per cent. under the record shipments for the first eleven months of 1920, and about 9 per cent greater than the average for the first eleven months of years 1917 to 1921. Production of cement during November, amounting to 8,921,000 barrels, is a falling off from the record figure of October, 10,506,000 barrels, but is about 17 per cent higher than the average November of years 1917 to 1921 inclusive. Production for eleven months was only one-half per cent below the high record of 1920, and is 11 per cent greater than the average.

Recent Awards Indicate Active Building Next Spring

Statistics of Final Week of 1921, Tabulated by F. W. Dodge Company, Show Steady Improvement in Commercial and Industrial Construction

MAINTEINING the high average of the past four or five months the building year closed with a record of achievement much better than was anticipated during the early weeks of 1921. The final week of the year just closed was noteworthy for the number of new building projects being planned by local architects and also for its record of operations actually placed under contract during the last few days of the old year.

Building statistics for New York State and New Jersey, north of Trenton, for the closing week of 1921, show that architects and engineers had reported work on 342 plans for new structural projects, at an estimated value of $13,373,000. These figures, as tabulated by the F. W. Dodge Company also show the award of 261 contracts, the total value of which was approximately $14,236,300.

Despite the fact that residential construction continues as the dominating factor in local building there has recently been a very decided improvement in the general building outlook and as a result the future is considered bright for all departments of the industry throughout the coming year

Among the 342 operations for which plans were announced during the final week of 1921 were 57 business and commercial projects such as stores, lofts, office buildings, banks, commercial garages, etc., $1,420,500; 10 educational buildings, $1,247,000; 1 hospital, $7,500; 10 factory and industrial buildings, $568,000; 8 public works and public utilities, $87,000; 7 religious and memorial buildings, $391,000; 242 residential projects such as apartments, flats and tenements and one and two-family dwellings, $9,360,000 and 7 social and recreational buildings, $292,000.

The list of 261 projects for which contracts were awarded during the last week of 1921 included 36 business buildings of various types, $1,080,500; 11 educational projects, $1,122,800; 10 factory and industrial buildings, $597,000; 2 military and naval structures, $15,000; 1 public building, $700,000; 5 public works and public utilities, $170,500; 1 religious edifice, $13,000; 192 residential buildings, $10,413,500, and 3 social and recreational projects, $124,000.

Principles for Standard Contract Approved

General principles for the formulation of one standard form of contract, to supplant the 200 various styles of contract now in common use, and which can be made universally practical for all branches of the construction industry, were approved at the final session of the recent joint conference of engineers, architects and contractors at the Department of Commerce.

Gen. R. C. Marshall, Jr., presented a plan for this standard form and a list of subjects which would cover ground common to all construction projects.

A sub-committee consisting of Gen. Marshall for the Associated General Contractors of America; W. S. Parker, for the American Institute of Architects, and W. D. Faucette, of the American Railway Engineering Association, was appointed to write out the first tentative draft of the standard form and submit it for correction and approval to the full conference at its next meeting, the last of January.

A list of over 200 different forms of construction contracts, which now are in general use and which always have been the source of endless litigation, were placed in evidence, and it was found that two-thirds of all the clauses they set forth could be condensed within the scope of the proposed "agreement." Such a simplification of contracts has been much discussed, but never attempted before. The conference plans to devise an addenda of special conditions for each industry, to be attached to the standard contract form.

Honors for Downtown Buildings.

The Downtown League, through its committee, consisting of J. Louis Schaefer, Richard S. Elliott and Charles F. Noyes, recently awarded to the Lawyers Mortgage Company first honors for constructing in 1921 the most representative and best downtown office building; to the International Mercantile Marine Company the first award for an altered building, and this award covered their beautiful building at 1 Broadway, formerly known as the "Washington Building."

The second award for reconstruction was made to Errett, the Lily Cup man, for the alteration of an unattractive saloon and tenement property at the northwest corner of Fulton and Water streets into a clean, little office building, adding dignity to the neighborhood.

In awarding first honors to the Lawyers Mortgage Company consideration was given to the exceedingly artistic lines and the fact that this operation probably more typically amplifies the buy-for-occupancy movement and the movement to hold property for such purposes in the downtown district than any other building.

CURRENT BUILDING OPERATIONS

WHILE important developments in the building situation have been lacking, the first week of 1922 has ended with a feeling throughout the industry that the weeks to come will be far different from those of last year, when the future was clouded with doubt as to what was to come. For the most part, the local building industry is now optimistic, as the improvement in construction has been marked during the past three or four months and as there is a vast amount of new building being planned the future is promising.

Although there is a possibility that residential construction will show somewhat of a falling off during the coming building season, there is now almost every assurance that an increase in commercial and industrial work will more than make up for the loss. Reports from architects and engineers indicate a slow but steady improvement in the general building situation.

An early settlement of the wage scale controversy would do more to improve the building outlook than any other single factor, but it is likely that it will be at least March 1 before a new agreement is consummated.

Common Brick.—The combination of holidays and unusually cold weather has resulted in greatly curtailed activity in the New York wholesale market for common brick. Buying was relatively light as compared with the average weekly sales for the previous weeks, but the business of the week was fair when the business of last year at this time is considered. Inquiry is good, however, and indicative of an active brick market throughout the remaining winter and early spring. Because the Hudson River is ice-bound north off Newburgh Bay the arrivals this week were very light. Only five barge loads were docked in New York, and these all were from the Haverstraw district. Common brick arrivals from Hudson River points are likely to be negligible until the ice breaks up, but there is an ample supply in the market and in the yards of the dealers to supply all immediate requirements. Common brick prices are unchanged, with the range from $14 to $14.50 a thousand to dealers in cargo lots, according to quality.

Summary.—Transactions in the North River brick market for the week ending Thursday, January 5, 1922. Condition of market: Demand light; prices firm and unchanged. Quotations: Hudson Rivers, $14 to $14.50 a thousand to dealers in cargo lots alongside dock. Number of cargoes arrived, 5; sales, 16. Distribution: Manhattan, 5; Bronx, 1; Brooklyn, 8; New Jersey, 1; Flushing, 1. Remaining unsold in the New York wholesale market, 34.

Builders' Hardware.—There is every promise of long continued activity in this line, as building prospects are excellent. There are still many operations in the final stages of completion and plans now in preparation indicate one of the most active building seasons soon to start. Hardware prices are quite steady, but as a number of the leading manufacturers now have their plants on a full production basis, it is possible that some further reductions may be announced during the next month or so.

Reinforcing Bars.—The new year opened with demand extremely light, but a fair outlook for further business. The general building situation is showing steady improvement which will naturally be shortly reflected in all material requirements. Plans now on the boards indicate considerable new industrial construction to be undertaken this year. Prices are fairly steady.

Structural Steel.—Although actual bookings have been light the general tone of the local market for fabricated structural steel is good because of the large amount of high class business that is scheduled to be released very soon. Several very important building projects have been placed under contract during the past week and others are pending. In all, their steel requirements will amount to a most satisfactory tonnage. There was a slow but very consistent improvement in the fabricated steel business throughout the latter half of 1921, and there is now every prospect of a continued improvement in the demand that will shortly bring this industry back to its normal tonnage basis. There has lately been some evidence of a slight weakening in shape prices, but with a jump in demand that is bound to come upon the release of the tonnages now pending, it is likely that this tendency will be arrested. Structural steel, fabricated and erected in commercial buildings, is now generally quoted at $62 to $65 per ton, according to type of operation.

Cast Iron Pipe.—The new year opened with conditions fairly satisfactory as far as manufacturers of this commodity are concerned. The majority of the local plants are producing at approximately seventy-five per cent. of capacity, whereas one year ago but one or two plants had orders on hand that kept their production at more than twenty-five per cent. of capacity. Last year at this time there was but little new business in sight, but for the coming months excellent business is predicted, as several important municipal orders are pending and it is quite certain that private buyers will come into the market within the next few weeks with orders that will involve a relatively large total tonnage. According to recent orders for deliveries during the next two months or so buyers of pipe are not anticipating any important drop in prices. As a matter of fact the price situation is remarkably firm, with New York quotations as follows: 6 in. and larger, $47.30 per net ton; 4 in. and 5 in., $52.30; 3 in., $62.30, with Class A and gas pipe $4 extra per ton.

Electrical Supplies.—It will be somewhat difficult to describe the electrical supply market situation until after the inventory season is past and contractors and dealers begin to buy again for stock. Consumption demand is steady and good and in view of the amount of active and prospective building it is likely to improve as the year goes on. Demand for wiring materials is particularly good at present and in general the outlook for this industry is bright. Prices are steady and no changes of importance have been reported during the past week, but there are some who anticipate a further favorable revision in discounts at an early date.

Window Glass.—Demand continues strong, and there is every prospect of an increase in the consumption requirements because of the large amount of new construction now scheduled for an early start. Although it is not anticipated that the house building program of 1922 will be quite as extensive as it was last year, it still will involve a tremendous total outlay and there is a vast volume of non-residential building now projected that will make up for any drop in the former class. At present glass prices are steady and no changes are anticipated before February 1.

Nails.—No changes of consequence have occurred in the local nail market during the past week. Demand is fair and inquiries denote a continuation of fairly active business. Stocks are adequate and prices firm and practically unchanged. New York quotations are as follows: $3.50 to $3.70 base, per keg for wire nails and $4.25 to $4.45 base, per keg, for cut nails.

Board of Standards and Appeals as listed in the Calendar.

All hearings are held in Room 919, Municipal Building, Manhattan.

NOTICE TO APPELLANTS OR PETITIONERS.

At the time of filing an application the appellant or petitioner shall file with the papers a signed notice of appeal addressed to the administrative official (either superintendent of buildings or fire commissioner), and attach thereto a duplicate set of the plans which he submits to this board in support of his application.

The notice of appeal addressed to the administrative official will at once be forwarded to him from this office; and the applicant will not be required to give any other notice to that official.

Petitioners are advised that their plans should show the points of the compass. Frequently petitions will refer to the "north side" of a building, while on the plans filed with the petition there is nothing to indicate which is the north side.

Hearings will be simplified and the time of petitioners and of the board will be saved by attention to this matter.

Getting Set for 1922!

1922 is going to be a fine year for business. If we all think so, say so, and ACT so, we can make it so. It is encouraging to see how many far-sighted, long-headed business men have already drafted their plans for an intensive advertising campaign—they are getting set for 1922 and at the crack of the pistol will be off to a lead that their less aggressive competitors can never wear down. And you—YOUR schedule, like theirs, must surely include

Conflicting Views as to Housing Situation

What are the real facts about the housing situation here in New York at the opening of the year 1922? Is the shortage in living quarters as great as when the Emergency Rent Laws were passed sixteen months ago? Does a crisis still exist which is so serious as to warrant the Lockwood Committee in urging the new Legislature to extend these Emergency Rent Laws for another year?

At recent hearings before the Lockwood Committee its counsel, Mr. Untermeyer, brought out testimony from several witnesses which resulted in big headlines in the newspapers declaring "House Famine Called Worst in City's History," "Housing Shortage as Bad Now as Ever," and other headlines somewhat less disconcerting, the whole exhibit being finished off with the statement "Lockwood Committee Fails to See Where Crisis Has Passed."

As against these views of the present situation, no publicity was accorded the statement submitted to the committee by Mr. Charles G. Edwards, President of the Real Estate Board of New York, in which he declared "The allegation that there is a housing shortage of 70,000 living quarters in the City of New York at this time is utterly without foundation of fact."

It is clearly evident from the foregoing that a wide difference of opinion exists as to the present housing shortage in the metropolis. Either some of the Lockwood Committee witnesses who get big headlines in the daily papers are in error, or else the leaders of the Real Estate Board of New York, whose statements do not get similar headline treatment, presumably because they are less sensational, are in error. If the desire is to get all the facts, surely the statements and views of such men as Mr. Edwards are entitled to as much consideration and as much publicity as the more sensational statements of the "crisis" witnesses. The public cannot determine whether or not a crisis still exists, and neither can the Lockwood Committee nor the Legislature determine that point, unless all of the facts are placed before them and given consideration in exact proportion to their relative merits.

In order that the pertinent and convincing facts assembled by President Edwards may be fully read and discussed, the RECORD AND GUIDE prints elsewhere in this issue the complete text of the statement which the Lockwood Committee declined to accept as testimony, but which its counsel said would have the consideration of the committee. The "crisis" testimony, of course, already had gone into the committee's records.

The most reliable information the RECORD AND GUIDE has been able to gather shows conclusively that the housing shortage is not nearly so serious today as it was when the Emergency Rent Laws were enacted. It is true, as President Edwards pointed out in his statement, that "overcrowding and congestion of today exists among the same classes of people and for the same reason as have obtained for years in this and every other large city." Mr. Edwards' declaration that "housing conditions in New York City have not impaired and do not imperil the public health" must be logically sound—otherwise no reliance can be placed in Commissioner Copeland's statement that New York is the healthiest city in the world. These are only two vital aspects of the situation which Mr. Edwards covered in his statement. He brought out many other pertinent points, one of which is that if the emergency actually is greater today than it was when the Emergency Rent Laws were enacted that in itself proves the emergency laws have not provided a remedy and some other remedy must be found.

Construction Outlook for 1922 Good

When all of the factors are taken into consideration 1921 was anything but a bad year for the building industry, after all. True, there were periods of considerable weakness, and in many ways conditions could have been more favorable, but when the results of the past twelve months are viewed in retrospect the only fair conclusion is that the year was a period of definite progress and achievement in construction.

There is no fact of greater significance for its influence upon the final results of the year than the manner in which the volume of building and engineering commitments steadily increased, the record of each month surpassing that of the previous one, until the totals of the closing month established an unusually high record.

The fine showing made by the December, 1921 building totals for the entire country, as indicated by the figures tabulated by the F. W. Dodge Company, following the excellent records of the four previous months, is an added confirmation of the nearness of the long-predicted revival in the building industry. Every present indication is that 1922 will witness a measurably greater volume of construction activity than that embodied in the ambitious program of the year recently closed.

Prominent among the factors favorable to a record building year in 1922 are the still unsatisfied demands for buildings of almost every type and in practically every community, and the steadily increasing amount of money available for investment in new construction projects. Lack of available funds has been one of the chief deterrents to building progress during the post-war years, but it is quite apparent now that investors are looking with greater favor upon investments in real estate and buildings. With sufficient money assured one of the most serious of the building retardants will have been eliminated.

Although there is every likelihood that residential construction will continue to predominate through the coming building season, because there is still a national shortage of living accommodations, the records of the past few months show conclusively that the percentage of work of this character will be considerably lower than it was last year and in closer contact to a normal ratio. According to the plans already announced and an analysis of the recent commitments, the coming months will witness a marked improvement in the volume of commercial and industrial construction, the latter, however, largely dependent upon a general business revival.

Taken as a whole there is every reason for the building industry to be optimistic regarding its prospects for the coming months. There is a vast amount of contemplated construction now being planned which, when added to the operations now estimating or actually under contract, will insure ample work for all trades during the coming season. The building material markets are fairly well stabilized as to prices and essential basic materials are easily available in amounts sufficient to meet all requirements. Money is easier and there is a firm desire to start operations on the part of a host of prospective builders. The only factor that remains uncertain at present is building labor, and there is good reason to anticipate that this problem will be settled within a short time to the entire satisfaction of all interested in the building industry.

Harry Hall Delivers First 1922 Y. M. C. A. Real Estate Lecture

THE first lecture of the season of 1922, under the auspices of the Real Estate Class of the West Side Y. M. C. A., was delivered Tuesday evening by Harry Hall, a member of the well-known real estate firm of William A. White & Sons. A distinctive feature of the meeting was the keen human interest shown in the subject discussed. Entitled "As New York Grows," Mr. Hall's address was a survey of the development of the metropolis during the last century. The attendance was the largest that has, so far, appeared to hear a lecture about real estate. Mr. Hall answered a variety of questions about real estate that were asked him by members of the class. The speaker was much impressed by the intelligent interest shown in the subject.

William C. Demorest, who introduced Mr. Hall, laid stress on the fact that the real estate business in this city has become a profession that required as honorable and confidential a relation as exists between lawyer and client.

Mr. Hall gave an interesting sketch of the growth of the city from its evacuation by the British in 1783 up to 1900, comparing its growth to that of a human body, which when born into the world is a small but complete organism, with veins, arteries, heart and organs, and a suitable frame covered with flesh which as it grows expands in all its parts.

So New York's framework may be said to consist of Broadway as its backbone, the main cross streets as its ribs, with the transportation lines its arteries, the business districts and markets its digestive organs, the banking system its heart and veins and its residences its flesh, all of which have expanded consistently to meet the city's growing population, fed by its increasing commerce.

He drew a picture of the little town of 10,000 people which the end of the Revolution found wrecked by fire, with ruined trade and an empty treasury, and traced its gradual development with picturesque descriptions of its life and appearance at different periods, emphasizing especially the important events, which induced its phenomenal growth, which he said were the development of its shipping interests in the early days of the century, the invention of the steamboat in 1807, the opening of the Erie Canal in 1825, the coming of the railroads in the thirties which made possible the opening of unoccupied areas of the continent, the introduction of the Croton Water System in 1842, the invention of the telegraph in 1846, the opening of the Elevated Railroads in 1880, the invention of the telephone, the introduction of electric lights at about the same time and finally the adaptation of steel to building construction in 1884.

Mr. Hall gave some interesting reminiscences of his own early recollections of New York in 1880 and traced the northward movement of the social centre, retail stores, hotels and theatres as the town grew in size.

He called attention to the fact that in 1900 there was no business centre north of Madison Square, no Public Library, Pennsylvania Terminal or Grand Central development, no subway, tubes, "movies," and very few automobiles. That the present Equitable Building, the Woolworth, Bankers Trust and City Investing buildings were not then in existence and stated that since 1890 practically the entire financial district had been rebuilt.

Following his simile of a human person he stated his belief that the city had just about arrived at early manhood and that the next twenty-five years would see still greater and more important development than the past quarter century.

He ended with a comparative example of values at different periods in various parts of the town, such as Wall street, Fifth avenue and Times Square, showing among other items that John Jacob Astor bought the Eden Farm about 1840 for $34,000 and that the lease of the Hotel Astor, occupying only a small corner of the farm, had recently been renewed for twenty years at an annual rental of $500,000.

At the close of the lecture the meeting was thrown open for informal discussion in which many of the audience participated.

Month-to-Month Tenants Get Thirty Days' Notice

THE Appellate Term of the Supreme Court, Brooklyn, has rendered a decision that a month-to-month tenant must get thirty days' notice from the landlord of intention to terminate tenancy, and that the landlord may not sue the tenant for possession of the premises unless the notice has been given.

The opinion was written by Justice Charles Kelby, and concurred in by Justices Cropsey and Lazansky. The case was appealed from the Municipal Court, in which Richmond Weed brought an action to recover $721 from his tenant, Matthew W. Carswell of 61 Sanford avenue, Flushing.

"The original agreement or lease having expired, the tenant holds over by force of the statute in the absence of any new agreement," says the decision. "Even if the tenant makes a new agreement he can attack the rent reserved as unjust and unreasonable on the first day that the rent accrues. Under these circumstances there is no necessity of the landlord notifying the tenant that after the expiration of his term use and occupancy will be at an increased rate.

"In the case of tenancies from month to month, or monthly tenancies, a different rule applies. Under the terms of Chapter 209, Laws of 1920, such a tenant, in the absence of service of the notice to quit therein provided for has the right to occupy the premises for another month at the same rent. This statute has not been repealed.

"Summary proceedings to recover real property under Chapter 942, Laws of 1920, must still be predicated upon this statutory notice to quit. If, therefore, a landlord wishes to sue a monthly tenant or a tenant from month to month for use and occupation, or upon an implied agreement for an increased rental, he must serve the tenant with a thirty days' notice, stating that he elects to terminate the tenancy. In the absence of such notice the landlord can recover from the tenant only the former monthly rent agreed upon.

"While Chapter 209, Laws of 1920, does not in terms provide what we have above stated, we believe that must necessarily be its meaning and effect. That statute clearly-intended to prevent a tenant from being dispossessed unless he had received at least thirty days' notice of the termination of his existing agreement.

"If, without having given such notice, the landlord at the end of any month could claim that the reasonable rental value was greater than the amount heretofore paid and could sue the tenant therefor, he would, if successful, obtain a judgment against the tenant under which the latter could be dispossessed unless he paid the judgment within five days. In this way the landlord might dispossess his tenant without having given him any notice. This would virtually nullify the provision of Chapter 209 of the Laws of 1920."

Realty Board Holds Housing Emergency Has Passed

President Edwards Submits Memorandum to Lockwood Committee Which Reveals Marked Improvement in Situation, Despite Testimony to the Contrary

THE question of whether the emergency rent laws, which expire on November 1, next, should be extended for another year was taken up by the Joint Legislative Committee on Housing, of which Senator Charles C. Lockwood is chairman, at the hearing on Thursday, January 6. City officials and representatives of the Real Estate Board and other realty interests were called as witnesses to testify as to housing conditions at the present time. The testimony of the city officials as brought out by Samuel Untermeyer, counsel to the Committee, indicated that the emergency is as acute as a year ago and that there is a shortage of low-priced apartments. The realty experts, on the other hand, contended that until a survey of housing conditions was made by competent authorities it would be impossible to decide whether the extension of the emergency rent laws and of tax exemption was necessary.

This suggestion was first made by Charles G. Edwards, president of the Real Estate Board, who testified that in the opinion of that organization the emergency under which the rent laws were enacted no longer existed, but he promised if a survey should prove otherwise that the organization of which he is head would make no objection to the extension of the laws for another year. At a subsequent hearing of the Committee on last Tuesday when Mr. Edwards was recalled to the stand, he presented a memorandum respecting the housing situation, which is given in full below, stating that it was the primary purpose of the memorandum to justify the request of the Board for a full and impartial investigation of the present housing situation with the view of determining

1. Whether a general housing shortage exists or whether the shortage is limited to housing for particular classes of our population?

2. Whether or not the existing rent laws have operated to discourage the construction of multi-family buildings, particularly of those within the means of mechanics, laborers and other wage-earners?

3. Whether or not the existing rent laws should be continued or should be replaced by a re-enactment of the so-called "April Laws," perfected by the remedying of the defects therein indicated by Justice Spiegelberg, on lines suggested by the Real Estate Board of New York in September, 1920. The main purpose of the proposed change being to relieve the municipal courts of the ever-rising flood of "jury" cases.

Mr. Untermeyer, after glancing briefly at the memorandum, said he would not accept it for the record as testimony but told Mr. Edwards it would be considered by the committee as a brief.

Mr. Edwards' memorandum follows:

The Real Estate Board of New York respectfully asserts:

1. That the report of the Joint Legislative Housing Committee, made to the Legislature on September 20, 1920, expressly declared the non-existence of the particular form of emergency urged by the Governor and accepted by the Legislature as necessitating the enactment of the Housing Laws at the extraordinary legislative session of September, 1920.

This alleged emergency was that from 60,000 to 100,000 families would be thrown out upon the streets of New York City on October 1, 1920, unless, meanwhile, the Legislature intervened to prevent it.

No such emergency existed or could have existed in September, 1920, for, at that time, there was upon the statute books a series of laws enacted at the regular session of 1920 (Chaps. 130, 131, 135-139, L. 1920) which was fully adequate to prevent any such general flood of evictions on October 1, 1920, as was prophesied by the promoters of the alleged "public emergency."

Upon this point, at page 7 of the printed report of the Joint Legislative Housing Committee to the Legislature, dated September 20, 1920, there is this declaration: "THE 1920 RENT LAWS WERE GENERALLY SUCCESSFUL IN PREVENTING EVICTIONS, BUT PARTIALLY FAILED TO STOP EXORBITANT INCREASES OF RENT."

In a public address delivered at the Fort Washington Democratic Club in New York City on October 14, 1920, Justice Frederick Spiegelberg, of the Municipal Court, said:

"I told the members of the Legislative Committee in August, and I have repeated it ever since privately and in public, that the old laws should continue, with certain amendments of a minor character. But the spectre of October 1 arose before the Legislature. They were in a panic. They meant well, but they were in a panic and nothing could stop them. The newspapers took the matter up. Lurid statements were made about one hundred thousand dispossession proceedings having been started on October 1. How they could have known I do not know, because a dispossession proceeding cannot start in advance of October 1. October 1 must pass before the proceeding is to be taken. But they were in a panic, and, strange to say, the panic did not start so much among the members of the Legislature from this borough, not even from the Bronx, but from Brooklyn."

The Real Estate Board of New York has a full stenographic report of Justice Spiegelberg's address and insists that he be called as a witness by the Joint Legislative Housing Committee to verify or deny the statements herein quoted from his said address.

Furthermore, it is also stated in the same report of the Joint Legislative Committee on Housing (p. 6) as follows:

"During the past year the calendars of Municipal Courts of New York City have been so congested with rent cases that other business has been deferred."

But this condition operated to check evictions rather than to promote them, since it delayed the obtaining of final orders of dispossession, and accordingly, the application for and granting of stays of such orders; meanwhile, of course, the tenants continued in their occupancy undisturbed. Under these circumstances, the service of even 60,000 notices requiring tenants to quit on October 1, 1920, could not possibly have operated to create an emergency. No tenant could have been evicted on October 1, 1920, on a notice to quit on that date, because the notice was merely the first step in a legal proceeding that would necessarily have been delayed, on account of the congestion in Municipal Courts, and the final order in which could have been judicially stayed for a further period of twelve months.

On Sunday, September 26, 1920, "The World," at p. 18, printed a dispatch from its Albany correspondent which contains the following illuminating paragraph:

"Much was said of the session concerning the 'October 1 crisis.' A person not familiar with the situation would have thought that unless the laws were passed before September 30, half the tenants in New York City would have found themselves in the streets along with their goods and chattels. This was merely a talking point. In the vernacular of the business world, the legislative leaders had something to 'sell' and they took this way of disposing of it. As a matter of fact, the old laws fully protected the tenants during the month of October. What was accomplished was to free the courts of thousands of dispossession cases which the Justices had authority to stay and quiet the nerves of the tenants."

In the interest of the truth, concerning the alleged "emergency" that moved the Legislature at its extraordinary session of 1920, the Real Estate Board of New York submits that the publisher of "The World" should be required to disclose the name of the correspondent who wrote the paragraph above quoted and that he be subpoenaed to appear before the Joint Legislative Housing Committee and be examined as to the truth or falsity of the assertions contained in said paragraph. Let us see whether or not the alleged "emergency" was merely a "talking point of legislative leaders who had 'something to sell.'"

The existing Landlord and Tenant Laws have produced the present intolerable condition of congestion and oppression in the Municipal Courts by transferring the function of ascertaining what is a reasonable rent from the Municipal Court Justices to Municipal Court juries, composed usually of tenants alone.

Under Chapter 137 of the Laws of 1920, the determination of the amount to be paid for use and occupation by a hold-over tenant was lodged in the discretion of the trial justice, who might grant a stay of dispossession for a year, subject to the payment of the adjudged rental value of the demised premises for such a period. This operated to stabilize the holdover's tenancy, both as to its term and the return to the landlord. Had the law been efficiently and uniformly administered by the Municipal Court Justices, it would have operated satisfactorily to all concerned. But, as stated by Justice Spiegelberg, in his address before the Fort Washington Democratic Club on October 14, 1920:

"The grave defect and the one grave defect in the April hold-over law was this: These laws had to be administered by individuals. A person when he becomes a judge does not cease to be a human being fortunately, and these laws were administered differently by some and differently by others. Some of the judges were very strict and in my judgment very narrow-minded. Notwithstanding the fact that the law was primarily to try to continue the tenant in his home, with adequate compensation to the landlord, some of the judges limited the stay to thirty days and that was the end of it. They played directly into the hands of the very man we all condemn, whether they are friends of the landlords or friends of the tenants. I do not criticize these judges. They are perfectly conscientious. Some of them I have recently talked to. They are personal friends of mine and they are very high-minded men. They are very conscientious, but they took a view of these laws which to me was absolutely false and wrong."

Although it was quite feasible to remedy the defect in the law indicated by Justice Spiegelberg, the Legislature in its panic at the extraordinary session of 1920 substituted therefor a series of enactments that made it plain that the real emergency actuating the lawmakers was that the Municipal Justices would not enforce the April laws in a uniform and reasonable manner. These new laws deprive the Justices of the discretionary power to grant stays in summary proceedings and created a statutory stay of all such proceedings, with a few specified exceptions, until November 1, 1922, and made it possible for the tenant in every action for rent or rental value to demand a jury trial upon the issue of the reasonableness of the rent or rental value demanded and every other issue of fact involved in a landlord-and-tenant controversy. It is this change in the form of procedure in landlord-and-tenant litigations which has choked the machinery of the Municipal Courts with an impossible grist of "jury" cases. The Real Estate Board of New York insists that Justices of the Municipal Court, and particularly Justices Levy, Spiegelberg, Davies, Genung and Law, be examined by the Joint Legislative Housing Committee, to determine whether or not a return to the procedure that obtained under the April laws is not preferable to the existing state of congestion and confusion in their courts and in the Appellate Terms of the Supreme Court of the First and Second Departments.

Upon this point, the Real Estate Board of New York calls particular attention to the statement of Assemblyman Joseph V. McKee, printed in "The World" of September 8, 1921, under the title "Rent Law Justice of Kinds as Many as the Justices." In this statement, the Assemblyman is quoted as follows:

"Assemblyman Joseph V. McKee, attorney for the association, said yesterday he personally handled a case in which three sets of tenants living in the same house received from three judges decisions that ranged from no increase at all to $15. In each case, the rooms had originally rented for $24." Speaking of the Justices in the Bronx, Mr. McKee said: "No two judges try their cases alike. One makes no allowance for depreciation; another requires the landlord to submit proof of his depreciation, while a third takes an arbitrary two per cent. One Judge requires the landlord to put in proof of expenses for repairs. Another won't receive such proof in the bill of particulars and arbitrarily allows 10 per cent. of the rentals."

2. The allegation that there is a housing shortage of 70,000 living quarters in the City of New York at this time is utterly without foundation of fact.

It is a matter of general knowledge that during the period between 1908 and 1916, inclusive, there was a heavy over-production of moderately-priced apartments, which frequently resulted in liberal concessions of free rent to new tenants therein. There was certainly no unusual housing shortage in the City of New York in 1916, as has been established by the figures of Superintendents of Buildings. Since 1917, as testified by the Tenement House Commissioner on January 5, 1922, before the Joint Legislative Housing Committee, apartments for 29,120 families have been produced in new multi-family houses, as follows:

1917	14,241 apartments
1918	2,706 apartments
1919	1,624 apartments
1920	4,822 apartments
1921	5,677 apartments

These additions provided living quarters for approximately 145,600 persons. But this is not all. During 1921, Commissioner Mann testified, accommodations for about 14,000 families, or 70,000 persons, were also added to the local housing supply by the construction of one and two-family houses under the stimulus of the new tax exemption law. The aggregate of these sources of new housing, added since 1917, was 43,100 apartments, containing provision for approximately 215,000 persons. But as shown by the World Almanac for 1922, p. 562, the population of New York City increased during that period by only 14,367 persons; the population for 1921 (July 1) being stated by said authority as 5,751,859 as against 5,737,492 in 1917 (July 1).

On the question of addition to housing in 1920 and 1921, the F. W. Dodge Company is quoted, in the "New York Times," of Sunday, January 8, 1922, as stating that New York City carried through a program of building involving contracts awarded to the amount of $394,764,400, and that residential construction accounted for two-thirds of this, or for $262,184,400. The statement in full is as follows:

"RECORD CONSTRUCTION IN NEW YORK CITY LAST YEAR. In 1921 New York City carried through the largest construction program on record for many years, according to F. W. Dodge Company. The total amount of contracts awarded during the year was $394,764,400. This figure is 25 per cent greater than the total for 1920, which was $315,048,650; it was also 41 per cent. greater than the total for 1919, which was $279,478,200. The actual volume of construction, distinguished from the dollar cost, was very considerably greater in 1921 than in either of the two previous years. Residential construction, greatly stimulated by the tax exemption act, has been largely responsible for this record volume of building. This class of construction accounted for $262,184,400, or exactly two-thirds of the total.

In 1921 there was 56,356,700 square feet of residential floor space contracted for, compared with 15,142,000 square feet in 1920, and 38,179,500 square feet in 1919.

"Second in importance to residential construction in 1921 was the construction of commercial building, which accounted for $70,062,200, or 19 per cent. of the year's total. Although this was considerably less than the 1920 volume of construction of this class, it was greater than the corresponding amount in 1919."

In conclusion upon this point, the Real Estate Board of New York calls attention to the fact that Justice Spiegelberg of the Municipal Court is thus quoted in an article entitled "Re-enactment of Rent Laws for one or two years favored by more New York Judges," printed in the final edition of the "Evening World" of January 6, 1922: "The housing shortage has been grossly exaggerated. In fact, it is almost entirely due to sensationalism. The consequence of such misinformation is a panic and a general 'jacking up' of rentals. Because of this state of mind we need the further protection of the rent laws."

In this same article Justice Davies of the Municipal Court is thus quoted: "The difficulty now is not with a shortage of houses but with prices. The exorbitant priced apartment is a drug on the market. There are thousands of them vacant and it may take at least another year or so to bring the owners to reason."

The Real Estate Board of New York insists that the eminent jurists thus quoted be invited to testify before the Joint Legislative Housing Committee, as to the truth or falsity of the statements ascribed to them by "The Evening World."

3. Overcrowding and congestion of today exists among the same classes of people and for the same reasons as have obtained for years in this and every large city.

Overcrowding is urged as a strong reason for rent legislation. Most of us remember the harrowing stories of overcrowding told by the Charity Organization Society in connection with the enactment of the Tenement House Laws in 1901. Then there were thousands of vacant apartments and no talk of "emergency."

In 1906 the Federation of Churches, through its official organ, "Federation," published an article entitled "New York's Populous and Densest Blocks."

This article gave a list of overcrowded blocks. One bounded by West 61st street, Amsterdam avenue, West 62d street and East End avenue, contained 6,173 people. Fifty-one city blocks had each over 3,000 people. The population of these 51 blocks had increased from 132,881 in 1900 (an average of 2,605 to the block) to 177,988 in 1905 (an average of 3,490 to the block). This included many lower east side blocks with populations of between 3,000 and 5,000.

Overcrowding is largely the result of temperament and occurs naturally with certain types of people whether there is a housing shortage or not. Even in the poorer classes of tenements the accommodations are so much better than most of our immigrant population were formerly accustomed to, that they often thrifflily utilize the housing space to the uttermost.

Be this as it may—and every consideration of decency requires the admission that overcrowding is undesirable—it will also be admitted by all fair-minded persons, that what is and always has been a commonplace of life in large cities should not now be exaggerated and paraded before the public as a reason for extending the rent laws.

4. Housing Conditions in New York City have not impaired and do not imperil the public health.

The Commissioner of Health has frequently emphasized the housing shortage in its relation to congestion and to the public health. From his statements, it might be inferred that the alleged housing shortage was seriously menacing the public health.

In the "New York Tribune" of December 2, 1920, the following appeared:

"OVERCROWDING INCREASES DISEASE, SAYS COPELAND.

Health Commissioner Finds Twenty Cities Suffering from Shortage of Dwellings.

Dr. Royal S. Copeland, Health Commissioner, returned yesterday from Detroit, where he presided at a meeting of health officials from twenty cities, having a population of 200,000 or more, which was called at the request of the Senate Committee on Reconstruction. * * * Unsanitary conditions resulted from overcrowding, he said, increasing the infant mortality rate and the danger from tuberculosis, pneumonia and other diseases. Infant mortality was shown to be 50 per cent. higher, he said, in the districts where overcrowding was the worst. * * *

In the "New York Herald" of May 5, 1921, there is reprinted from the Weekly Bulletin of the New York City Department of Health a lengthy article under the caption of "Healthy Babies in New York." From this the following is quoted:

"The infant mortality rate continues to be most encouraging. For the first thirteen weeks of the year, that is, up to the week ending March 26, the infant mortality rate was 80, as against 113 for the corresponding period of last year, a difference of 33 a thousand children born. This infant mortality rate represents a numerical reduction of 1,069 infant deaths from all causes."

In the "New York Times" of September 11, 1921, the following statements are made in an article headed "East Side District Healthiest in the City":

"Mortality Rate Cut in Half for Section Bounded by Third and Ninth Streets and Avenues A and B."

"Deaths Only 6.44 a 1,000."

"Dr. Copeland Says It Is Due to Observance of Health Department Regulations by Aliens."

Contrary to general belief, the healthiest part of the city is not that section in which wealth has its dwelling. In a report on the general excellent health condition of the city made public yesterday, Dr. William H. Guilfoyle, Registrar of Records of the Health Department, has placed the point of lowest mortality in Sanitary District 26, which constitutes ten square blocks running from Avenue A to Avenue B and extending from Third to Ninth street.

In this section the mortality rate, compared with the city's rate, has been cut in two. The population of the district is 33,373, according to Health Department figures. Many of the residents are foreign born. In this small city, for there are more than 3,000 persons in each block, the mortality rate is 6.44 for each thousand. The city's average mortality rate is 12.93 a thousand. The infant mortality rate in the district is 52 a thousand, and the infant mortality rate for the city is 85 a thousand.

In commenting on the report Health Commissioner Dr. Royal S. Copeland said: "The people in this section have been used to governmental control all their lives in countries where paternalism is conspicuous. The result is when they come here they place themselves under the regulations of the Department of Health, patronize our baby health stations and follow the Board of Health teachings. It is unfortunate that illness among children and a high child mortality rate frequently are found among well-to-do people. It is a sad commentary on our citizenship that too many children coming from so-called good homes are turned over to nursemaids and do not receive personal attention from their mothers so essential to their health. * * *

The following table summarizes the steady decrease in the death rate in New York City from 1918 to 1921 inclusive, during which New York City has established its reputation as "the greatest health resort in the world." The Health Department figures seem to prove not only this, but that there was a perceptible drop in the death rate for the last three months of 1921:

MORTALITY RATE PER 1,000.

For	General	—Mortality Rate Per 1,000—
		Under 5 Years	Under 1 Year
1918	17.88	36.1	92.
1919	13.35	26.6	82.
1920	12.93	30.8	85.
1921 (To Sept. 10).....	11.54	24.	76.
1922 (Estimated year).....	11.17	23.8	71.1

"Greater New York" (the bulletin of the Merchants' Association of New York) under date of January 9, 1922, contains an article entitled "New York City Is the Safest Spot on Earth." The subhead states that this article was prepared by Dr. Royal S. Copeland, Commissioner of Health of New York City.

In this article Dr. Copeland is quoted as saying: "Going back fifty years we find that the general death rate of New York City was twenty-eight per thousand. In 1921 it reached the remarkably low rate of eleven per thousand. Translated into terms of what this means to the community, let me say that the two points by which the death rate was lowered in 1921 over the preceding year, 1920, indicates that more than 10,000 persons are alive and well in New York today who would have died under the conditions of one year ago."

5. High rents are due primarily to high cost of construction.

One phase of the testimony that should have been sufficient to satisfy the Joint Legislative Housing Committee as to the reason for continued high rents was the statement of Building Superintendent Reville of the Bronx that in 1910 20,000 separate apartments were built in the Bronx at a cost of $34,000,000 and that 10,000 were built in 1921 at a cost of $39,000,000. As the file estimate of cost is usually about 10 per cent. under the actual cost, this would mean that an apartment cost to build in 1910, $1,870, and in 1921, $4,290. If there is added to $4,290 the architects' fees, the cost of obtaining money, the cost of the land and incidental expenses, it brings the cost of the apartment to $6,000; on which the landlord, to make 7 per cent. net, must get 16 per cent. This is $960 a year, or $80 a month.

A statement issued by Superintendent of Buildings Miller, of Manhattan, and published in "The World" of January 1, 1922, under the heading "Steady Increase in Average Cost of New Buildings," shows that for all buildings erected in Manhattan from 1902 to 1911, the average cost was $80,000, as against $140,000 between 1912 and 1921.

6. Wages in the building trades are an important factor in the high cost of housing, and are still at war time levels.

The outstanding factor in the high cost of producing housing is the price of labor. Practically since the days of Sam Parks in 1903 the item of wages in the building industry has been upward, reaching the peak during the war, when it touched a point approximately 100 per cent. higher than pre-war rates.

The Real Estate Board of New York does not coincide with the opinion of counsel for the Joint Legislative Housing Committee that the labor unions, merely on request of counsel, will "be good" and cease to carry on the practices which have, as brought out by the committee, increased the cost of housing.

Neither does it believe to be either practically or economically sound, the proposal to continue the existing high schedule of wages with a statement to the unions that this will be continued when efficiency is maintained and withdrawn when it is not. The Real Estate Board of New York sees in this plan nothing but a proposal to insure the continued high cost of housing.

There is available (Handbook of Building Trades Employers' Association of the City of New York for 1921, pages 50 to 55) a statement showing the steadily increasing cost of labor since pre-war times. It is here referred to for the reason that it confirms common observation that one of the main reasons for the continued high cost of construction is the fact that the price of labor in the building industry is still at war time levels.

7. Labor is producing on a lower basis of efficiency than in pre-war times.

It is universally admitted that there is a great loss in the efficiency of labor and it must also be considered that in the boroughs outside of Manhattan in pre-war years a ten hour day was the usual work day.

Some builders state that labor is 50 per cent. under normal, others 40 per cent., and most of them claim, and the testimony before the Joint Legislative Housing Committee bears out the claim, that bonuses in addition to the regular pay must be given. Then there is the constant interference of shop stewards, the frequent calling of strikes, and the vastly increased cost of workmen's compensation insurance.

The Committee has constantly referred to the shortage of low-priced housing as constituting the so-called "emergency." This shortage is a permanent condition because houses renting for less than ten to twelve dollars per room cannot be produced either under existing conditions or those which we are likely to have for some years to come. The average "poor" tenant, however, is better able to pay rentals of ten to twelve dollars per room today than he was able to pay six to eight dollars per room in pre-war times. His wages have increased to a far greater extent than this increase in rentals. Moreover, rentals generally have increased more slowly than any other factor in the cost of living. The statistics of the Department of Labor show this beyond question. In any event, the community must be prepared to pay a fair economic rental for housing—that is, rentals which will provide a return on the investment sufficient to induce enough houses to be built to house the community. If the Joint Legislative Housing Committee intends to endeavor to keep rentals below this level, it will defeat its own object and the housing problem will never be solved.

8. The cost of living has declined from war time levels.

Common observation, supported by published statements on authority, indicate that the cost of living has fallen. The tables published by the Bureau of Labor Statistics in October, 1921, show the following index figures:

100	201.4	131.7	179.7

In the Monthly Review of Credit and Business Conditions in the Second Federal Reserve District by the Federal Reserve Agent, Federal Reserve Bank, New York, January 1, 1922, at page 7, the following statement is made, showing a further decline from .797 above pre-war living costs" * * * While the Statist price index for Great Britain is now only 11 points higher than the Department of Labor index of wholesale prices in the United States, the index for the cost of living in England is 103 points above the 1914 level, while that for the United States is 34 points above it. * * *

9. Operating and fixed costs have increased.

Operating and fixed costs have increased, as well as construction costs. Mortgage money, formerly 4 1-2 to 5 per cent., is now universally 6 per cent.

Wages of all classes of employees in connection with the operation of buildings have increased to 50 to 100 per cent. In addition thereto, the cost of repairs, coal and other supplies have increased in like proportion, to say nothing of the heavy expense of an abnormal number of rent litigations.

The tax rate six years ago was 2 per cent. on approximately on 80 per cent. valuation. Today it is 2.77 on approximately a 100 per cent. valuation. Touching this phase of the housing problem, "The World," on October 27, 1921, printed an article entitled "Higher Tax Rate Clearly Traced in Rent Increases," in which it was stated:

"The average family in New York City, excluding the very poor, who have been affected to a lesser degree, has had from $30 to $200 added to its annual rent bill in the last three years by the increase in taxation.

"Thousands of families four years ago were paying their landlords around $12 a month for the taxes which the latter had to pay. Now they are paying $19 or more a month for the same purposes and are blaming the landlords for raising the rents. * * *

"Interesting is the disclosure that so far as the elevator apartments are concerned, the tax bill has increased faster than have the other expenses of the house. In one house, the taxes in 1918 were 29.9 per cent. of the total expenses; in 1921 they were 32.8 per cent. In another the percentage jumped from 28.8 to 33.1 per cent., while in a third it rose from 27.8 to 34.4 per cent. * * *

The foregoing are the facts upon which the Real Estate Board of New York relies to maintain its contention that an intelligently and impartially conducted investigation by the Joint Legislative Housing Committee will disclose the housing situation as it actually exists. Without the facilities for such comprehensive and official investigation as the Joint Legislative Housing Committee has at its disposal, the Real Estate Board of New York has, at short notice, as indicated in this memorandum, demonstrated the following points:

- I. That the drastic rent laws of September, 1920, were enacted under a misapprehension of the facts and because of an atmosphere of hysteria and panic created by lurid misstatements of the actual conditions; and that congestion in the Municipal Courts is due entirely to the rent laws and particularly those of September, 1920.
- II. That, contrary to the impression created by the conduct of the investigation on January 5, 1922, and the published accounts of that investigation, no such emergency or unusual shortage of housing exists now as the public has been led to believe.
- III. That congestion and overcrowding have existed in New York City to a marked degree when there was a surplus of housing.
- IV. That the attempt to prove that the public health suffers, because of congestion on account of the alleged shortage, does not harmonize with the published statements of the Health Commissioner.
- V. That, while housing is being produced at an almost unprecedented rate, the cost of housing is still at least twice pre-war cost; and that no matter how much housing is produced at the present cost, it cannot benefit the average renter. The chief items of cost, labor and material, must come down before housing rented at $6 to $10 per room, or prices the masses can afford to pay, can be produced.
- VI. That the one item of cost which remains at war time levels is the item of labor.
- VII. That labor is not producing on as effective a basis as in pre-war times.
- VIII. That the cost of living has fallen very considerably.
- IX. That operating, maintenance and fixed expenses are abnormally high.

The Real Estate Board of New York appreciates the fact that these conclusions reflect a very serious condition. But it attributes them, as do all thinking persons, to a number of abnormal factors, all of them in conflict with economic law.

The Real Estate Board of New York believes that the rent laws are largely responsible for the situation, because they have resulted in a method of administration which has been discouraging to owners, and in Court decisions which are at wide variance with established understanding of constitutional rights, because they have resulted in the intimidation of owners and investors, and the frightening away of capital; and because they have for these and other reasons, tended to prolong the period of high rents.

In these circumstances the Real Estate Board of New York does not believe that the rent laws should be extended or that conditions warrant their extension beyond the time fixed by the Legislature of 1921 for their expiration.

The rent laws do not expire until November 1, 1922, nearly a year hence. The Real Estate Board of New York fails entirely to see how the Legislature can honestly be asked to legislate in January, on the pretext that there will be an emergency in November. Nor does the Real Estate Board of New York see, in view of the facts on increased housing production here submitted, how the Legislature can, with any regard for the obvious facts in the case, enact such legislation if it is asked to do so.

If the Joint Legislative Housing Committee intends to recommend to the Legislature that the laws be extended, and if the Legislature acquiesces in this recommendation, the Real Estate Board of New York requests that the Committee give due consideration to the statement of its Counsel when it was said, that the emergency is greater today than it was when the laws were enacted, proving clearly that the present laws have not provided the remedy and that some other remedy must be found.

The Real Estate Board also reaffirms its belief, as expressed to the Joint Legislative Housing Committee in a resolution dated November 9, 1920, that legislation providing for incorporation and state supervision of labor unions is an essential factor in the situation and should be presented to the Legislature just convened.

Following Mr. Edwards on the stand Mr. Untermeyer called Prof. Samuel McCune Lindsey of Columbia University, who testified he had prepared an analysis of facts bearing on the housing situation which had been attached to the brief of the lawyers who were engaged in appealing to the United States Supreme Court the case involving the constitutionality of the Emergency Rent Laws, the purpose of the analysis being to show that there is no evidence to prove there ever was a shortage of 70,000 apartments in this city but that, using the same figures from which such a deduction had been made a surplus of 30,000 apartments was indicated.

Mr. Untermeyer demanded to know how Prof. Lindsey reached the conclusion that there was a surplus of 30,000 instead of a shortage of 70,000 apartments. The witness referred to his reasons in his pamphlet.

Patrick J. Reville, Superintendent of Building of Bronx Borough, testified that while there had been considerable construction of apartments renting from $18 to $25 a room nothing was being built for the families which could pay half that amount.

"Housing conditions for workingmen are becoming desperate, and we are getting no relief for these people," was Mr. Reville's statement.

Dr. Annie S. Daniel testified about the overcrowded conditions on the East Side in the section between Houston and Fourteenth streets from Third avenue to the East River, which has for many years been notorious for congestion of population.

Tenement House Commissioner Mann declared the housing shortage is more acute than ever. In February, 1921, he testified vacant apartments fit for occupancy aggregated one-fifth of one per cent. of the total number in the city, but in a census just completed the vacancies showed only one-tenth of one per cent. Commissioner Mann said that up to 1917 there were built annually in this city 25,000 apartments. Since that year 29,120 apartments have been built. He gave the following figures.

1918	95	2,706
1919	95	1,624
1920	237	4,822
1921 (to Dec. 15).....	264	5,667

"There is a shortage of 80,000 apartments right now," he declared, "as against 70,000 last year. Were that made up, we ought to have new buildings each year with from 20,000 to 25,000 apartments."

Health Commissioner Copeland testified there was danger from plague because of the overcrowding of tenements.

Judge Levy said that the rent laws should be extended, and asserted that the poor tenants of the East Side, of Brownsville, Harlem and the Bronx had been the target to a far greater extent of the profiteers than the Riverside Drive dwellers, who could better afford to take care of their interests.

William H. Dolson, secretary of the Real Estate Board, urged that a written agreement be binding on both landlord and tenant, and that the latter be required to pay the rent which he may agree to pay in a lease. The law now permits the tenant to question the rent, even though he may sign the lease. Mr. Dolson admitted to Mr. Untermeyer that this would eliminate new tenants from protection under the rent laws.

Stanley Isaacs, member of the Law Committee of the Real Estate Board, told the committee there was urgent need for official arbitration tribunals to decrease the congestion of rent cases in the courts.

Rudolph P. Miller, Superintendent of Buildings of Manhattan, testified he regarded the emergency on the increase in the low-priced apartments. From 1910 to 1916 there were built or projected in Manhattan, 1,251 tenements, he said, and only 207 built or projected from 1916 to 1921. In the Bronx, tenement houses to accommodate 17,360 families have been erected in the last five years. In the preceding five years accommodations for 72,746 were erected.

Victor M. Earle, who testified on January 6, was recalled last Tuesday and asked if he had any suggestions for amendment of the rent laws. He made the following—that a written lease made subsequent to the amendments should be valid and not within the protection of the rent laws; that a tenant who holds over beyond the expiration of his lease should be held to the end of the term; that a tenant who has been given four months' notice that the landlord will renew the lease at the same rental should be compelled to answer thirty days before the expiration of his lease whether he will accept or not and that if he fails to accept he shall be compelled to move at the expiration of his lease; that the purchaser of an apartment should be able to obtain possession of that particular apartment in a house which has been actually sold on the co-operative plan, where at least 20 per cent. of the apartments in said house are included for sale in said plan; and that a reasonable rent should be absolutely and definitely defined and should be figured on a certain percentage, say 10 per cent. of the actual market value, and not on the equity as called for under the present rent laws.

Several other witnesses were recalled last Tuesday but no further testimony relative to the housing shortage was taken.

Review of Real Estate Market for the Current Week

Large Transactions Seasoned a Market That Abounded in Widespread Dealing, While Many Tenants Bought Their Places of Occupancy

THIS week was one crowded with good real estate transactions. There have been weeks in the recent past when the number of sales aggregated as much as they did this week and when large properties were distinguishing features, but in no week for a long time has there been stronger investment interest shown nor a better variety of good sales. The week, too, disclosed some leases of more than passing interest.

The most notable sale was that of the leasehold of the Knox building, at the southwest corner of Fifth avenue and 40th street, by August Heckscher, who took over this choice site in the name of the Anahma Realty Corporation from the Fortieth Street and Fifth Avenue Corporation controlled by Benjamin Mordecai and E. C. Potter. There are 19 years yet to run on the lease, with privilege of renewal. A sale that would seem to mark a revival of co-operative buying of business buildings was that of the sale of a 12-story loft building on a Seventh avenue corner, to the tenants. It is the largest co-operative sale in many months and probably the most notable commercial building sale of the kind.

The scope of the buying movement by individual tenants of the properties they occupy was wide this week. A tenant of a group of business buildings at Second avenue, 53d and 54th streets, bought them; another bought an old building on West street; another bought a parcel downtown; while numerous tenants of dwellings bought them. Such transactions always strengthen values roundabout.

Downtown properties were in the limelight of dealing this week, also. Conspicuous among them was the sale of some old warehouses on a Water street corner that had been in the continuous ownership of one family since the era of Peter Stuyvesant, or more than two centuries. This is probably the best answer to the question: "Does New York real estate pay?"

A group of old frame buildings on lower Vesey street, in the wholesale produce district, changed hands. Covering a small plot, they adjoin another small plot on a corner. It will be interesting to see if the corner is acquired for a joint re-improvement. A wholesale merchant bought a loft building on Lisenard street. Business properties on Madison avenue, Sixth avenue, Eighth avenue and other prominent thoroughfares changed hands. A large vacant holding of Robert E. Dowling's in West Harlem, was bought for improvement.

There was considerable dealing in all kinds of multi-family houses. Numerous large elevator apartment houses on Washington Heights changed hand and two parcels on Marble Hill were bought. In the Bronx extensive buying of dwellings and multi-family houses exceeded the buying of vacant plots for improvement for the first time in many months. Some large new apartment houses were among those sold.

In the leasing field a good sized site for a 9-story loft building was leased on the West Side, for a long term. Marking great rental increment was the sub-leasing of the Siebrecht building at the northeast corner of Fifth avenue and 38th street. The new lease shows more than a doubling of the rental in twelve years. A large lease in the Heckscher building marks the most northerly movement of trade on Fifth avenue. Fifth avenue is an investment prodigy among world thoroughfares. The annual rental of the Siebrecht building under the new lease is almost as much as the late James Gordon Bennett obtained for the fee of it about 20 years ago when he sold it to the late Austin Corbin.

PRIVATE REALTY SALES.

THE total number of sales reported, but not recorded in Manhattan this week, was 133, as against 81 last week and 78 a year ago.

The number of sales south of 59th st was 59, as compared with 26 last week and 43 a year ago.

The number of sales north of 59th st was 74, as compared with 55 last week and 35 a year ago.

From the Bronx 56 sales at private contract were reported, as against 35 last week and 13 a year ago.

Observations by Max Natanson

Max N. Natanson, one of the city's most active real estate operators, now located at 170 Broadway, will soon join the northward march of the real estate fraternity. He has leased, through the Brown-Wheelock Co., for a term of 10 years, a large suite of offices in the Guaranty Trust Co.'s Building, formerly the Sherry Building, at 522 Fifth av, southwest corner of 44th st. Mr. Natanson will occupy his new offices sometime in March.

Mr. Natanson's dealings in real estate during the last several years have been spectacular in the extreme, his operations having aggregated close to $200,000,000. His latest transactions involved the purchase and the immediate resale of the Belnord Apartment house, assessed at $1,500,000, and occupying the entire square block bounded by Broadway, Amsterdam av, 86th and 87th sts.

Discussing the removal of his offices from the financial zone to the new uptown business district, Mr. Natanson said: "I am moving uptown to be closer to the center of things and to the district, which, in addition to being the 'uptown Wall Street,' rapidly is becoming the real estate and mortgage loan center of New York.

"Within a stone's throw of my new quarters are the offices of some of the most prominent estate owners, real estate operators and brokers in New York. All parts of the city can be reached readily by way of the subways that radiate from the Grand Central Station, from which point also the Queensboro Subway, the N. Y. Central, N. Y., N. H. & Hartford Railroad, Pennsylvania Railroad, the Long Island Railroad and the New York and Hudson Tubes are most accessible.

"The advantage of being located in the heart of the city is the ease with which a property presented in the morning can be inspected and passed upon within the hour. On the other hand, the great purchasing power of New York, from the residential point of view, is now concentrated north of 42d st and east and west of Central Park. It is advisable for a real estate operator to be as close as possible to this purchasing power.

"There is also to be considered the comparative potentialities of the downtown and uptown districts as fields of speculation and investment. The downtown districts have been fine-combed by the speculator, the investor and the broker. Prices in certain sections have about reached their peak and the main thoroughfares are so fully improved with permanent buildings that there remain but few opportunities for quick turns. And yet there is always a drift from the side streets to the main thoroughfares such as Broadway, Nassau and William sts, and these arteries of trade and travel will always be money-makers.

"In general, however, the opportunity for profitable investment and speculation is greater in the midtown district, the terminal zone, the new uptown business section and the districts lying east and west of Central Park, toward which the business and residential population of New York is trending steadily.

"The proper location for the offices of an active real estate operator is that which is closest to the active centers; wherefore, I have concluded to move to 44th st and Fifth av."

Closes Out Ocean Front

May Co. sold for the Banister Realty Co., Maximilian Morgenthau, president, the last of the ocean front holdings of the company in the Ostend section of Far Rockaway, namely: to Max Fishel and Max Katz the parcel on the east side of Beach 13th st (formerly Neilson av), 120 feet south of Seagirt av and 100 feet wide to the Atlantic Ocean, including riparian rights; to Henry Matz the entire block on the east side of Beach 12th st (formerly Seneca av), with a frontage of 120 feet on Seagirt av (formerly South st) to the Atlantic Ocean, approximately 20 lots. RECENT LEASES.

New Rental Power on Fifth Av

Bonwit, Teller & Co., Fifth av retailers, who recently subleased the 5-story Siebrecht building at the northeast corner of Fifth av and 88th st, opposite their store, have leased the building for a term of 21 years with two renewal privileges for similar terms to the Primrose Silk Stores, Inc., at a total aggregate rental of nearly $3,000,000 for the first 21 years. This is the largest lease negotiated on Fifth av in many months.

The building fronts 50.11 feet on the avenue and 125 feet on the street, and it has a 25-foot L with a depth of 100 feet. The lease dates from August 1, 1921. In 1910 the United Cigar Stores Co. leased the building and in turn subleased it to Bonwit Teller & Co. Both these firms will realize substantial profit from the transactions.

Bonwit, Teller & Co. obtained control of the property in order to protect their store property across the street and to maintain the present high standard of this Fifth av block, which includes the stores of Lord & Taylor and Franklin Simon & Co. Francis J. Thynne, president of the Primrose Silk Stores, Inc., was for many years with B. Altman & Co.

Joseph Milner was the broker and Cushman & Wakefield, represented by William J. Demorest, were associate brokers. The United Cigar Stores Co. in 1910 acquired control of the property for a net rental of $70,000 a year.

Long Lease in Heckscher Building

A deal of unusual significance was closed this week, through the leasing of the entire 8th floor of the new 25-story Heckscher building, now nearing completion, at the southwest corner of Fifth av and 57th st, to Stroheim & Romann, importers and wholesalers of upholstery and decorative fabrics. The lease, which is for a term of ten years, and involves an area of 15,000 square feet, marks an epoch in the ever-changing history of Fifth av. The decision of Stroheim & Romann is not only the first move of any concern of prominence in that industry to locate above 42d st, but the lease actually establishes a record, in that this wholesale establishment will be located farther north on Fifth av than any other wholesale house, irrespective of the line of business.

In commenting on the lease from a real estate standpoint it was said by J. Clydesdale Cushman, president of Cushman & Wakefield, Inc., the brokers in the transaction: "While this move on the part of Stroheim & Romann appears daring, I prophesy it is merely a forerunner of many others, in the same trade, basing my opinion on the present congested condition of the old upholstery zone which centers around Fourth av and 19th st. Also, in viewing the situation with a knowledge of other prominent upholstery firms which are now negotiating for large space in the Heckscher building, and in light of the fact that Fifth av and 57th st is firmly established as the center of dealers in object d'art, antiques and of decorators, the establishment of a new center of the upholstery and decorative trade in the Heckscher building seems both inevitable and imminent. The lower 9 floors of the building were designed for show rooms and their frontage of over 160 feet on 57th st with unobstructed north light and with unusual freight facilities provided on the 56th st side of the building renders it peculiarly adaptable for housing wholesale concerns carrying vast stocks of art fabrics and kindred merchandise."

Quick Leasing of New Building

Louis Carreau leased for the owner, in the building recently completed at the northeast corner of Sixth av and 37th st, and known as 636-640 Sixth av, the corner store and basement, containing about 3,500 square feet, to a furrier; the top floor in the same building to the Bankograph Co.; space on the 2d floor to the International Silk Goods Co.; small store on Sixth av front to Friedenberg and Kaplan, and in conjunction with Charles M. Noble, the north store on Sixth av to Elting & Pickup, opticians; in conjunction with Adams & Co., space on the 1st floor to the Royal Notion Co.; in conjunction with Homer Pence space on the 2d floor to Chicago Mercantile Co., and in conjunction with L. Tannenbaum, Straus & Co. the entire 3d floor to L. Schenker.

With the consummation of these leases the entire leasing of the building has been completed with the exception of one small store on Sixth av for which negotiations are in progress. Ready for occupancy on November 1, all of the renting has been accomplished within two months.

Another Brooklyn Deal by Brown

Frederick Brown, the operator, leased the 7-sty department store occupied by the J. S. Bailey Co., at 502 Fulton st, surrounding the southeast corner of Bond st. The lease is for a long term and is said to entail an aggregate rental of $5,000,000. The property fronts 90 feet on Fulton st, 125 feet on Bond st and 60 feet on Hanover pl. It contains 23,000 square feet on each floor.

In order to obtain the lease Mr. Brown was obliged to buy the entire stock of the department store concern, for which he is reported to have paid $500,000. The concern started in business in the store in 1916. Mr. Brown subsequently sold the merchandise. The deal was negotiated by Harvey B. Newins and Robert J. Coverdale.

This is the third large lease which the operator has made in Brooklyn during the last 12 months. Early in 1921 he leased the Healy store property, at 476 Fulton st, and later the Imperial Restaurant Building, at 360 Fulton st. Both of these he subsequently sub-leased through the same brokers.

Leases in Textile Building

The H. H. Gibson Realty Co. has closed leases aggregating $3,500,000 in the Textile Building at 30th st and Fifth av, built by the late George Backer. Among the various tenants are the Fifth Carpet Co., George Nicols Co., Art Loom Co., Philadelphia Tapestry Co., Beatty Manufacturing Co., Bush & Diamond, Hodges Fibre Carpet Co., Charles W. Poulson Co., Jack Sheehan Co., Cotts-Lapp Linoleum Co., Plimp-ton Co., Hightstown Co., Dodge & Co., Aird and Watson, Williams and Avdoyan, Menthrop Co., McElroy Co., and George Kazan. These leases are for terms of 5 and 10 years each.

National Budget Committee Leases

Pease & Elliman leased to the National Budget Committee the 3d floor of their own building, 340 Madison av, near 43d st.

Good Eighth Av Corner Lease

D. Kempner & Son, Inc., leased for Anne Halley the two stores in 497 Eighth av, southwest corner of 35th st, to Max Amster, who will alter the stores into a large confectionery and cigar store. The lease, which covers a long term of years, calls for a graduated rental of from $5,000 to $6,000 per annum.

J. E. Ridder Leases on Park Av

Leon S. Altmayer leased, for a long term of years, for S. Charles Welsh, the new 5-sty American basement dwelling 1028 Park av, between 85th and 86th sts, to Joseph E. Ridder, of the New York Staats Zeitung.

Strong Lease in West 57th St.

W. H. Ebbitt Co. leased through C. Boyce Kelley to a client of H. M. Weil Co., 147 West 57th st, two 4-sty and basement buildings, 37x100, for a term of 21 years, at an aggregate rental approximating $400,000 net, with an option of renewal for 21 years on a reappraisal basis. A building operation is planned.

Leases to City College Club

The City College Club leased the 5-sty English basement house, 46 East 50th st, from Mrs. H. K. S. Williams. The club proposes to use this property as a club house. Seaman and Pendergast were the brokers.

Leases Site for Loft Building

A 9-sty modern loft building operation is forecast for the site, 50x98.9, at 151 and 153 West 28th st, which was subleased by William R. Lohman to the Magoha Construction Co. The outlay involved, including the rentals, will amount to about $1,000,000. The M. Rosenthal Co., which recently leased the plot to Mr. Lohman, was the broker in the recent deal. Gottlieb & Pickett are the building representatives of the lessees and will put up the loft. The site is 100 feet east of Seventh av and is now covered with old buildings. The brokers have been appointed agents of the new building.

College Fraternity Leases

Delta Tau Delta Club, which now has its home at 257 Madison av, has leased the 5-sty dwelling with elevator at 27 East 39th st. The property measures 25x100 and was rented through Horace S. Ely & Co., agents. This is the fourth club which has recently made its home on this block. The owner of record of the property is Ella D. Milbank.

New Branch of Columbia Trust Co.

Douglas L. Elliman & Co. and Veiller & Robinson leased for a client to the Columbia Trust Co. space at the northwest corner of 48th st and Park av, in the new apartment building known as 290 Park av, for a long term of years. The lessee will open offices in this space particularly for its women depositors. It will be equipped in an unique manner, and when completed will give the impression of a drawing-room rather than a banking office, and will be the first thing of its kind in New York. Warren & Wetmore, architects of the building, are working on the plans for the new office, which it is hoped will be ready for occupancy about February 1.

The Trust Company was influenced in its choice of this location by the tremendous amount of new construction of apartment houses and hotels in the immediate neighborhood. There is 270 Park av, one of the largest apartment houses in the world; 290 Park av, the largest co-operative apartment building in the world, with the famous "Pierre" restaurant on the ground floor; 300 Park av, also known as the new "Sherry Building"; the Hotel Ambassador, Hotel Chatham, the Ritz Carlton, etc. The development of Park av, at this point, is making it a serious rival of Fifth av from a social standpoint.

Mortgage Loans

A building loan for $150,000 has been obtained by the George F. Johnson Estate, Inc., from the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. on the plot, 100x125, at the northwest corner of Southern Boulevard and 156th st, where a 6-sty apartment house will be erected.

Quinlan & Leland placed a first mortgage loan of $115,000 on the 6-sty elevator apartment house, on plot 100x100, at the northeast corner of Northern av and 179th st.

New York Title & Mortgage Co. made a building loan of $175,000 on the north side of 171st st, 100 feet east of Fort Washington av, where a 6-sty elevator apartment house is to be erected by the West 171st Street Corporation, a syndicate composed of Leo Schloss, Theodore Klein and others.

Quinlan & Leland placed a first mortgage loan of $145,000 on the 6-sty elevator apartment house, on plot 91x115xirregular, at 4180 Broadway, northeast corner of 177th st.

BUILDING SECTION

National Outlook for Construction During 1922 Is Bright

Building Figures for December, 1921, Tabulated by F. W. Dodge Company, Shows Definite Improvement When Compared With Previous Totals

DECEMBER building contracts in the twenty-seven Northeastern States of the country as reported by the F. W. Dodge Company, amounted to more than for any previous December, with the exception of December 1919. The total amount of these contracts was $198,518,000, an increase of 3% over the November figure, whereas December usually shows a decline from November. The closing month of 1921 showed an increase of 98% over the corresponding month of 1920.

The total amount of construction contracts let during 1921 was $2,359,018,000, only 8% under the 1920 total. It is doubtful whether any other business fared so well in 1921 as the construction industry as a whole has, even though the volume of construction has been unevenly distributed as to classes of projects and as to locality.

The predominating factor in the year's program was residential building, which amounted to $880,052,000. It was 37% of the 1921 total, and represented an increase of 54% over 1920 residential construction. Public works and utilities took second place, amounting to $459,184,000, or 19% of the year's total. Other important items were: business buildings, $336,920,000, or 14%; educational buildings, $242,562,000, or 10% (this figure representing a very considerable increase in number of projects and in total over 1920); and industrial buildings, $173,325,000, or 7% of the year's total.

The remarkably good showing of the month of December, following the good records of the four previous months, give added confirmation of the revival of construction activity. Every present indication is that 1922 will see a measurably larger volume of construction than the program carried through in 1921.

The principal factors favorable to a big construction year are the still unsatisfied demand for buildings of every class and the steadily increasing amount of money available for investment in construction projects. These factors are not uniformly favorable everywhere. Recovery in recent months has been rapid in the east and very slow in the Central West. This unevenness in the rate of recovery may be expected to continue well into 1922. The recovery of general prosperity in the Central West will continue to be slow, and general business conditions in that section will retard speedy revival or construction activity, particularly in agricultural communities.

While it's reasonable to expect increased activity in every class of construction projects, it is probable that residential buildings and educational buildings, all of which made good records for activity in 1921, may be expected to continue at a satisfactory rate. Even industrial buildings, which special class is likely to be about the last to return to a normal rate of activity, should show an increase over 1921.

The records of construction that was contemplated during the past three years indicate that the community comprised within the F. W. Dodge Company's territory (including about $\frac{3}{4}$ of the total construction of the country) has collectively worked toward a three-billion dollar total each year. The average accomplishment per year has amounted to two and a half billions. The year 1920 was the only one since the war that started off at a sufficiently high rate to reach a three-billion dollar total. That rate was maintained for four months, and then the reaction came. This reaction was caused not only by the reaction in general business conditions, but it was also influenced by the fact that there was a sufficient supply of neither materials, labor nor transportation facilities to carry through the extensive program that was mapped out.

In 1922 the community's collective effort will be toward a three-billion dollar construction year, (or four billions for the entire country). The supply of materials, labor and transportation facilities is still inadequate to carry through such a large program. It is neither likely nor desirable that a program of such magnitude be actually started. Slowness of recovery in general business, labor disputes still unsettled, and other retarding factors may be expected to curb a too rapid boom in construction. If this year shows a moderate margin over two and a half billions invested in construction contracts in the 27 Northeastern States (say an increase of 8 or 10% over 1921) rather more evenly distributed than the 1921 construction was, it will justify present expectations and spell increased prosperity for the industry.

December building contracts in the New England States amounted to $26,474,000, an increase of 44% over November, and double the figure for December, 1920.

The total building contracts let during the entire year 1921 amounted to $205,407,000, or 33% less than the total for the year 1920.

The year's total included $85,773,000, or 42%, for residential buildings; $26,743,000, or 18%, for business buildings; $23,494,000, or 11%, for educational buildings; $18,973,000, or 9% for public works and utilities; $16,057,000, or 8%, for industrial plants.

The amount of contemplated new work reported during the year $377,674,000, showing a shortage of construction which should be at least in part, made up during the coming year.

Contracts let in New York State, and Northern New Jersey during December amounted to $62,331,000, the largest December total on record for this district. This figure was 6% greater than the November total and more than three and a half times the figure for December, 1920.

The December figure brought the year's total construction up to $647,051,000, which was 7% greater than the 1920 total and was, consequently, the largest yearly total on the Dodge Company's records for this district.

Residential building was the dominant factor in the 1921 record, amounting to $369,443,000, of 57% of the year's total. Business buildings amounted to $99,831,000, or 15% of the total; public works and utilities, $45,598,000, or 7%; industrial buildings, $37,280,000, or 6%; educational buildings, $36,177,000, or 6%.

Contemplated new work reported during the year amounted to $1,176,000,000, compared with $647,000,000 worth of construction actually started showing a deficit still to be made up.

December building contracts in the Middle Atlantic States (Comprising Southern New Jersey, Eastern Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, District of Columbia, Virginia and the Carolinas) amounted to $32,923,000, an increase of 9% over the November figure, and more than double the total for December 1920.

The total for the year 1921 came to $335,235,000, compared with $300,812,000 for the year 1920. This increase, however, was in large part due to the addition of North and South Carolina to the district in 1921.

New York Building Managers Hold Monthly Banquet

Wm. E. Walsh, Chairman, Board of Standards and Appeals, Outlined Policies of Board and H. C. Boyden Discussed Developments in Concrete

HERE was an excellent attendance at the regular monthly dinner meeting of the Building Owners' and Managers' Association of New York, which was held at the Advertising Club, 47 West 25th street, Tuesday evening, January 10. E. Everett Thorpe, newly elected president occupied the chair and acted as toastmaster.

The speakers of the evening were William E. Walsh, Chairman of the Board of Standards and Appeals, who spoke informally of some of the problems of his office, and H. C. Boyden of the Portland Cement Association, who delivered an address on "Recent Developments in Concrete."

Mr. Walsh described the efforts of the Board of Standards and Appeals to be fair in all cases that came before it for settlement and still uphold the law which means so much for the safety and comfort of the citizens of New York. He also assured the members of the Building Managers and Owners Association that they will always have his fullest co-operation and consideration when they come before the Board in answer to notices of violations etc. He cited several interesting instances of the application of the laws of safety and showed that the Board of Standards and Appeals is not an arbitrary tribunal designated to make life more difficult for property owners but that it is essentially a medium for eliminating unnecessary hazards and assuring the maximum of safety to the occupants of buildings in this city.

Mr. Boyden spoke of the growing popularity of the use of concrete in general construction work and explained the new uses constantly being found for this material. He told of the economics that can be obtained through the use of concrete instead of other basic materials for certain types of work and also of the extremely low cost of maintenance.

After the two addresses the meeting was turned over to routine business which included the reading of several annual reports that were not submitted at the last meeting.

The Building Owners' and Managers Association is planning to make 1922 a banner year of achievement and if only a part of the program now outlined is put through a new record for progress will be attained. One of the most interesting and important of the plans of this organization was recently presented by Charles F. Merritt, executive secretary. This undertaking provides for the establishment of a bureau of records for information and instruction on elevators, boilers, building construction materials, supplies and general equipment. It is also planned to make a compilation of the history of building in Manhattan, giving dates of the erection of all prominent structures, the names of the architects and builders, and other details such as the number of square feet of floor area, height of building and the ceiling heights, square feet of corridor space, square feet of rentable space, wages paid to building employees such as porters, cleaners, elevator operators, superintendents, and other helpers, general operating costs, etc., together with a collection of photographs and prints of the exteriors and interiors of the most prominent buildings.

In the year's total were the following items: $118,841,000, or 33%, for residential buildings; $88,337,000, or 25% for public works and utilities; $46,235,000, or 13%, for business buildings; $32,627,000, or 9%, for educational buildings; $28,804,000, or 8% for industrial buildings.

Contemplated new work reported during 1921 totaled $695,000,000, compared with $355,000,000, worth of work actually started.

Contracts awarded during December in Western Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Ohio, Kentucky and Tennessee amounted to $22,453,000, a decrease of 35% from the November figure, but an increase of 14% over the total for December, 1920.

The total volume of construction for the year 1921 in this district amounted to $422,049,000, a decrease of 9% from the 1920 total.

Included in the 1921 total were the following: $120,859,000, or 29%, for residential buildings; $117,259,000, or 28%, for public works and utilities; $49,247,000, or 12%, for educational buildings; $49,107,000, or 12% for business buildings; $41,315,000, or 10%, for industrial buildings.

Contemplated new work reported in 1921 reached a total of $663,000,000, compare with $422,000,000 for construction actually started.

December building contracts in the Central West (comprising Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Michigan, Wisconsin, Missouri and portions of Eastern Kansas and Nebraska) amounted to $45,985,000, an increase of 1% over November, and an increase of 37% over December, 1920.

The year's total for this district amounted to $644,014,000, a decrease of 19% from 1920. It is thus seen how the severe depression in the agricultural states has affected the construction industry.

Included in the 1921 total were; $165,801,000, or 27%, for public works and utilities; $161,175,000, or 26%, for residential buildings; $97,377,000, or 15%, for business buildings; $85,318,000, or 13%, for educational buildings; and $47,673,000, or 7%, for industrial buildings.

The total amount of contemplated new work reported during the year in this district amounted to more than one and a half billion dollars, showing the largest deficit in the year's program of any district included in the Dodge Company's territory.

Contracts awarded during December in Minnesota and the Dakotas amounted to $8,443,000, which was an 80% increase over November and a 75% increase over December, 1920.

The year's total amounted to $85,262,000, a decrease of 8%, from 1920. Included in this total were the following items: $23,962,000, or 28%, for residential buildings; $23,216,000, or 27%, for public works and utilities; $15,698,000, or 18%, for educational buildings; $7,627,000 or 9%, for business buildings.

Contemplated new work reported during the year amounted to $233,000,000, compare with $85,000,000 for work actually started, leaving a considerable deficit in the year's program.

Commerce Department Collecting Construction Data

AMONG the recently inaugurated activities of the Division of Building and Housing of the U. S. Department of Commerce are the collection from contractors and secretaries of building exchanges of building material prices actually paid by contractors. Information has been obtained for several months and has been distributed among those who have supplied the information.

The division, which is under the direction of John M. Gries as chief, is also obtaining from the contractors data on the percentage of different materials and the amount of labor that go into a typical six-room frame and a six-room brick residence. This survey will enable some estimate to be made of the importance of price fluctuations in labor and in different classes of materials entering into these types of dwellings.

Architects Start New Year with Many Large Projects

Weekly Figures of F. W. Dodge Company Indicative of Active Spring and Summer Building Season in Metropolitan Area

DESPITE the fact that there were only four business days in the first week of this year the building totals for that period indicate unusual activity and may be taken as an excellent sign that the coming months will be notable for the volume and value of new structural projects. Reports from architects and engineers in New York State and New Jersey, north of Trenton, are significant of the vast amount of new work to be undertaken during the coming spring and summer. It has been several years since the first week in January has been so productive of newly contemplated operations, the majority of which are scheduled for an early start. According to figures tabulated by the F. W. Dodge Company, there were 375 new building and engineering projects reported during the first week of the new year, representing an approximate cost of $13,132,100. During the same period 245 contracts were awarded in this territory that call for an outlay of $8,075,000.

Although there is a decided improvement in the outlook for commercial and industrial construction during the coming months residential building still continues to be the dominating factor in the building situation. Speculative builders in Greater New York are advancing their scheduled work for the coming spring as rapidly as possible so as to get their operations well under way before April 1, the date specified for the expiration of the Tax Exemption measure. Suburban builders, who cannot claim the advantages of tax exemption, are also preparing for an extremely active season because the demand for small dwellings is still far from satisfied.

The list of 375 projects for which plans were reported during the first week of 1922 included 43 business structures such as stores, offices, lofts, commercial garages, etc., $1,153,500; 4 educational projects, $685,000; 3 hospitals and institutions, $959,000; 8 factory and industrial projects, $172,500; 6 public works and public utilities, $135,000; 8 religious and memorial buildings, $202,500; 298 residential operations including apartments, flats and tenements and one and two-family dwellings, $9,509,600 and 5 social and recreational buildings, $315,000.

Among the 245 projects for which contracts were awarded during the week were 25 business structures of various types, $1,216,000; 6 educational buildings, $553,600; 8 factory and industrial buildings, $385,500; 3 public buildings, $311,500; 11 public works and public utilities, $909,900; 4 religious and memorial structures, $110,000; 184 residential operations including multi-family dwellings and one and two-family houses, $4,276,000 and 4 social and recreational projects, $312,500.

The work is already started and will call for an outlay of $216,000, or $5,400 per house. These dwellings are of brick with combination slate and gravel roofs. They are to be heated by steam and lighted by electricity. Hardwood floors are to be included. The buildings are for the Bliss Street Realty Co., in which Bryan L. Kennelly is largely interested. The houses were planned by Herbert Lucas, architect, 117 East 60th street.

This structure, which will be erected according to plans and specifications prepared by Guilbert & Betelle, architects, Aldene Building, Newark, will be ten stories in height and will occupy a plot 80x100 feet at the southwest corner of Branford and Treat places, in the heart of Newark's business district. The building has been designed in the Renaissance style of architecture and the facades will be of Indiana limestone, face brick and terra cotta. The cost of construction is estimated at $700,000, exclusive of the value of the land.

The New York Chapter of the American Institute of Architects will offer two medals and four certificates of honorable mention to owners for excellence in the exterior design of apartment houses. One medal will be awarded in a class of apartment houses of more than six stories in height, and the other medal will be awarded for a class of multi-family dwellings of six stories or less in height. Two honorable mentions will be awarded in each of the above classes.

CURRENT BUILDING OPERATIONS

DEVELOPMENTS in the local building industry during the first two weeks of the new year indicate a forthcoming season of splendid progress for all interested in construction. There is a large amount of high class building now being planned and contractors feel that the work to be undertaken during the coming months will be far more representative than that of last year. Although there is an over-balance of residential construction now under way or planned for a start next spring, the general situation is much more favorable than it has been and there is an excellent prospect that the building activity of the coming season will be far more diversified as to type.

During the past week or so a number of important operations were announced and several others have been released for estimates, and local contractors are anticipating a decided improvement in the number of awards in the near future. As a matter of fact there is already considerable increase in the number of announced commitments for new building projects, and if any real percentage of the work now proposed matures to the point of actually commencing operations the building trades will have all they are able to handle with efficiency.

The markets for building materials and supplies are fairly active, and all signs point to a steady improvement in the volume of business. Brick is in fair demand, and cement, lime, terra cotta and other basic products are in a favorable position. Prices are steady at present and no important changes are anticipated until the spring building business opens. There is some talk of higher building material prices next spring, but any changes along this line will be totally dependent upon the ratio of demand to the supply. At present there seems to be sufficient materials easily available for all normal building demands, and it will only be an unusually active season that will be responsible for increased material prices.

Common Brick.—Owing largely to the weather conditions, there was a falling off in activity in the New York wholesale market for Hudson River common brick during the past week. Sales were light and inquiries infrequent, but there is an undercurrent of feeling that just as soon as the weather is more favorable there will be a decided change in the rate of common brick demand, as there is a vast amount of projected construction piling up for a start early next spring. There were no arrivals of brick from up-river plants this week because of the ice-bound condition of the river. The Hudson is frozen solid north of Tarrytown and unless a mild spell comes to thaw this ice there is no likelihood of the arrival of brick barges for some weeks to come. There is quite a reserve unsold in the wholesale market, however, and dealers have ample stocks in their yards for all current demands. Prices are somewhat firmer than they have been during the past two or three weeks, and manufacturers are of the opinion that the market will be notably firm as to price until the river is again open to navigation.

Summary.—Transactions in the North River brick market for the week ending Thursday, January 12, 1922. Condition of market: Demand, lighter; prices slightly firmer. Quotations: Hudson Rivers, $14.50 to $15 a thousand to dealers in cargo lots alongside dock. Number of cargoes arrived, none; sales, 13. Distribution: Manhattan, 2; Bronx, 1; Brooklyn, 10. Remaining unsold in the New York wholesale market, 21.

Lumber.—As is usual at this particular period of the year, there is no great amount of activity in the lumber business.

MATERIALS AND SUPPLIES

Both wholesalers and retailers are engaged with their inventories, and until these are completed the business will naturally be light. Demand is fair and shows every likelihood of improving steadily as the prospects for an unusually active building season are excellent. The holidays and the inclement weather of the past two weeks has curtailed buying to some extent, but there is a large amount of business in sight. There is a general feeling in the lumber industry that prices are likely to advance. While there is as yet nothing definite to go by the marked trend toward higher values so noticeable during the last few months of the past year are taken as indicative of the future. The fact that wholesale stocks are low, coupled with depleted reserves at mill points, seems to lend color to the predictions of higher prices to come next spring, particularly as it is now positive that the demand for lumber to be used in new construction projects will be abnormally heavy. Reports from suburban districts show a tremendous potential demand for lumber products, as there is a large building program scheduled for the early spring and summer months.

Structural Steel.—Although current business is light as compared with the volume of a few weeks ago, the outlook for the coming month or so is excellent, as there are a number of large projects soon to be released that will require an important total tonnage. Recent bookings of fabricated materials for new building projects, while numerous, have not been for large individual amounts, but there is every indication that the next week or so will show a decided improvement in this respect. Fabricated steel prices are steady and unchanged.

Electrical Supplies.—The market for these materials is not quite so active as it was a few weeks ago, but conditions are expected to improve within the next week or ten days, as there is a large amount of active building with electrical material requirements yet unsatisfied and an imposing program of new construction waiting for a start. A settlement of the local labor problem would be of material benefit to all material lines, as there is considerable proposed building being held in abeyance pending the consummation of a new working agreement between employers and workmen. For the most part prices in the electrical lines are steady, with but slight changes reported during the past few weeks. Demand for conduit is light; prices unchanged. The recent advance in rubber-covered wire prices has not stimulated buying to any extent.

Cast Iron Pipe.—Business in this line has dropped off to some extent, but at that it is far better than it was one year ago at this time. The majority of the Eastern plants are operating at approximately seventy-five per cent. of capacity and there is considerable new business in sight for the spring and summer. Municipal lettings are scarce at present, but several important projects are likely to be released for bids within the next few weeks. Private buying is light and no real improvement is anticipated until weather conditions are more favorable. Prices are steady and practically unchanged, with New York quotations as follows: 6 in. and larger, in carload lots, $47.30 per net ton; 4 in. and 5 in., $52.30; 3 in., $62.30.

Window Glass.—Because of the large amount of residential construction, both apartments and one and two-family houses, now in the final stages of completion, the demand for window glass is excellent and likely to hold so for some time to come. Stocks are fairly complete and prices firm.

A Positive Foundation Upon Which to Build

The Federal Reserve Board, in its January bulletin, declares that "the most encouraging feature of the business situation is that a positive foundation apparently has been established upon which to build development during 1922." Governor Harding believes that the country as a whole has passed safely the points of danger entailed in after-war deflation.

One positive foundation upon which real estate and construction interests can effectively build their business is regular, consistent advertising in

Emergency Laws vs. Economic Laws

During the discussion over the question of whether the Emergency Rent Laws and the resolution providing for tax exemption of new housing should be extended another year, it is advisable to consider the fact that with the exception of Boston and Milwaukee, in no other large city in the country has special legislation been secured to protect tenants from voracious landlords, nor has special privilege been given to builders in the way of relieving them from paying their share of the municipal expenses for a term of years. But during the war building was proscribed in other commonwealths than New York, and rentals mounted rapidly in every community throughout the country as an increasing population demanded more housing and office space. And since the war building has been restricted in other cities by the same causes as have prevented the construction of new housing here, namely, the continued difficulty of getting mortgage money and the continuance of high wages of labor and high cost of building materials.

Outside of New York, however, state legislatures generally have not been called on to interfere with the working of the law of supply and demand. According to the summary of legislation during 1920 and 1921, prepared by the Public Affairs Information Service of the Public Library, only Wisconsin, Massachusetts and New Jersey have enacted "emergency" laws. Those passed in New Jersey are similar to the enactments in this state. The Wisconsin legislation, which is mild in character, is applicable chiefly to Milwaukee, and in Massachusetts provision has been made for a discretionary stay of proceedings in actions of summary process to recover possession of property and to provide that unjust, unreasonable and oppressive agreements shall be a defense in action for rents. According to the same authority no states other than New York and New Jersey have passed tax exemption measures. People in the less enlightened sections of the nation kicked just as vigorously about paying higher and higher rents as did New Yorkers, and they bemoaned the cessation of building in their home towns, but they have not, with the exceptions noted, stormed legislative halls with quack palliatives to fend off oppressive landlordism, nor did they grant special favors to those few fortunates who were able to find money with which to build.

Many New Yorkers are in doubt to-day whether the Emergency Rent Laws and tax exemption have really benefited them because they have to fall back on the fact that they do not know what might have happened if these measures of safety and provision had not been enacted. Things might have been worse, and then again they might have been no worse, or even better. Nobody knows, because there is no way of knowing what might have taken place if things had been different.

There is, however, one way in which the value of the rent and tax legislation may be measured. What happened in other cities where such measures were not taken and what are conditions now in these communities? The New York Herald has taken pains to find out by a questionnaire directed to other cities where housing conditions were similar to those existing in New York when the "emergency" laws were passed. The returns show that in Chicago rents for the better class of apartments and detached houses are 25 per cent higher than they were two years ago, while rents in tenement districts and poorer neighborhoods have advanced only 10 per cent in two years. In Cincinnati six-room residences that rented at $36 a month two years ago rent for $40 now; five-room apartments that were $15 are now $18 per month, and $65 apartments now bring $75. Realty men in St. Louis report rentals as approximately 10 per cent more than two years ago. In Pittsburgh a few vacancies are reported, and it is believed that the rental peak was reached last year.

Cuts in high-priced Boston apartments are declared to have equalled 25 per cent and this broke the backbone of prices down through the list. A 20 per cent decline is noted in Detroit, houses and apartments renting from $50 up, while the reduction in rents in Indianapolis is estimated at about 10 per cent. In Baltimore and Philadelphia there has been little change from peak prices, which were about 50 per cent above the pre-war scale.

When these facts are carefully weighed it forces the question whether the "emergency" legislation was justified, and if so, if it was wisely devised. Certainly the special legislation so far enacted at the instance of the Lockwood Committee has not resulted in any great addition to the number of dwellings in which three-quarters of the citizens of this community must, perforce of limited income, reside. It is a well-known fact that rentals of moderate-priced apartments here show no sign of being lowered. They may not yet have reached the peak. In eight other cities the peak has been reached or definitely passed. We have "emergency" laws; they, excepting in Boston, have had none. We have been trying nostrums; they have been relying on old and tried economic laws mixed with common sense. Which is the better off—New York, with 100,000 landlord and tenant cases clogging the municipal courts and millions of rent money tied up in escrow, or these other American cities that have weathered the crisis without resort to questionable emergency measures?

We are forced, it seems, to one of the following conclusions, either that New York is a city where the ordinary economic laws, elsewhere all powerful, cannot be relied on to work satisfactorily; or that New York is unique in being able to precipitate an "emergency" based on the same conditions which in other communities are deemed the customary consequences of certain precedents; or that this state and city is endowed with officials whose sense of obligation to some of their constituents is exaggerated to the degree which affords them an excuse for the enactment of laws that disregard the rights of other citizens.

Building Revival in Mid-Town District

Study of the important building operations now scheduled for erection during the coming spring indicates a lively interest on the part of builders and investors in the commercial development of the mid-town district of Manhattan, west of Broadway. Prior to the war there was a well-defined store and loft-building movement in this vicinity, a movement responsible for the erection of many modern commercial structures which were rapidly sold or rented at profitable terms.

Businesses, which had for many years been confined to buildings of an almost obsolete type in the downtown section, were brought further north, following the improvement in rapid-transit facilities, and these downtown districts were practically deserted in favor of the more modern up-town conveniences. In several instances important industries, which for generations had been grouped in lower Manhattan, followed the trend of the times and journeyed northward. The war, with its resultant disruptions of business activity, particularly that of real estate development along commercial lines in the mid-town section, checked this movement for several years. Now, however, investors and operators are apparently of the opinion that the time is ripe for further commercial expansion, and they are preparing a program of store and loft-building construction in the district between Thirty-first and Forty-second streets, Broadway to Eighth Avenue, which, while not as yet so important as that movement of several years ago, still is indicative of an extremely lively building period to come later this year.

Two of the most important daily newspapers are planning new structures for the expansion of their news service. The New York Tribune recently purchased a plottage in West Fortieth Street for the erection of a modern printing establishment, and the New York Times has announced its plans for a large addition to its plant in Forty-third Street. S. Morrill Banner and Herbert Mitler have had plans prepared by Robert T. Lyons for a $2,000,000 office and showroom building, twelve stories in height, at 132 to 138 West Thirty-sixth Street, running through to Thirty-fifth Street. Schwartz & Gross are preparing plans for a fourteen-story store and loft building at 142 to 148 West Thirty-sixth Street for Julius Tishman & Son, who in former years were extremely active in this section. This project will cost approximately $1,000,000. George and Edward Blum are the architects for a fourteen-story store and loft structure at 237 to 239 West Thirty-seventh Street, for Lefcourt & Haas, and Max Aronson will soon start the construction of a $2,000,000 commercial building at 242 to 252 West Thirty-sixth Street, from plans by Schwartz & Gross. At 206 to 212 West Thirty-fourth Street the North River Savings Bank is planning a new building to cost about $100,000, and there are several important alteration projects underway or contemplated that will practically amount to new buildings, as they will completely reconstruct old-fashioned buildings into modern commercial structures.

It has been a number of years since there was as much activity in this particular part of Manhattan as is scheduled at present, and with this for a start there is every likelihood this district will be one of the most active from a construction standpoint of any in Greater New York.

Walter Stabler Discusses Mortgages at the Y. M. C. A. Realty Lecture Course

BEFORE a good-sized audience, comprising the Real Estate Class of the West Side Y. M. C. A., Walter Stabler, Comptroller of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, delivered a lecture Tuesday evening that aroused much interest among the class, many of whose members asked questions afterward. His subject was: "Real Estate Mortgages—What They Are, How They Are Made, How They Are Collected." Louis V. Bright, president of the Lawyers' Title & Trust Company, presided and introduced the speaker as one best qualified to discuss the subject of mortgages. A feature of the class was the presence of several women, which in this era of women real estate brokers, shows that there are more women considering real estate as a business.

Mr. Stabler, in opening his address, remarked that Mr. Bright knew as much about the mortgage market as he did and that he could recall the time when he was glad to go to Mr. Bright to learn something of value about real estate and mortgages.

Continuing, Mr. Stabler said: "Mortgages are such a common thing in life that the general public knows all about them. I should say that about 95 per cent of all real estate is mortgaged. The investing public is so accustomed to a mortgage that they think they are as necessary to real estate as a house is. Some real estate is unimproved and is mortgaged.

"What is a mortgage?" asked Mr. Stabler. "It is an instrument that is recorded. It establishes a lien of record against real estate and is an official notice of a lien. Mortgages in New York state, and in some other states, are always accompanied by a bond. A bond is really a personal promise to pay, a personal liability. If a property is sold in foreclosure and does not bring the amount of the mortgage with expense, then, of course, a deficiency judgment is taken against the borrower. No man should lend or borrow on mortgage without the services of a lawyer, for there is nothing wiser than avoiding mistake for either side. A mortgage is a technical instrument.

"In many states, among them Missouri, California, Louisiana and others, a trust deed takes the place of a mortgage. The borrower deeds his property, during the life of the loan, to a trustee, specifying the purpose. He signs notes, agreeing to pay so much with interest. Sometimes he does not sign interest notes. This trust deed provides security of payment at the time fixed. The practice is not exactly the same in all states that use this method. In Indiana, Illinois and Minnesota, especially, the lender has less security than in other states. It is up to the lender there to thoroughly know what he is doing. An owner in those states has right of redemption before the purchaser at foreclosure can get title. This is bad for both the borrower and lender, because it makes complications regarding the rent and taxes.

"In New York state the normal time for a foreclosure to be completed is about three months, provided there is no defense to the action. With a defense, and in bankruptcy proceedings, the time is usually much longer; in fact, it is frequently indefinite.

"In states where the trust deed procedure is followed there is no such delay and uncertainty. If there is a default in the trust deed the holder of the deed has the Sheriff advertise the property for sale and that official sells it from the Court House steps. The owner cannot get away with the income. The mortgagee gets quick possession. That has its advantages. I would like to see the various states get together on this vital subject of mortgages and arrange some uniform method that would redound to the advantage of all. The New York method has its good points and so has the trust deed method.

"Pennsylvania is strong on mortgage matters. The mortgagor has to give a judgment bond wherein he confesses judgment. If he is in default the mortgagee can docket the confession of judgment and the Sheriff, as a result, can sell. The judgment bond also encumbers any other property the mortgagor may have, as this bond automatically becomes a lien. It is advantageous because it provides absolute security for the lender and practically prevents the necessity for a deficiency judgment."

Mr. Stabler went into a lengthy discussion of real estate bonds. He said that the system was a Western idea originally. The methods, he said, were not the same as those used by conservative lenders. The underlying principle of real estate bonds was the same as that of railroad bonds. The bonds are issued and secured by mortgages, said the speaker.

"Another system," said Mr. Stabler, "are real estate certificates, such as title insurance companies provide. They are really bonds. The advantage is that they have a careful real estate security behind them and guarantee of payments. Certificates and guaranteed mortgages are fine investments. The companies that issue them have large capital and surplus and the interest is always paid. This line of mortgage business

Housing Shortage Measured by Census and Building Facts

Increase in Population in Last Five Years Just About Equals Some Estimates of Present Deficiency, But Allowance Must Be Made for New Building

WITH the Legislature at Albany considering plans to continue the rent and tax-exemption laws for another year or possibly longer, the question uppermost in real estate and building, as well as lay circles is: "How extensive is the actual shortage of living space in New York City today?" A great many think inadvertently of Manhattan as comprising the municipal area affected, whereas the question applies intensely to the Bronx, Brooklyn and Queens as parts of the city contributing much to the alleviation of the housing shortage and as parts where population is growing.

The Federal census shows an actual decrease in the population of The Borough of Manhattan in the ten-year period from 1910 to 1920 of 48,860, and the Bureau of Vital Statistics estimates that there has been a further decrease in this borough of 9,872 in the two years since the census was taken, making a total decline of 58,732 in twelve years. Taking Manhattan alone, there are, therefore, about 6,000 less families to be taken care of than there were twelve years ago. This means that, other things being equal, a "shortage" of apartments in Manhattan cannot reasonably be figured out, because the number of large apartment buildings constructed and of one-family houses altered into one- and two-family apartments has almost certainly offset the replacing of housing by commercial structures on the Island.

Investigation by the RECORD AND GUIDE shows that there continues to be a shortage of housing space in all the other boroughs. Rentals have not receded any in them, except slightly between renting seasons; and they rise to prevalent levels with the approach of each rental period. There is not being built and there probably will not be built any apartment houses that builders can rent at the standards which prevailed before 1918. Builders maintain that no such rentals can be offered, that the question is entirely an economic one involving the cost of labor and material and that pre-war standards of rentals would be absolutely unprofitable.

On the other hand, it is contended by some that if multi-family houses increase vastly in number the increased supply will cause a reduction of rentals. The fact that rentals have not decreased is causing thousands of families, who in the past lived in rented apartments, to board with families who have fair-sized apartments. There are thousands of families, too, who in the past occupied apartments of from five to seven rooms who are living now in apartments of three rooms in order to whittle as closely as possible to the bone of low rental.

The Bureau of Vital Statistics, using the Federal census figures as a basis, estimates the increase in the population of the five boroughs of New York City from 1917 to 1922 as 439,395, or a total of 87,879 families, on the generally-accepted theory that on the average five people constitute a family. The Lockwood Committee holds there is a shortage of about 80,000 or 85,000 apartments in New York, or practically the same as the probable increase in population as figured on the arithmetical basis by the Bureau of Vital Statistics. Building stopped in 1917, and if there had been no building since it would be reasonable to estimate a shortage of about 85,000 apartments in the whole city. But what are the facts?

In 1920 there were built over a hundred tenements costing more than $20,000,000, also 4,000 one-family houses, and nearly a thousand two- and three-family houses. The figures for 1921 are given more in detail below, but they aggregate many times the 1920 showing, and all reports indicate that before the Emergency Rent Laws expire by limitation on November 1 next there will be constructed, ready for occupancy, many times the number of apartments, one- and two-family houses and single residences that have been built during 1921.

These facts must be taken into consideration in estimating the present shortage and that which will exist on November 1 next. Certainly enough housing has been constructed in 1920 and 1921 to materially reduce the "shortage" of 80,000 or 85,000 which the Lockwood Committee indicates. And with the present impetus attained by builders this shortage will be still further reduced by next November.

Brooklyn last year built and is now building more apartment houses than any other borough and a large number of one- and two-family houses. The total number of applications for building permits granted in Brooklyn last year was 2,194, and ninety per cent of these have been utilized to build and the rest will be, the delay being a matter of arranging building loans. The total estimated cost of all kinds of buildings for living purposes planned in Brooklyn last year was $162,132,547. These will accommodate 25,000 families.

The new year has started well in the matter of new building. The week ending January 7 witnessed the filing of plans in Brooklyn for 160 new buildings to cost $1,336,000 and to provide for 299 families; and the week ending January 14 showed plans filed for buildings to house a total of 800 families and to cost an aggregate of more than $4,500,000.

In Queens about forty per cent. of the new living space planned and being built is ready for use. This includes multi-family houses and one- and two-family houses. This Long Island borough is building more one- and two-family houses than multi-family houses, with the result that while the total number of buildings is greater the total amount of living space is not any greater, if as great, as in Brooklyn. The street and sewer system of Queens, as a whole, is not so complete as in the older borough of Brooklyn, and consequently one- and two-family houses are more suitable for much of the territory. During 1921, in Queens, plans were filed for 7,864 frame one- and two-family houses to accommodate a total of 11,844 families; 786 brick one- and two-family houses, to accommodate 1,280 families; 346 frame flats with stores, to house 586 families; 407 brick flats with stores, to house 768 families; and 141 multi-family houses, with accommodations for 1,267 families. Practically all of these are under way and will be finished this Spring. In addition, there are 87 brick tenement houses with stores that will house 664 families. The total estimated cost of new living space in Queens planned during 1921 is $58,000,000. The year 1922 will in all likelihood witness even heavier building of residential buildings of all kinds. Queens did not start the erection of multi-family houses to any extent until midsummer last year, whereas this year numerous plans for multi-family houses and one- and two-family houses have already been filed. Of 16,409 new living quarters provided for in Queens last year about 6,500 of them are ready for occupancy, and they have been largely rented or sold, as some of this space comprises one- and two-family houses. Plans for new buildings for living purposes filed with the Queens Bureau of Buildings

ANALYZED BY REALTY AND CONSTRUCTION LEADERS

Frank Bailey, vice-president of the Title Guarantee and Trust Company—At the present time it is absolutely impossible to produce a house which can be occupied by a tenant who can afford to pay a maximum of $12 a room, and when one remembers that the greatest number of people are in the class that can pay $12 or less a room, then it is perfectly obvious that the poor man is not approaching cheaper rents, but is approaching higher rents.

Louis V. Bright, President, Lawyers Title and Trust Company—A slow but steady resumption of buyers willing to take mortgage offerings is apparent. Even the demand for outside bonuses and commissions is less evident. As yet the demand is for the very best, and investors are critical, as they should always be, of the security offered.

Joseph P. Day—1920 was a record year in the auction market and few people thought that the 1921 totals would even equal it. That they were mistaken is now a matter of history, and 1921 will certainly go down as a banner year. The home and lot buying movement is in full swing. The demand is far from satisfied, and I look to see great activity during the next spring and summer.

Robert E. Dowling, President, City Investing Company—Real estate in New York is in fine shape entering the new year. It is in the soundest condition I have known since 1907. It may not be known generally, but there is less mortgage on Manhattan real estate today than there was ten years ago. Thousands of mortgages have been reduced from 20 to 40 per cent. during that time and equities, of course, have been increased. Too much stress cannot be placed on this point, for the mortgages were reduced during periods of depression. People got into the habit of paying off mortgages.

J. Clarence Davies—I think that 1922, from all present aspects, is going to be a year of real real-estate activity. In my opinion the people who get in at present will have the opportunity to make profits before the year 1923.

Colin M. Eadie, of James N. Well's Sons—There are several hundred houses in the Chelsea section rented to tenants, in most cases at old rentals, who sublet for furnished rooms, and whose owners would be glad to alter into apartments, but the rent laws as administered will not allow them either to improve the property or obtain an equitable return for their investment, so that the Chelsea section for 1921 has had the poorest year in its history.

Charles G. Edwards, President, Real Estate Board of New York—The beginning of the new year brings to mind the great activities in real estate during the year just closing and the possibilities of a new year and the necessity for co-ordinating the interests of real estate brokers and owners throughout the city. The Real Estate Board of New York has adopted its programme of activities for the coming year and hopes for great achievements in municipal and legislative work, tending to increase the usefulness of the board to its members and creating activities that should enlist the hearty support of those interested in real estate, whether from the standpoint of the broker or owner.

Douglas L. Elliman—It looks now as if an equilibrium had been established and that owners would no longer seek the excessive rentals of two years ago, but would be satisfied with a fair return on their investment, which would mean a slight reduction from the scale of rentals established last year. We are, however, a long way off from an adequate supply of low-priced apartments, and a great change must come over the entire industrial situation before such a thing is possible.

James B. Fisher, President of the Brooklyn Real Estate Board—The next year bids fair to be a wonderful year for real estate to come into its own, with fixed values, better financing, restored confidence and a fuller realization by the public that after all it is the most stable thing in existence.

Fenimore C. Goode, of Brett & Goode—The center of speculative activity just now is the Pennsylvania Terminal district. This wide expanse of territory, extending from Thirtieth to Forty-second street and from Broadway to the Hudson River, affords more opportunity for the real estate operator and speculative builder than almost any other section of the city. After fifteen years of quietude the district is at last awakening.

Harry Hall, Vice President of William A. White & Sons—A man need not be a prophet to venture the assertion that New York—far from being finished—has really only just begun.

Charles H. Jewell, of Lawrence, Blake & Jewell—The new year of 1922 promises to show further improvement in the general estimation of real estate as a possession, with therefore higher appraisal valuations on land and old buildings in good condition and more building on account of lower costs of new construction. There should be a constantly increasing supply of mortgage funds.

Clarence H. Kelsey, President of the Title Guarantee and Trust Company—The crux of the whole situation is the excessive cost of materials brought about in many cases by illegal combinations on the part of the material men and the excessive wages and limited production of union labor. The Lockwood Committee is right in insisting upon the evils of both classes being corrected as quickly and fully as possible so as to make unnecessary any extension of the tax exemption privilege and to discontinue it as quickly as possible. The situation will never be righted until honesty in dealings is recognized by both the material men and the mechanics as the best policy.

Bryan L. Kennelly—Manhattan has hardly been developed and within the next decade or two, when the real stride of development is begun, we must look for a real estate growth outdistancing by a tremendous margin any growth of the past.

William D. Kilpatrick—The fact that building was progressing all over the country without tax exemption or other artificial stimulant has not seen the light of day. It is unfortunate that the extra burdens of taxes and rents of non-exempt property imposed by tax exemption must be borne by those least able to bear them.

E. A. MacDougall, President, Queensboro Corporation—If there was any justification for the existing emergency rent laws there was the same justification for the tax exemption law. If there is excuse for one there is need for the other. The exemption should continue with the rent laws. If one is re-enacted the other should be. But, in any event, the exemption should be continued to November 1, 1922, so as to insure that new dwellings will be constructed for which plans have already been filed as of December 10, 1921, which amounted to $95,000,000.

William F. Morgan, President of the Merchants' Association of New York—The underlying business conditions throughout the country are sound. Our resources are unimpaired. Our domestic market, to which apparently we must look mainly for some time to come, is increasing in purchasing power. All that is needed is the spirit of confidence and there are many signs that this is returning.

Paul Nehring, Vice President, Nehring Brothers—Last year was a very active and interesting year on Washington Heights, with a strong demand for investment property. The majority of owners realize that in holding Heights improved property they have something that is staple and will be in demand as long as real estate is to be considered a good investment.

Charles F. Noyes—In our opinion the year 1921 clearly demonstrated our belief in the superiority of downtown real estate. We expect that the year 1922 will see a large amount of funds ordinarily invested in stocks and bonds devoted to the purchase of downtown real estate. There is also a constantly increasing flood of funds for mortgage loans, which greatly aids investing purchasers.

Robert E. Simon—Many fear the possibility of a reduction in rents. This is bound to come, but should not disturb the investment market. The activity will be on a much safer and saner price level. It is not healthy to have a condition where either landlord or tenant is in the position of dictator of price and terms. The large lending institutions can help a great deal to prevent extreme over-production.

Paul Starrett, President, George A. Fuller Company—A large number of substantial new building projects are on the way. The supply of space at present is probably greater than the demand, but the population of New York is increasing at the rate of 200,000 per year, and this will absorb a large amount of space. Conservative real estate men are of the opinion that the present unoccupied space will be absorbed within a year. Before very long tenants who were forced into inconvenient, undesirable space will return to the better, more up-to-date buildings, and this, with the natural growth of the city, will absorb any available space now unoccupied, and there will be tenants for many more well located, up-to-date buildings.

S. W. Strauss, President of S. W. Strauss & Co.—The supply of money and credit have been restored to normal. With interest rates relatively low, the price of credit is again within reach of business men. The great reservoir of the national credit is ready and funds are ample to put into business when business is ready to go ahead.

Port Is Topic at First Monthly Realty Board Dinner

Successful Inauguration of Series of Get-Together Meetings for Discussion of Questions of Prime Importance to Business

MARKING the first monthly gathering of members of the Real Estate Board of New York, in accordance with a program to be carried out seven more times this year, about two hundred members of the organization dined at Delmonico's on Thursday evening, January 12. The diners heard an analysis and a lively discussion of the question of improving the Port of New York in accordance with the general plan of the Commission of Port Authority. After the event was over it was the consensus of opinion that the occasion was one of the best get-together affairs that the Board has ever held. The spirit of good fellowship abounded, and many members who were not well acquainted had opportunity to become more intimate as the evening wore on.

Charles G. Edwards, President of the Board, who presided, said that he was much gratified at the size of the attendance, and he expected that the next dinner would be still better attended. He said he hoped that the gatherings would be educational; and it was evident that the first one was. Mr. Edwards stated that each month there would be discussed some question vital to real estate values that hinged on municipal improvements or taxation, and that at these gatherings such questions could be heard at length.

E. H. Outerbridge, Chairman of the Commission of Port Authority, and Julius Henry Cohen, counsel to that body, were the speakers. Mr. Outerbridge had illustrated on a screen various working parts of the port area and discussed appropriately each picture as it appeared.

A question that interested the realtors greatly was one put to Mr. Cohen by Alfred E. Marling, former President of the Chamber of Commerce, which was: "How is this great project, as proposed, to be financed?" And promptly Mr. Cohen answered: "The act creating the Port Authority did not empower it to raise money by taxation or by pledging any municipality or any state within the port area to extend credit. The money will have to be raised by the issuance of stock. No one can doubt, in the light of the business already done within the port area and the business yet to be done on an enlarged scale, the stability of the investment. These securities will be tax exempt and the exemption cannot be impaired by any future action of either New York or New Jersey.

"After the states have approved the plan we know that there will be sufficient saving accomplished by the development of new facilities to take care of a sinking fund for any securities issued. We must prove the efficacy of the plan to the public, not the voting public, but the investing public. And we can go ahead with the building of the facilities proposed just as fast as we can show that they are economically sound. We have tried to show by our remarks and illustrations here tonight that they are as sound as every dollar put into them."

Mr. Cohen was asked what the effect would be if the proposed St. Lawrence River canal should be built before plans for the improvement of this port could be put into effect.

"If the canal it built first it would develop the diversion of business away from New York," he said. "The cotton business has gone, and I have been told that New York need never expect to get it back again. The export tobacco business also has been lost. If the grain export business goes to New Orleans and Montreal, New York may expect to lose it all before she can catch up."

"We can use the Barge Canal and the Hudson River and give the West a cheaper outlet to the sea than through the St. Lawrence. That is what Governor Miller meant when he urged the use of existing capital investment. The State has spent $165,000,000 on the Barge Canal, and the Governor took the business point of view in saying that we should take existing capital investment and improve that."

Prominent among the members of the Real Estate Board who attended were Robert E. Simon, W. D. Kilpatrick, Charles F. Noyes, Laurence McGuire, Walter Stabler, Alfred E. Marling, Francis Guerrick, A. N. Gitterman, Alexander C. McNulty, Richard O. Chittick, as well as representatives from nearly every prominent real estate firm in the city. From Brooklyn came Fenwick B. Small, George H. Horton, and James B. Fisher, President of the Brooklyn Real Estate Board, and Arthur W. Gelston, Secretary of that Board.

Bill Before Congress Paves Way For New Federal Building

PLANs for the demolition of the old postoffice and the erection of a new Federal building on the old court house site have been materially advanced by the introduction in Congress of a bill providing for the appointment by Postmaster General Hays of a commission of "Three officials who shall have authority to exchange the land known as the old postoffice site in the city of New York for other lands to be deeded by the city of New York in exchange for such site; that this commission shall confer and arrange with the authorized committee of the Board of Estimate of the city of New York, consisting of the Mayor, Comptroller and President of the Borough of Manhattan."

The bill was introduced by Representative Albert B. Rosedale following the approval by President Harding of Postmaster General Hays' proposal at a recent cabinet meeting that a suitable building or buildings should be provided to house the various Federal bureaus in the city now in the old postoffice or in rented quarters. It was found that approximately $900,000 per year is expended for rent of offices in New York City. The project of the removal of the old postoffice building has been agitated for several years but not progress was made until about three months ago when Postmaster General Hays took the matter up with Comptroller Craig and representatives of various civic organizations in the chambers of Federal Judge Martin T. Manton. It was then virtually decided that the Federal Government would go on with the project if the proper sort of legislation and an appropriation could be obtained from Washington. The Board of Estimate Committee, which was appointed after a hearing on the project several weeks ago, and with whom Mr. Hays' commission will have to deal, consists of Mayor Hylan, Comptroller Craig and Julius Miller, President of the Borough of Manhattan.

Comptroller Craig, in discussing the matter with Postmaster General Hays, told him that if the Federal authorities would indicate how much ground they needed for new buildings the city would be in a position to make an offer of land in exchange for the old postoffice site. In accordance with this plan the various Federal departments at Washington are making investigations of their present accommodations in this city and the need for additional space. When these facts have been collected tentative plans for one or more buildings will be drawn and estimates of cost will be prepared for submission to Congress. Congressman Rosedale has received assurances that his bill will come up for a hearing before the House Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds within a few weeks. President Harding's approval of the project marks a departure from the Government's policy for several years that no public building measures should be considered by Congress until other pressing legislation was disposed of.

The city officials are considering the offer of the block bounded by Leonard street on the north, Baxter street on the east, Worth street on the south and Center street on the west.

Postmaster Morgan is working with the special committee appointed by Postmaster General Hays to study ways of improving the postal service in this city. The members of this committee are William Fellowes Morgan, President of the Merchants' Association; Clarence H. Kelsey, President of the Title Guarantee and Trust Company; Michael Friedsam, President of B. Altman & Co., and ex-Governor Alfred E. Smith.

Review of Real Estate Market for the Current Week

Every Borough of the City Figured Prominently in the Dealing and Residential, Manufacturing and Commercial Parcels Divided Honors

THERE were a few notable high spots in the real estate market this week, together with a varied assortment of general dealing. Emphasizing the heavy dealing in vacant plots in the Bronx, that has prevailed for many months, was the sale of the old homestead tract of the Patterson estate, comprising 34 lots and overlooking Poe Park, in the Fordham section. The old holding was for many years the residence of the late well known City Magistrate and politician, Jacob Patterson. The tract will be improved with large apartment houses and a picturesque spot will have vanished. Another big transaction was the sale of a six-story factory building, with railroad connections, in Long Island City.

The Childs Restaurant firm bought a building, in the Broadway section of Harlem, for its business uses. This is the second parcel that this chain store firm has bought within two weeks. Its policy usually, in the past, has been to lease a store or building for 21 years or more and equip it for its purposes. Perhaps the notably high rentals on new leases in busy centers is impelling the firm to buy links in its chain as a more satisfactory and profitable way of handling them. Another large sale in Long Island City was that of the American Chiclé Company's plant to a dye firm.

Marking activity in improved property in the Bronx was the resale of the Haffen Brewery property in the Melrose section. The sale to the city of a 9-story concrete loft building in Brooklyn, for use by the Board of Education, was another distinguishing feature of a busy week. There were some large apartment house deals in the northern reaches of town. A landmark was marked for demolition when old St. Luke's German Evangelical Church property, on West 42d street, changed hands. Church sites adjacent to Times Square or any other vital center of the city's life have become too valuable for religious uses; but, the church that has such a site to sell is lucky.

Two large sites for modern buildings in the Pennsylvania zone and the sale of some small parcels there swelled the total of the week's business remarkably. The lower West side contributed some sales that mark an activity caused by the building of the vehicular tunnel. Numerous business tenants bought the properties they occupy. This may be taken as stability of business in given centers and a strengthening of the investment movement throughout the city. Some large parcels on Staten Island changed hands.

Some large and long-term leases in strategic business sections were negotiated. The renewal of a long lease in the chemical district was marked by a one hundred per cent increase in the rental. Numerous dwellings in good residential sections were leased and several were leased for the purpose of remodeling into business structures and small apartment houses.

PRIVATE REALTY SALES.

THE total number of sales reported, but not recorded in Manhattan this week, was 127, as against 133 last week and 98 a year ago.

The number of sales south of 59th st was 51, as compared with 59 last week and 76 a year ago.

The number of sales north of 59th st was 76, as compared with 74 last week and 44 a year ago.

From the Bronx 53 sales at private contract were reported, as against 56 last week and 20 a year ago.

Statistical tables, including the number of recorded instruments, will be found on page 84.

Another Ancient Holding Sold

An additional purchase has been made by I. Randolph Jacobs and Everett Jacobs to their holdings by the acquisition of 557 Water st., a 5-story brick warehouse, size 24x74.4, through Harry B. Cutner, from the estate of Katherine Remson Hunter, another branch of the old Rutgers family, who part with this property after an undisturbed ownership dating back over 250 years. Messrs. Jacobs now control the four warehouses, 557-565 Water st.

Seamans Estate Sells a Corner.

L. Tanenbaum, Strauss & Co. sold for the estate of Clarence W. Seamans to George A. Gunshor the northeast corner of Bleecker and Lafayette sts, a gore strip 2x100x81, running along Bleecker st to Shinbone alley. The estate at one time owned the adjoining improved parcel and sold it in 1920 through the same brokers. The late Mr. Seamans was long of the firm of Wyckoff, Seamans & Benedict.

The buyer of the gore will improve it with a store structure. The gore was caused by the widening of Lafayette st.

Tenant Buys Hudson St. Parcel

Crist & Herrick sold for Herbert and Albert Marshall, to the tenant, 555 Hudson st., a 3-story brick building on a lot 16x87.4x16.9, adjoining the northwest corner of Perry st.

Bradhurst Av. Corner Sold

Nehring Bros. sold for the Chateau Holding Corporation, Sidney Sonn, president, to Frederick Horling 242-246 Bradhurst av., two 6-story apartment houses, on a plot 101.11, northeast corner of 154th st., overlooking Colonial Park. The immediate corner contains stores.

Resells Elevator Apartments

The two 6-story elevator apartment houses, 240x97.4, at 715 to 725 West 172d st., have been purchased from the Ralph Realty Co., Samuel Wacht, Jr., president, by the Joe-Hen Realty

Co., Joseph Goldfein president. The houses are between Fort Washington and Haven avs, and are arranged for 84 families. They were held at $550,000 and return an annual rental of $90,000. Benjamin Harris was the broker.

This is part of the square block comprising ten apartment houses and 19 lots, bounded by Fort Washington and Haven avs, 172d and 173d sts., bought by the sellers in November from the Ecallew Co. All of the block has now been resold with the exception of the Fort Washington av block front. A large vacant parcel was sold to Joseph Wolkenberg, who is erecting two elevator apartments.

City Buys Big Brooklyn Building

M. & L. Hess sold for the Tillary Construction Co., to the City of New York the 9-story reinforced concrete and fireproof building, 200x100, covering the block fronting on the side of Concord st., from Duffield st to Flatbush av extension. The ground area is 20,000 square feet, while the structure itself embraces 180,000 square feet.

The same brokers leased 4 floors of this building in October, 1921, to the Board of Education. The city authorities, however, found it to the advantage of the city to become owner rather than lessee, and hence purchased the property. The owners were asking $850,000. The Board of Education has taken possession and is now occupying the premises.

President Kelsey's Annual Report

C. H. Kelsey, president of the Title Guarantee and Trust Company, submitted his annual report to the stockholders and trustees at the annual meeting of the company, held on Tuesday last. President Kelsey pointed out that from the standpoint of earnings 1921 was the most productive year in the company's history, showing net profits of $2,161,562. He added, however, that these excess earnings were due to the fact that the securities sold showed a profit instead of showing a loss, as they did in 1920.

The statement of the condition of the company on December 31, 1921, shows total resources of $54,770,500.54, of which $13,987,042.11 represents bonds and mortgages. The Title Guarantee and Trust Company is capitalized at $7,500,000, its surplus at the end of the year was $11,000,000, and undivided profits $584,427.23.

In the course of his annual report, President Kelsey brought out the fact that there were fewer deeds and mortgages recorded this year in most counties in and surrounding Greater New York. Queens, Richmond and Nassau show a slight increase in the number of deeds and mortgages recorded, but the total number for Greater New York and surrounding counties this year is 241,020 as compared with 272,795 instruments for 1920. The company's business in Brooklyn and Queens shows an increase in earnings, but Manhattan, Staten Island and Westchester a decrease.

A total of 31,170 titles were examined compared to 31,353 last year and 40,182 for the year 1919, which was the record year.

Continuing, the report says: "Our sale of guaranteed mortgages, including guaranteed mortgage certificates, this year amounted to $55,642,278. This is the largest sale of mortgages since the year 1909 when the sales amounted to $63,000,000. There are only four years in our history where the amount has exceeded the present year's sales. These were the years 1904, 1905, 1906 and 1909.

"Of the more than $55,000,000 in mortgages sold last year, $13,000,000 were certificates sold to about seven thousand separate investors. These small investors are not concerned with income taxes and through these certificates, secure a high type of mortgage investment and safety of principal together with a liberal return on their money and freedom from any danger of loss which many of them have experienced in investing in fluctuating securities and, far too often, wild-cat ventures.

"The company, on the other hand, has been able to take large mortgages without giving thought to finding some large investing institution to take them off its hands. We took last year and disposed of in these certificates many large mortgages. Among them, one of $1,500,000 on the Garment Center Building, $775,000 on the Combustion Engineering Building at Nos. 43-47 Broad St., $750,000 on the Brooklyn Edison plant, $650,000 on 440 Fourth Ave., $500,000 on the Town Hall, $500,000 on the New England Apartments and $1,250,000 on the Pershing Square property opposite the Grand Central Terminal.

"Besides the larger mortgages, there were many mortgages of $100,000 and less sold to investors through our certificates. The first week of January is particularly investment week and the sales this year have exceeded anything we have ever done before during this part of the year. In the first week of the year with four and one-half working days, the Manhattan office sold $856,000 worth of certificates to 391 people and the total sales of mortgages and certificates in both Manhattan and Brooklyn amounted to more than $2,000,000."

The Banking Department, it is shown in the report, had deposits at the close of the year amounting to $33,773,078, representing 13,226 accounts. The earnings of this department during the year amounted to $500,170.73, after charging off every questionable loan.

An interesting feature of President Kelsey's annual report was his comment on the prospects for the new year. In this connection, he said: "We are looking for a good year in 1922. Capital is ready for investment in building if only investors can be assured that those who build the houses will get their materials at fair prices and that those who work on the houses will do a fair day's work for a generous day's pay. If we can have honestly constructed buildings, there is no limit to the prosperity that can come to the building industry in New York City and its surroundings during the coming year. Almost all sorts of construction are needed badly and we will make wonderful progress if those who supply the material and those who do the work can only learn that they suffer along with the rest of the community when the materialman fixes unfair prices and the mechanic furnishes only half a day's work for a full day's pay. Real profits and real wages are not increased by such methods. So much more must be spent for the necessities and the pleasures of life that the real income is much lower than it seems and the amount in the bank at the end of the year does not spell prosperity.

"The fact is that the tax exemption privilege on new construction is really working to the disadvantage of the people who need housing relief most seriously—the people who cannot pay more than $8 or $10 a room per month. The tax exemption is creating a boom in the construction of homes for the well-to-do—those who can pay $25 or more per room per month, and if it continues, there will soon be an over-production of such space and nothing will be done for the poorer classes. Homes are not built for them because, with the present costs of material and high cost and low productivity of labor, no homes can be built to rent for $8 or $10 per room per month. The result is that so long as labor can be employed at the extravagant rates demanded and produce as little as it does, the material men can get the high prices demanded for material, and builders can employ both and have the taxpayers foot the bills, there will be nothing done to produce the kind of homes that are most needed. There should be no extension of the tax exemption and no more building of the kind of homes that have been produced so extensively during 1921, but labor should come down in its wages and up in its production and material prices should come down so that something can be done for those who can pay only a low rent."

Bronx Sheriff's Auctioneer

Eugene J. Busher, of the Eugene J. Busher Co., has been appointed Sheriff's Auctioneer for Bronx county.

D. H. Jackson Moves Uptown

Having occupied a suite of offices at 135 Broadway during the last decade, Daniel H. Jackson, who is prominent as a real estate operator, will remove on May 7 to the Craftsman Building, at 5 East 38th st., through to 6-8 East 39th st. Mr. Jackson owns the building, a 12-story structure. He has long bought and sold choice parcels in Manhattan and the Bronx.

Another Board Member

John J. Fogarty, of T. A. & J. J. Fogarty, has been elected an active member of the Real Estate Board of New York.

J. B. Cornell Buys Dwelling

Douglas Gibbons & Co. sold for H. A. Collins, Jr., to John B. Cornell, head of the Cornell Iron Works, 144-146 East 83d st., two 5-story American basement brick dwellings, on a plot 25.8x 102.2, 3 doors east of Lexington av. The buyer will alter them into one house.

Large Industrial Building Sold

Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. sold for all cash, for approximately $500,000, to the Standard Sanitary Manufacturing Co. of New York and Pittsburgh, manufacturers of plumbers' supplies, the 6-story fireproof building, with railroad siding, comprising 83,000 square feet of floor space, with 69,000 square feet of vacant land adjacent, located in the industrial section of Long Island City, at the southwest corner Jackson av. and Honeywell st., opposite the Beebe av. subway station and 12 minutes from the Grand Central station. Cross & Brown were the brokers.

The building was erected by the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. for occupancy by its Eastern distributing house. Subsequently it was leased, through the Cross & Brown Co., to the Chevrolet Motor Co. for a term of 10 years, for the uses of the research department of that company. After the Dupont interests gained control of the General Motors Co. this department was removed to Detroit. With the sale of the building the lease to the General Motors Co. has been cancelled. This is one of the few buildings with a railroad siding available in the industrial section of Long Island City.

Big Bronx Corner Resold

Simon Myers and Fred Oppenheimer sold the 6-story apartment, Nos. 1933-1939 Southern Boulevard, the northwest corner of Elmsmere pl. and opposite the Elmsmere Theatre. The building fronts 82 feet on Southern Boulevard and 140 feet on Elmsmere pl., contains 6 stories and 35 rooms on each floor, arranged in suites of 4 to 6 rooms each. The purchaser is Mr. Kafka, who will hold the property for investment. The sellers recently acquired the premises from the Edmund Francis Realty Co., a holding company for the Rhineland Estate, and held the same at $165,000.

Notable Bronx Transactions

Julian Kovacs, operator and builder, purchased from the Patterson Estate plot of 34 lots, covering the block front on the east side of Grand Boulevard and Concourse, having a 312-foot frontage; the block front on the north side of Kingsbridge rd. having over a 322-foot frontage, and the block fronting on the west side of Valentine av. having over a 313-foot frontage.

It has an ideal location, as it is situated directly opposite Poe Park and the elevator apartment house, which is now being constructed by a prominent Bronx builder, who has also purchased an additional 235 feet for improvement.

Mr. Kovacs will improve the corner of the Concourse and Kingsbridge rd. with a 12-story elevator apartment house, which will have a frontage of 212 feet on the Concourse and 200 feet on Kingsbridge rd. This building will accommodate 300 families, and will be laid out in suites of 2, 3, 4 and 5 rooms. The cost of this operation is estimated at $2,000,000.

The balance of the plot on the Concourse and the plot on Valentine av. will be disposed of to builders for apartment house sites and the Kingsbridge rd. site will be disposed of to builders for business.

This property has been in the Patterson family for more than 50 years. Armstrong Bros. were the brokers who negotiated the sale. The same brokers are now negotiating for a re-sale of the balance of the plot to builders.

Co-Operative Buying in Queens

The Misses Julia H., Florence A., and Emily P. Davis, formerly residents of Baltimore, Md., have purchased two apartments in 137 23d st., Jackson Heights; also at 136 21st st., Jackson Heights, an apartment has been sold to John C. Sparkes, production manager of the Standard Scientific Co.

New York Title & Mortgage Company Establishes New Records

In his annual report to the stockholders of the New York Title & Mortgage Company, President Harry A. Kahler states that the operating results for 1921 record another advance over all previous years in the history of that company. President Kahler further advised the stockholders:

"The current ease in the money market is strengthening the demand for guaranteed mortgages and certificates. Mortgage certificates are acquiring an unique place among investment securities. They combine the safety of an ordinary investment with insurance against shrinkage in capital value and flexibility in amounts available. Public appreciation of the safety and convenience of our guaranteed mortgage certificates will surely further expand this department of the company's business.

"Satisfactory growth of the American Trust Company continues in all branches of its business. There has been a substantial increase in the trust department activities, including registrar and transfer work, requiring additional space for proper administration. Important additions to facilities for both the Title Company and Trust Company are also to be made in the Brooklyn and Jamaica offices, the latter now being under way.

"The total number of deposits in the American Trust Company on December 31, 1921, was 7,070, an increase of 1,565 during the year. The total capital, surplus and profits were $2,156,221.44, with total resources of $19,042,563.87, at the end of the year. Dividends at the rate of six per cent. per annum, payable quarterly, are now being distributed. After paying dividends, setting aside reserves for rtaxes and other purposes, and inventorying securities at market values, the balance of earnings for 1921, amounting to $150,448.93, was carried forward to undivided profits. This gives the American Trust Company stock a book value of $143.75 per share, at which figure it is carried as of December 31, 1921, on the books of the Title Company.

"The current trend of title and mortgage business is indicated by the fact that, during the month of December, the number of title items and the gross amount of fees entered were greater than in any other month of the year."

President Kahler also presents in his report some interesting comparisons of important items in the company's operations for the past two years, showing that during 1921 a total of $32,206,321.23 was loaned on bond and mortgage, as against a total of $23,028,613.82 in 1920, an increase of $9,177,707.41; sales and mortgages totaled $30,539,983.66 in 1921, as against $22,986,241.69 in 1920, an increase of $7,613,741.97; and that at the end of 1921 the company's total of guaranteed mortgages outstanding was $59,923,432.28, as against $50,786,350.32 at the close of 1920, an increase during the last year of $9,137,081.96.

The gross income of the company for the year 1921 was $1,662,670.07, and the expenses, including appropriations for employees' profit-sharing fund, were $921,994.81, leaving net earnings for the year of $740,675.26. Dividends paid within the year amounted to $299,376.00, and the undivided profits shown on December 31, 1921, amounted to $1,432,712.23.

William Pierre Jockin represented the lessee and Cushman & Wakefield, Inc., represented the lessor in the transaction. This lease involves an aggregate rental of over $250,000.

The purchase, too, abuts the property acquired by the purchasers in January, 1920, from the West 34th Street Reformed Church, adjoining the northwest corner of Eighth av and 34th st, formerly occupied by the West Side Bank.

This addition gives the Manufacturers Trust Co. a plot fronting 50 feet on the west side of Eighth av and 175 feet on the north side of West 34th st, extending to the Manhattan Opera House, and thence northerly 200 feet to the south side of West 35th st, where it fronts 50 feet, giving the buyers a continuous plot of 17,500 square feet.

The West 34th Street Reformed Church edifice, acquired a year ago, has been altered and is now used in connection with the banking office of the buyers.

Davis and Westheimer have recently subleased the property to I. Flugelman, proprietor of the Hotel Hamilton, who will conduct the restaurant. Alterations are being made from plans by Schwartz & Gross, architects.

Important Operations Already Under Contract Plus Numerous Projects Planning Assure Busy Building Season in Metropolitan Area

HERE is every present indication that 1922 will be a banner year for building interest in the Metropolitan District. Already the list of proposed operations is far more extensive and diversified than it was at this time in 1921 and every day brings announcements of new operations either being planned or actually placed under contract. Considerable of the new construction reported during the past month is scheduled for an immediate start and the remainder will in all probability be under way before the end of spring.

One of the principal facts brought out in a study of this list of projects to be constructed this year is the marked re-

The list of projected building operations printed herewith is not a complete summary of the construction in the Metropolitan area by any means. It only points out the most important of that large group of operations to be erected during the coming months, and does not include any of the vast vital of interest in the commercial development of the mid-town district of Manhattan. Already the plans for new structures in this section will require the outlay of millions of dollars, and there are negotiations now under way that will materially increase the number of large structural operations in this vicinity.

began about 40 years ago, and it is now a most important branch of the mortgage business.

"Now, as to a second mortgage. It is something you pay for and pay well. Big chances are often taken with them. High rates of interest and bonuses usually accompany it as well as discounts. A second mortgage is frequently a necessity. It is a fairly safe investment if not too large. One always needs to remember that the first mortgage takes precedence and the holder of a second mortgage should look well into the first one. Fine first mortgages are those of the average building and loan association. A good feature of them is that they are steadily amortized. Building and loan associations are active in every state and they are very strong in some. Their total assets are $2,500,000,000 in the nation. Their operations mean that after a dozen years many a man owns his own home who would not otherwise own it.

"Much has been said," continued Mr. Stabler, "about speculative builders. They are a necessity to any growing community, especially to a large city. New York has practically been built and rebuilt by speculative builders. It is their policy to borrow all that they can get on a building undertaking. They take building or temporary loans. An agreement is made with the lender to advance money in given sums of the total to be obtained at certain stages of construction. When the building is completed the lender is sure to make a search for liens and the final payment is not made until there is evidence there are no liens. Insurance and other companies make permanent loans on real estate. The largest part of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company's business is in permanent mortgage and building loans.

"Before a big lender on building loans does business at all with a builder, the lender must have plans submitted for minute inspection by an architect employed by the lending institution for that purpose. They must be good plans to be favorably considered. They must visualize the building to the practised eye as it will look when completed, including all of its living conveniences and comforts, its heating and sanitary systems, etc. When buying land, a builder should take all of this into consideration. And then go to the company's architect with comprehensive plans for careful inspection. The architect examines the layout of the plumbing, heating, elevator service and what not. There are stringent provisions in the building loan agreement regarding all of these factors of construction. And if they are not fully complied with the builder may not get his loan; at least not all of it. The strong hand held over building loans by the large lending institutions has resulted in better built buildings of all kinds. The speculative builder is thereby restrained from doing poor work and the building is a better investment for the buyer and a better investment for the mortgagee. The building loan agreement is in effect a certificate of the character of the structure. All lenders, large and small, should follow this course. It tends to stabilize real estate. There is a plan in contemplation by the title insurance companies to establish a bureau to enforce such an agreement where they have anything to do with building loans. It makes buildings better to lend on and above all it makes better buildings.

"There is a tendency, nowadays, to make long term loans more popular, with instalment payments. The American Ambassador to France, Hon. Myron T. Herrick, is not only a keen diplomat and publicist, but he is also a careful observer of contemporary events of life. He has written a book entitled 'Rural Credits,' wherein he elucidates the mortgage lending methods among the populace of France, Belgium, Germany, Austria and the Scandinavian countries. You should all read it. In those countries they have very long term mortgage loans on all kinds of real estate, terms of 50 years and less, and terms that run beyond a lifetime and are taken up by the heirs of the departed. The rate of interest is very low. There is an amortization of one per cent, or more a year, according to the capacity to pay comfortably. These mortgages encourage thrift among the working classes and they accordingly promote a better social status and better civilization.

"The general impression of a mortgage is that it runs forever.

If it does it should not. Something should be paid off of a mortgage every year, even though it be a little. It makes the lender feel more comfortable and the borrower feel easier and richer. The lender can only call so much at one time as is mutually agreed upon. Savings banks everywhere ought to follow this rule, but they do not always do so. Some such mortgages run in their entirety for years. A good plan would be to arrange longer term loans with easy payments. Such a policy affords money to help others on the road to safety. I hope to see such a plan become more general. Guaranteed mortgages are the best for small investors and of that there is no doubt. I hope that the era will arrive when banks and insurance companies will lend almost entirely on real estate mortgages. When a mortgagor has paid something on account of his mortgage he has not spent it or sent good money after bad. He has simply invested it and that is the way he should feel about it. That is what I tell mortgagors I deal with. The method of paying mortgages differs in nearly all the states. New York has the safest method of all. Every satisfied mortgage or payment on a mortgage is recorded. In New Jersey only a receipt is written on the mortgage instrument that a payment has been made.

"Blanket mortgages are another form of mortgage security. Many land companies avail themselves of them. A blanket mortgage should provide for releases, from the blanket, to given lot buyers. The particular lot and block number sold should be marked 'Released' on the map or diagram filed with a blanket mortgage. Sometimes releases are not provided for, but where they are provided for there is no difficulty."

Discussing the abolition of the mortgage tax in New York State, Mr. Stabler said: "In its place the lender has a mortgage recording tax. It calls for the collection of one-half of one per cent. This income is divided between the county and the state. In New York and adjacent counties the tax yields a large revenue. A mortgage is otherwise exempt from state and local taxation. Theoretically the lender pays the tax, but actually the borrower does. The unusual mortgage tax created the impression that the title companies lending on mortgage were practicing usury, inasmuch as the interest on the mortgage was often six per cent and the mortgage tax was additional. It is now fully settled that there is no usury practiced, as any tax charged goes to the state and not to the lender. Very few states have a mortgage tax of any kind. The tax does not exempt such mortgages as are subject to it from the income tax. The last few years have witnessed some of the largest real estate owners paying 73 per cent. of their income annually over to the government in the form of an income tax. This condition has resulted in eliminating the big individual lenders from the mortgage market, and it has been a serious blow. On a mortgage at six per cent they each got net about 1 per cent. The result has been that these former big lenders have put their money into tax exempt securities. It has removed from the mortgage loan market hundreds of millions of dollars, and the circumstance accounts for the high rates of interest that have prevailed so long. There are now sixteen billions of dollars in tax exempt securities. Secretary of the Treasury Mellon recently announced that there would be no more of them. At least he will recommend that there will be no more of them, anyway. And it is probable that there will not be.

"As regards title insurance, it is wise for every buyer of property and every lender of money on mortgage to be sure of the validity of the title. Do not trust to any guess work and trust no one except the clear title after search. It is the only safe and sound way. Thousands of persons have had bitter experiences by not having titles searched and guaranteed."

this year aggregate to date 400, including one- and two-family and multi-family houses.

The Bronx during 1922 will far outstrip its building record of 1921. During the last few months there has been an extensive sale of large vacant plots there, for improvement with apartment houses. Since January 1 this year up to last Monday there had been filed with the Bronx Bureau of Buildings plans for 155 multi-family houses, to accommodate 5,850 families; and a total of 1,217 one- and two-family houses to accommodate 1,550 families. During 1921 the Bronx built only seventy multi-family houses, providing for 2,710 families, and a total of 618 one- and two-family houses that accommodate 780 families. The total cost of living space construction in the Bronx last year was $56,167,749, whereas during 1920 the total cost was only $7,672,975. Which shows that the Bronx in 1921 did more than eight and one-half times as much to meet the living situation as it did in 1920. In 1916 there were 6,033 vacancies in buildings in the Bronx containing three or more families.

The figures of population and building during 1920 and 1921 prove conclusively that there cannot be a shortage as great as is claimed by some, and that whatever shortage exists today will be substantially reduced by November 1 next when the rent laws, unless extended, will expire by limitation.

Many Large Buildings Planned for Early Spring Start

Construction Statistics Tabulated by F. W. Dodge Company Show Gains in Commercial and Industrial Activity in Local Territory

RECORDS of building commitments for the first two weeks of 1922 show that the construction industry is in an infinitely better position than it was one year ago and that there is every reason for an optimistic attitude on the part of every one affiliated with the planning and erection of new structures. According to figures tabulated by the F. W. Dodge Company, showing the number and value of new construction projects planned and contracted for in New York State and New Jersey, north of Trenton, for the second week of 1922, there is far more work for building interests in sight at the present time than there was a year ago, and every likelihood that the list of projected operations will steadily increase.

The statistics for the week of January 7 to 13 inclusive show that architects and engineers in this territory had started work on plans for 444 new structural projects that will involve an outlay of approximately $27,622,000. During the same week announcements were made of the ward of 304 contracts that will require an expenditure of more than $13,000,000.

Residential construction continues to predominate when the figures for the entire territory are analyzed, but according to all reports there is likely to be a better ratio between housing construction and all other types of building in the Metropolitan district during the coming season than there was last year. Already there is a decided improvement in the volume of proposed commercial and industrial construction scheduled for New York City and its environs and an increase has also been noted in educational and philanthropic building.

The list of 444 operations for which plans were announced during the second week of 1922 includes 79 business projects, such as stores, offices, lofts, commercial garages, etc., $6,319,500; 7 educational buildings, $224,100; 3 hospitals and institutions, $1,610,000; 19 industrial projects, $760,000; 11 public works and public utilities, $171,400; 3 religious and memorial projects, $148,500; 315 residential operations, including apartments, flats and tenements and one and two-family dwellings, $17,436,500, and 7 social and recreational projects, $952,000.

Among the 304 projects for which contracts were placed during the week were 40 business and commercial jobs of various types, $1,873,500; 2 educational buildings, $330,000; 4 hospitals and institutions, $201,000; 6 industrial projects, $811,000; 2 public structures, $33,000; 20 public works and public utilities, $691,600; 2 religious and memorial buildings, $35,800; 223 residential projects, including multi-family structures and one and two-family houses, $8,643,500, and 5 social and recreational operations, $477,000.

Efficiency of Fire Windows

The steady increase in the annual fire losses shown in reports from all parts of the United States is arousing new attention to ways and means for reducing this menace to life and property, whose toll during 1921 again set a high record.

At the present time a method for retarding fires is rapidly gaining greater popularity, which is said to be the most successful means yet devised for preventing the spread of fires. This is the installation of what are known as "fire windows" in buildings, supplanting shutters and sprinkler systems.

Such windows, which are made of wire glass—that is, glass re-enforced by a wire mesh which is imbedded in it—and have hollow metal frames, are manufactured by the S. H. Pomeroy Company, Inc., whose factory and general offices are located at 282-296 East 134th street.

They were first introduced some twenty years ago, and were immediately proclaimed far superior to metal shutters for windows as fire retardants. Their invention is said to have been inspired by the failure of shutters in several disastrous blazes and the realization that some more efficient window protection was necessary.

In a number of serious fires it was found that the wire glass windows not only remained intact but prevented the communication of fires to inflammable buildings.

Since that time the wire glass windows have been adopted for many of the most important office and factory structures not only in New York City and its environs but throughout the country, and wherever tested by fire are declared to have proved their complete efficiency.

Creosoted Wood Block Floors

The use of treated wood block floors in 1920 showed an increase of over 80 per cent. over the 1919 figures, according to the Service Bureau of the American Wood Preservers' Association. Creosote oil and a creosote coal-tar paving oil were used as preservatives, with an average absorption of approximately nine pounds per cubic foot. Incomplete statistics for 1921 show an increase over the 1920 figures and a tendency toward the absorption of a little less oil per cubic foot for interior floors.

The desire for a permanent, resilient floor with high wearing qualities is given as the reason for the increased demand for floors of this type for factories, machine shops, foundries, warehouses, and mills of various kinds.

CURRENT BUILDING OPERATIONS

A GOOD deal of satisfaction is daily being manifest by construction interests over the manner in which the building situation is shaping up. There is no doubt that the outlook is far more encouraging than it was one year ago and that during the coming months a tremendous volume of new construction will be released. This is already apparent through a study of the commitments of the past few weeks and an analysis of the work being planned by the leading architects and engineers of this city.

The new projects scheduled for an early start are much better diversified as to type than they were one year ago; there is a large amount of residential work contemplated and in all probability this character of operation will continue to be the dominating influence during the forthcoming season. But there is a very decided improvement in the outlook for commercial and industrial operations and fair prospects for considerable educational and philanthropic building. Taken as a whole the building situation is far better off at present than it has been for a long while and if the labor question could be settled without further delay there would be no reason for building interests not experiencing an unusually busy and prosperous year.

The inclement weather of the past few weeks has slowed down business in the local building material markets to some extent, but there is a lot of new inquiry that is indicative of active times just as soon as conditions permit. Prices are fairly steady and the only exception is the slightly advanced quotations on common brick.

Common Brick—Business in the New York wholesale market for Hudson River common brick has been dull during the past week. The cold weather has slowed down construction to a considerable extent and as a result sales in the wholesale market have been light. Inquiry is fair, however, and denotes a large amount of important construction ready for a start as soon as weather conditions permit. No arrivals of new brick were reported this week and as long as the river remains ice-bound there is little likelihood of added supplies as shipment by rail is prohibitive because of the high freight rates. Common brick prices are slightly higher than they were last week. Although $15 a thousand is the general quotation there are several manufacturers who are asking a slight advance over this price and it is the general opinion that the price situation will be firm with possible advances while the source of supply is shut off by the ice.

Summary—Transactions in the North River brick market for the week ending Thursday, January 19, 1922. Condition of market: Demand relatively light; prices slightly advanced and firm at the new level. Quotations: Hudson Rivers, $15 a thousand to dealers in cargo lots alongside dock. Number of cargoes arrived, none; sales, 6. Distribution: Manhattan, 2; Brooklyn, 4. Remaining unsold in the New York wholesale market, 15.

Structural Steel—Although actual orders for fabricated steel for buildings are not numerous there is a lot of new inquiry and there is every indication that within the next few weeks a decided change will take place in the market situation as applied to structural steel. Quite a number of important contracts have been awarded recently and a vast amount of proposed work is now out for estimates, so that it is likely that the commitments of the next week or so will involve a large total tonnage. Among the projects for which structural steel orders are pending are the addition to Macy's department store, 8,000 tons; the

MATERIALS AND SUPPLIES

New York Cotton Exchange, 3,000 tons; the Newark Chamber of Commerce Building, 1,000 tons, and a number of smaller tonnage orders for less prominent operations. The manner in which the steel business is improving is reflected in the monthly report of the Bridge Builders and Structural Society, which states that during the month of December, 1921, 71,500 tons of fabricated structural steel was contracted for throughout the United States, which is equivalent to forty per cent. of the entire capacity of the bridge and structural shops of the country. The total tonnage sold in the United States in 1921 was 758,300 tons, equal to thirty-five per cent. of capacity.

Electrical Supplies—Trade is fairly active in this line, and all signs point to a busy season ahead. Jobbers generally report that wiring materials are moving steadily and there are indications that both contractors and dealers are buying somewhat in excess of their immediate requirements. There has been a very decided improvement in the number of new inquiries, and with the promised revival of building there is no doubt the electrical industry will experience excellent business during the coming months. Prices generally are steady and no radical changes are anticipated. Conduit stocks are in good shape, and there is a fair demand. The demand for flexible armored conduit and rubber-covered wire is steady, but with marked signs of increasing as building improves.

Cast Iron Pipe—Private demands for this commodity continue to dominate the market and the trading is somewhat above normal for this time of the year. There is but little municipal demand current, but according to plans now in preparation there should be a decided revival of business from this source early next spring. Throughout the cast iron pipe industry there is a very much better feeling than existed at this time one year ago. In January, 1921, manufacturers were extremely happy to be able to operate their plants at about twenty-five per cent. of capacity, while now the busiest of the eastern manufacturers is running at about eighty per cent. of capacity on actual orders, and none are working at less than seventy per cent. Prices are firm, with New York quotations as follows: 6 in., and heavier, $47.30 per net ton; 5 in. and 4 in., $52.30; 3 in., $62.30, with Class A and gas pipe $4 extra per ton.

Reinforcing Bars—Both demand and inquiry have improved during the past week or so and manufacturers anticipate excellent business in this line this year. There are indications of a marked improvement in industrial and commercial construction and reinforced concrete will be a popular medium in this work. Concrete bar prices are steady.

Window Glass—Business in this line has dropped off to some extent during the past week or so, but prospects for spring and summer business are very good, as there is a vast amount of proposed building that will likely be started soon. The outlook for another large residential building movement this year is promising and jobbers are depending upon this to a considerable extent. Prices are steady and practically unchanged.

Builders' Hardware—Demand for hardware items continues active, and local jobbers and dealers expect an unusually busy season, as there are prospects of a tremendous increase in general construction within the next few months. The residential building program of 1921 was the salvation of this industry, but from all current accounts the business of last season will be relatively small when compared to that scheduled for the coming season.

A Positive Foundation Upon Which to Build

The Federal Reserve Board, in its January bulletin, declares that "the most encouraging feature of the business situation is that a positive foundation apparently has been established upon which to build development during 1922." Governor Harding believes that the country as a whole has passed safely the points of danger entailed in after-war deflation.

One positive foundation upon which real estate and construction interests can effectively build their business is regular, consistent advertising in

Applications for Loans

We would be glad to receive applications from borrowers for loans between $10,000 and $30,000 in the Boroughs of Manhattan and the Bronx.

We do not confine our loans to any particular class of property but require it to be properly located for its use and advantageously occupied.

The rate is six per cent. and the fees are reasonable and we are prepared to deal either with brokers or principals.

Our special desire for loans of this size just now does not preclude our handling very small loans or very large loans as usual.

A Passing Opportunity

Experienced real estate men know that 5½% on a first mortgage, guarded and guaranteed by a mortgage insurance company, is an abnormally high rate. That is why we suggest that guaranteed mortgages be purchased now, for a reduction in rate later in the year is very probable.

Labor Must Share the Burden

When the Board of Governors of the Building Trades Employers' Association formally rejected the proposal of Samuel Untermyer that the prevailing wage problem be settled by entering into a new contract with labor for two years from January 1, that the present wage scale be continued for the year 1922; and that the wage scale for 1923 be based on that of 1922, subject to decrease or increase in the cost of living for the year 1922 as compared with 1921, they took the only action possible if the building situation is to be readjusted upon a basis fair and equitable to all.

Up to the present time every element in the industry, with a single glaring exception, has made concessions and sacrifices in an effort to revive activity in the construction field. Contractors have cut their profit margins to the absolute minimum compatible with good business practice; material manufacturers have lowered prices by reducing their labor costs and increasing their output; and material dealers, in order to stabilize and improve the building situation, have absorbed losses that under ordinary conditions should have been passed along to the consumer.

Organized building labor stands alone as being unwilling to make a reasonable concession to stimulate construction and relieve the housing shortage even when they will be the direct gainers through more employment and lower living costs because of reduced rentals.

A proposition that is favorable to one element of the building industry and not to all is not economically sound. So that adequate housing may be provided at moderate rentals everyone affiliated with construction must share equally in the burden of reducing costs. Labor cannot be the exception nor should it be. The old agreement between employers and employes expired on December 31, 1921, and since then several constructive plans have been presented for drafting a new contract. None of these have been acceptable to labor now apparently insisting on having its own way or leaving the situation deadlocked.

This attitude is manifestly unfair. Much work is to be done if the housing problem is to be solved and labor, one of the most important factors in this program, is holding out for conditions that would give them a decided advantage over all other elements in the industry.

Printers' Ink to the Rescue

Editors of the metropolitan dailies must have misplaced their sense of humor, judging from the very grave and serious manner in which they accord big display heads and front-page space to Mr. Samuel Untermyer's latest scheme for solving the housing shortage.

Mr. Untermyer's plan gets top position all along the line, no happening anywhere else in the world being of sufficient importance to crowd it off the first page of the morning dailies. Newspaper editors may have winked at their associates or poked the office boy in the ribs as thus they give such prominence to the scheme, but it is to be doubted if any of them really take the news half as seriously as it appears when they have passed it on to their readers.

"Mr. Untermyer Plans Homes for 225,000," one headline reads: "Untermyer Has Plan to Construct 45,000 New Homes for $100,000,000," is the way another daily booms the big news. All along the line in newspaper offices, Mr. Untermyer's pronouncement from Washington Heights is treated with the utmost solemnity. No magician asserting that he could turn elephants into pink butterflies by wiggling his left ear could possibly have inspired greater awe.

There is, of course, no question but that it would be a great thing if Mr. Untermyer could build 45,000 new homes for 225,000 people for $100,000,000. In fact, that would be a fine thing for anybody to do. Maybe that is why the newspapers suppressed their sense of humor for the moment and "played up" the idea. Mr. Untermyer stands ready, if the newspapers reflect his idea accurately, to do all of these wonderful things if some one else will furnish the money, if labor will contribute a part of its labor gratis, and if material dealers will furnish the materials regardless of market conditions. Under such circumstances, almost anybody could end a housing crisis without the slightest difficulty, and have time left over to dabble in a dilettante way in the struggle for justice of the Western farmer and the suppression of the booze traffic along the Atlantic Coast.

This latest idea of Chief Counsel Untermyer may deserve well, but it will be interesting to see whether the other fellows come forward to furnish the money, to do the work for less than regular pay, and to furnish the materials for less than market prices. Stranger things have happened, but it is very difficult to recall when or where.

Report of the Davenport Committee

After three years of earnest work, Senator Davenport's committee which has been studying the tax laws of the state has filed its report with the Legislature. That this inquiry should have extended over so long a period causes surprise in some quarters, but the fact that Senator Davenport and his associates gave so much time to the task may prove in the end of the greatest possible advantage.

No subject has so palpably needed careful attention at Albany as revision of the tax laws. The injustice of some of these statutes, the inconsistencies, the ineffectiveness, and especially the absence of impartial enforcement in all sections of the state, have constituted for many years a grave scandal. Other sagacious leaders before Senator Davenport had taken up boldly the task of improving this situation, but it is the unfortunate fact that their efforts did not meet with marked success. A lot of petty politicians, with Assembly Districts as their kingdoms, have been able for years to control enough Assemblymen to block any real lasting revision of the state's taxation system. Former efforts for improved conditions have met with such poor support in the Legislature that Senator Davenport and his associates deserve special credit for plunging into the subject with so much force and determination.

In some respects the report just made by the Davenport Committee contains recommendations more sweeping than any submitted by former investigators. Public attention particularly will be directed to the committee's proposal that the Special Franchise Taxes be abolished. The fact that these levies were established after a hot fight at Albany led by Roosevelt as Governor and fought by the corporations and the politicians, will cause the public to look with suspicion upon their repeal. There is, however, great force and logic in the Davenport Committee's contention that these special franchise valuations, classified by law as real estate and in many cases pledged in fixing the local constitutional debt limits, may be working to the very serious disadvantage of real estate itself.

Rent Cases Argued Before United States Supreme Court

Washington, Jan. 25, 1922.

THE rent law cases on appeal to the United States Supreme Court were argued today by Louis Marshall, who appeared for those attacking the law on the ground of its unconstitutionality, and by W. D. Guthrie and Julius Henry Cohen, in defense of it. Two cases were before the Court. The first was that of the Edgar A. Levy Leasing Company against Henry R. Stern, which involved the constitutionality of Chapter 944 of the laws of 1920, providing that in suits to recover rent for premises used as a dwelling it should be a good defense that the rent had been increased over the charge existing one year before the lease, on the ground that such rent was unjust, unreasonable and oppressive. The other case, known as 810 West End Avenue, Inc., against Jerome Siegel, involved Chapters 942 and 947, which prohibited the bringing of ejecting proceedings and summary proceedings to recover possession of dwellings prior to Nov. 1, 1922.

The landlords side of the argument was presented by Mr. Marshall who said the acts deprived the landlord of his property without due process of law, impaired the obligation of his contract and denied him the equal protection of the law. He attacked the presumption created by the act that the lease was oppressive from the mere fact of an increase within one year. He said that a public emergency due to housing conditions affecting the public welfare did not in fact exist; that the mere recital in the act of the existence of such an emergency did not create one, and that even if an emergency existed, it would not justify legislation in violation of the Federal Constitution.

Mr. Guthrie argued that the Legislature passed the law after three years of exhaustive examination by a legislative committee and the taking of 50,000 pages of testimony.

Mr. Guthrie stated that on Oct. 1, 1920, 100,000 families in New York were served with notices of eviction.

Basing his argument on the maxim that "The welfare of the people is the supreme law," Mr. Guthrie said he conceded the measure would be unconstitutional if there was no compelling necessity for it.

"But," he added, "if there was an emergency which really involved the health and the morals and the safety and welfare of the community, neither the contract clause nor the due process of law clause of the Constitution, within the settled doctrine of this court, prevented the Legislature from affording the appropriate remedies: and the only question before the court, the only question of constitutional law, was whether the end was legitimate; whether the purpose in the mind of the Legislature was legitimate; and if so, then whether the means adopted were reasonably adapted to remedy the public evil."

Mr. Cohen, in supporting the law, said that the whole course of history showed the evils resulting from wholesale evictions, and that every civilized country had found it necessary to pass such legislation as a result of the war.

New Federal Building Bill Favorably Reported

Washington, January 25,

A FAVORABLE report on Representative Rosedale's bill to authorize the President to appoint a Commission to negotiate the exchange of the old Postoffice site below City Hall, New York, for other property on which a new Federal building or buildings may be erected to provide accommodations for the postoffice, the Federal courts and other bureaus now housed in rented quarters, at a cost to the National Government of $800,000 annually.

It is understood here that President Harding will appoint Postmaster General Hays, Secretary Hoover, Secretary Mellon, Secretary Davis, Attorney General Weeks, and that the New York City Commission will include Mayor Hylan and Comptroller Craig.

The hearing on the bill was held by the House Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds and the favorable report was the result of unanimous action of the Committee.

A number of representatives of business organizations from New York appeared, including D. Everest Wade of the American Institute of Architects, R. B. Ingersoll of the City Club, Henry Collins Brown of the Citizens' Committee, and Arthur N. Travers of the Merchants' Association, all of whom favored the bill. There was no opposition.

Real Estate Board Banquet Next Saturday

THE twenty-sixth annual banquet of the Real Estate Board of New York, to be held at the Hotel Commodore on the evening of February fourth, will be unusual to the extent that it will have as its chief speakers, the governors of two states. Governor Nathan L. Miller of New York and Governor Edward I. Edwards of New Jersey have both consented to be present and to speak. Governor Miller's subject will be the development of the Port of New York. Governor Edwards will probably discuss the same subject, it being a joint project in which both the States of New York and New Jersey are interested.

James A. Cattel, City Statistician of Philadelphia and Martin

W. Littleton will also address the diners. Mr. Cattel runs to humor, as those attending the banquet in 1921 will recall. A public official of national prominence is expected to be among the speakers, but it cannot at present be announced definitely.

Charles G. Edwards, President of the Board, will make a brief address and act as toastmaster.

The Banquet Committee, in addition to its arrangements for the speakers, has prepared a program of entertainment that will compare favorably with previous efforts along these lines. The Committee is gratified with the reservations already made, which insure an attendance equalling that of 1921, when the diners numbered 1,450.

Davenport Committee Proposes to Equalize Taxes

Finds Great Inequalities and Evasion in Present Scheme of Taxation While All National, State and Local Expenditures are Increasing Rapidly

Albany, Jan. 25, 1922.

THE Committee on Taxation and Retrenchment, of which Senator Frederick M. Davenport is chairman, will make a preliminary report of its investigations which have been almost continuous for the last three years. This report contains several recommendations for tax changes and points out that great inequality exists in the taxes imposed on some classes of enterprise while others entirely escape taxation. The object of the legislation which will be asked for, according to Senator Davenport, will be not to increase but to equalize taxation. The committee has been impressed with the fact that expenditures of national, state and local governments have been increasing at an alarming rate during recent years.

"It is true these additional expenditures have, in many instances," said Senator Davenport, "gone for great public improvements. The Committee believes, however, that expenditures, even for such objects, will have to be watched closely in order that waste may be prevented."

The special franchise tax, Senator Davenport contends, should be abolished as soon as a constitutional amendment can be obtained for that purpose, and in the meantime all other State taxes on public utilities should be at once abandoned.

Among other outstanding recommendations made are one in favor of wiping out the last vestige of the personal property tax and another for the relief of real estate by doing away with the direct tax for State purposes now levied against realty, with the substitution of business taxes on unincorporated as well as corporated business earning annually above $5,000 on a basis of net income. The committee calls attention to the fact that from one-fifth to one-fourth of all the realty in the State is tax exempt.

Co-operation between the State and Federal Governments toward the elimination of exemptions from income tax of State and national bonds also is urged. A tax on gasoline and higher motor vehicle license fees are recommended.

The report of the Committee follows:

"Lack of attention to waste and to vast extensions of expenditure might easily precipitate a financial crisis in government of more far reaching effect than financial crisis in industry. The total tax burden, Federal, state and local, is estimated to be $106.97 a man, woman and child in the commonwealth.

"This is an increase of 170 per cent. in the ten year period between 1910 and 1920. Half of this burden is Federal and most of the remaining half is local. Only about 10 per cent. of the entire burden is made necessary by the state government. If the state government were entirely abolished, the reduction in per capita cost of government is shown to be only about 10 per cent.

"The Committee is impressed with the fact that burdensome taxation in some directions and unequal taxation in others is repressing initiative, is alarming property holders, and is retarding progress in many directions.

"The inequality of the tax burden is being felt alike by the rent payer, the farmer, the home owner, the small business man and the officials and stockholders of large and wealthy corporations. Even the rent payer does not escape the burden because, naturally, landlords pass on whatever they can of their increased tax load to their tenants.

"As far as the corporations are concerned, the question is not one of increased taxation but rather of unfair and unequal taxation. Some corporations and some classes of corporations are being taxed out of all proportion to the taxes levied against other business enterprises. Among different classes of public utility corporations some are being taxed to the amount of 4 per cent. of their net income and some to the extent of 10 per cent. Within the same class of corporations the present method of computing bank taxes or public utility taxes, for example, results in very unequal burdens.

Regarding the public utility taxation the report says in part:

"The present system of taxing these corporations in the State is a chaos of intricacy and complexity. The staff of the committee has reduced these complicated taxes to a basis which makes possible a comparison with the taxes paid by other business interests. The grossest inequalities come to light. Many of the companies, particularly some of the electric railway companies which are bound by a fixed low rate of fare, have been literally taxed into bankruptcy. Based on net income, the business taxes on electric railways are nearly four times as great as the corresponding taxes on manufacturing corporations. If local real estate taxes are taken into account, electric railways pay over 38 per cent. of their net income in taxes. This is nearly five times the tax paid altogether by manufacturing companies, for example.

"Not all the public utilities are so unfavorably situated, because some have been more successful in their efforts to shift their burdens to the consumer through increased rates. Every class of public utility, however, pays heavier taxes than either manufacturing or financial institutions.

"It is evident that the State has been using the public utilities to a considerable extent as tax collectors, imposing upon them obligations which in many cases are justified only upon the assumption that the extra burden can be passed on in higher charges to certain particular sections of the consuming public. Some can pass it and some cannot. In the case of those which can pass it on, why strike particular sections of the consuming public with unfair burdens;

"Completely satisfactory adjustment cannot be made until the Constitution is changed so as to make practical the abolition of the so-called special franchise tax.

"As an immediate means of improvement, the committee recommends that the entire series of complicated State taxes on public utilities be at once abandoned, with the exception of the special franchise tax, which cannot be immediately abandoned; and that in substitution a 'gross net' tax be established, against which special franchise taxes, pending the passage of the constitutional amendment, may be used as an offset. It is contemplated that the real estate public utility corporations, closely defined, shall continue to be taxed locally.

"What there is left of personal property taxation consists in part of the stock in trade of small business men whom the committee now proposes to reach by a more equitable method of general business taxation. The cities mainly interested in what remains of the personal property tax generally are Buffalo and New York. The committee proposes to safeguard their interest by permitting localities to participate to a reasonable extent in the proceeds of the taxation of those particular kinds of business which have never before been reached in the State.

"The purpose of this Committee has been to study the most important and urgent aspects of the taxation system of New York State in a comprehensive and scientific manner. It has utilized all available government data, both Federal and state, bearing on the problem, and has in addition conducted extensive statistical surveys on its own initiative. It will propose some changes, the carrying out of which must take time. It will also propose other changes that can be made at once, and that, in the Committee's judgment, should be made at once.

"The first of the latter class of changes has to do with relieving real estate of a portion of the tax burden it is now carrying. The revenue now obtained from real estate must, in part, be obtained elsewhere. As the state's immediate contribution to the relief of real estate the Committee intends to suggest that the state direct tax on real property be eliminated at the earliest practical moment in order that a beginning may be made in easing the onerous burden now borne in many

John M. Stoddard Outlines Real Estate Brokerage Law

Interesting and Instructive Lecture Given by Prominent Lawyer Before Realty Class in Y. M. C. A. Educational Course

BEFORE an audience comprising the Real Estate Class of the educational course at the West Side Y. M. C. A. on Tuesday evening, John M. Stoddard delivered a lecture on "The Law of Real Estate Brokerage." The speaker, who was introduced by Alfred E. Morling, is a prominent real estate lawyer and a member of the Board of Governors of the New York Real Estate Board.

Mr. Stoddard prefaced his exposition of the relations governing realty brokers with their principals by calling attention to the three kinds of law, constitutional, statutory and the common or unwritten law which latter has been defined as "the embodiment of principles and rules inspired by natural reason and an innate sense of justice," and stressed its importance, and then took up the business of brokerage. He explained that a broker to sell, must find and produce to the seller a person financially able, ready and willing to buy, upon the seller's terms, within the period of his employment, and before some other broker or the owner himself negotiates the sale. In short, he must bring the buyer and seller to an agreement upon all terms. Failing to do that, all of his pains are usually for naught.

"The duty of prime importance," continued Mr. Stoddard, "which a broker owes to himself, before engaging in the enterprise of negotiating a sale of real estate, is to see to it that he is properly employed by the person to whom he proposes to look for his commissions. One cannot usually recover for services voluntarily rendered without any employment. This is such a simple principle that it seems commonplace. But hundreds of cases have reached the Courts where brokers who actually brought about sales were deprived of commissions merely because they were not hired to perform the services which they did perform so well.

"In those cases where a broker negotiates a sale, and the Seller determines to contest the broker's claim for commissions, on the ground that there was no employment of the broker, the Seller usually pretends great surprise that a bill should be presented to him, and says that he assumed all through the negotiation that the broker was employed by the buyer.

"In real estate, we know that it is only in rare instances that a buyer is willing to pay commissions. Yet it does occasionally happen—just about often enough to make that pretense serve as a defense for an unscrupulous or unappreciative or ignorant Seller, when he is sued for a commission by a broker who has negotiated a sale. The Seller says, 'I never hired him. I assumed that he was employed by the purchaser.'

"This is the conventional defense which a broker has to meet in Court. In a large percentage of the brokers' cases which get into the Courts, the answer of the defendant owner is that, 'I never hired him.'

"In a case where two ladies informed a broker that they would like to buy a certain piece of property on Park avenue, in this city, and such broker had an associate who knew the owner, a United States Senator, resident in this city, the broker arranged with his friend to approach the Senator. The second broker induced the Senator to enter into a contract of sale upon which the purchaser subsequently defaulted. Thereupon the broker brought suit and obtained a verdict in his favor, but the judgment was reversed because no employment was shown. The Court said:

"We are of the opinion that said verdict is not supported by the evidence and is against the weight thereof, in that the plaintiff has failed to prove that he was ever employed by the defendant as a broker to sell its property. His negotiations were entirely those of a purchaser. He did nothing in the interest of, or for the benefit of the defendant; the property was never put into his hands for sale; he made the offers, and he represented people whom he continually spoke of as his clients."

"Another case of interest on this point related to a claimed commission for selling the property at the Northwest corner of Broadway and 34th street. The plaintiff was a real estate broker. He first called upon a gentleman who became the ultimate purchaser, and induced him to make an offer for the property to the owner's rental agent. The owner was abroad at the time. After the owner returned to this country, the plaintiff and his customer, Smith, called on the defendant, and during their conference a bargain was struck. Nothing whatever was said to the defendant about plaintiff's claim for a commission or that he was acting for the defendant owner. After the contract of sale was signed, plaintiff sent a bill to the owner which the latter declined to pay. Suit was brought. The court said:

"It is hardly necessary to cite authorities to prove that there must be an employment to entitle a broker to commission for the sale of the property; but what was said by Judge Woodruff in Pierce v. Thomas (4 E. D. Smith, 354) so concisely states the legal principle involved that the decision of this case can be rested upon his opinion. He says:

"To entitle a broker to recover commissions for effecting a sale of real estate, it is indispensable that he should show that he was employed by the owner (or on his behalf) to make the sale. A ratification of his act, where original employment is wanting, may, in some circumstances, be equivalent to an original retainer, but only where there is a plain intent to ratify. An owner cannot be enticed into a liability for commissions against his will. A mere volunteer without authority is not entitled to commissions, merely because he has inquired the price which an owner asks for his property, and has then sent a person to him who consents to take it. A broker has no better claim to recover for voluntary service, rendered without employment and not received and acted upon by the owner as rendered in his behalf, than any other volunteer. It is not true that an owner may not declare his price to whom he will without the hazard of paying commissions to those who volunteer, unasked, to send him a purchaser on his own terms."

"So, I urge upon you," continued Mr. Stoddard, "don't do any work unless you are employed to do it. Don't waste your time. Your time and skill and your willingness to venture them in a speculation are the only commodities that you have to sell. Make sure that your success will be rewarded before you enter upon the speculation.

"In a number of cases where a broker has been employed to sell or lease property, the courts have decided that such employment did not authorize the sub-employment of sub-brokers. The sub-employment of a sub-broker may obligate the broker to pay a commission to the sub-broker, but it does not fasten any liability upon the owner toward the sub-broker. The latter must prove that the broker was given authority to employ a sub-broker.

"In a case where the owner's son was a real estate broker, with authority to negotiate leases, and another broker introduced to the son the International Silver Company as a prospective tenant of a store on Fifth Avenue, and the Silver Company did take the lease, the court reversed a verdict in favor of the broker, on the ground that the son, although himself a real estate broker, and to a large extent in charge of his mother's property, had no authority to hire a sub-broker.

"So, also, where a married woman has owned property, and her husband has listed it with brokers for sale, she has, in many instances escaped paying a brokerage, because the broker was not able to prove in court that she had authorized her husband to employ a broker. There is no safe rule for you to follow except the one of securing employment, or a promise as to commissions from the owner himself. Reliance upon anything else involves too much risk."

Mr. Stoddard cited the following examples of the things in which a broker must use care to protect his own interests:

"In a case where a husband and wife owned property together, and the husband employed a broker to bring about an exchange, and later the wife, with full knowledge of the facts, signed the deed with her husband, the Court decided that she had thereby ratified the hiring of the broker and that he was entitled to commissions.

"In another case, where an attorney at law for the owner, without authority, employed a broker, and the broker did some work interesting an adjoining owner, and afterwards the broker and owner met, and the broker then mentioned his negotiations with the adjoining owner, and then the husband of the owner quietly stepped in and concluded the sale to such adjoining owner, the Court decided that the employment of the broker by the attorney had been ratified, and that the broker was entitled to a brokerage.

"It may also be possible for a broker to protect himself, under this principle of ratification, even where there has been no original employment by anybody. This can be accomplished by informing the owner, before the negotiation is completed, of what the broker has done, and obtaining the owner's approval of it."

Other points for a broker to remember were described by Mr. Stoddard as follows:

"The mere fact that an owner employs a broker to sell property does not accord to the broker an indefinite period in which to consummate a sale. The owner may terminate the employment and take up the negotiations himself, or employ other brokers, or withdraw the property from the market, provided that he acts in good faith.

"In one case which reached the courts it appeared that the brokers were employed in August to sell 258 lots, and were promised by the owner a commission of $50 per lot. The brokers erected an office on the property and expended considerable of their own money. There was no time limit in the contract of employment. The brokers sold only two lots. As a result, the owner revoked the employment in the following February, and sold the entire plot in bulk. The brokers sued for commissions or damages, but the Court decided that the owner had acted in good faith and could so terminate the contract.

"On the other hand, in another case, the brokers were employed in the middle of a summer, to sell 290 lots. Nothing was said about time limit. They expended considerable sums of money and did sell 85 lots. In December, the owner terminated the employment, and thereupon the brokers sued for damages. The Court decided that the broker had not been given sufficient time, and that they were entitled to have submitted to a jury the question as to the amount of their damages.

"A faux pas often made by a broker in his discussions and correspondence with an owner is to refer to the prospective purchaser as his "client." That is usually fatal to his claim against the Seller for a brokerage, and it always is fatal unless there is a definite agreement with the Seller to pay commissions. The reason is simple. When you tell the Seller that the prospective purchaser is your client, the Seller has a right to assume that you are working for your client and that your client is the one who will pay you.

"It very often happens," declared Mr. Stoddard, "that a broker is approached by some one who wishes to buy or to take a lease of property but who will not pay a brokerage. In such case the broker expects to work in the interest of the buyer or the lessee, as the case may be; but also must collect his com-

How a Few Landlords Used Wash Sales to Force Rentals Up

Lockwood Committee Gets Testimony to Show That Most of the Recent Landlord and Tenant Litigation Was Instigated by Ten Men

JOHAN P. BURNS, chief clerk of the Seventh District Municipal Court, on Thursday, January 19, gave the Joint Legislative Committee on Housing the names of ten landlords he declared had instigated three-quarters of the landlord and tenant cases in the section from 110th Street to Spuyten Duyvil which has a population of 600,000. Mr. Burns testified that these landlords had brought approximately 20,000 suits in his court and that 25,000 tenants had deposited more than $1,800,000 with the court as a result of these suits of which $1,350,000 had subsequently been paid to the landlords. The names of the landlords, with the corporate names under which they brought the cases and the approximate number begun by each, follows:

Joseph Schenck, from 1,500 to 2,000 cases, using the names of the Ardsmore Estates, Clason Finance Corporation, Liberal Finance Corporation, Klammer Realty Company, Penant Realty Company, Ranger Realty Company and Joseph Schenck Realty and Construction Company.

Newmark and Jacobs, 1,000 cases, operating as the Alabama Holding Company, Ashton Holding Company, Kentucky Holding Company and Broadway and 146th Street Holding Company.

Charles Moore, from 2,000 to 3,000 cases, operating under the names of Morris Moore's Sons, Inc., Anmore Realty Company, Traymore Leasing Company, Tri-Borough Investment Company, St. James Apartment, James Rensellaer, Inc., Carl Silverman and Clara Bauer.

Corporation of H. and A. Cohen, 1,000 cases.

F. A. Ottenberg, 1,000 cases, operating as Blanche O. Foster, Rauchen Raunheim.

David H. Van Damm, 2,000 cases, operating as Bendheim Construction Company, Duluth Realty Company and Evelyn Realty Corporation.

Mrs. Nellie Roach, 500 cases, operated as Roach Leasing Company, Arabella Realty Company.

Fifty Per Cent. Profit Sharing Company, 500 cases.

Philip A. Payton, Jr. & Co., 300 cases, operating as Payton Apartments, Inc., and W. A. Wortham. 400 Manhattan Avenue Corporation, 700 cases.

Burns said that the figures he gave were estimated and he was asked to have drawn from the books the exact number of cases in which the ten persons mentioned began rent suits.

William H. Wortham of 130 W. 142d Street, head of the Philip A. Payton agency, called to the stand by Samuel Untermyer, counsel to the Committee, testified that he was in business with his wife in the negro section of Harlem. He said he had brought 200 actions for increase of rent and 300 for dispossesses. He gave the real estate holdings of his wife, including 9 West 137th Street, 65 and 67 West 134th Street and 28 West 134th Street. The Payton Apartments, Inc., owns six apartment houses in West 141st and 142d Street. The witness was unable to answer many questions put to him by Mr. Untermyer, pleading he could not remember all the transactions. He will be recalled.

On Friday, January 21, Joseph Schenck was called to the stand. He testified that he is head of the Schenck Realty and Construction Corporation, which has never built a house, but has bought from 300 to 400 houses in the past five years. His place of business is at 552 Riverside Drive.

A year ago, Schenck testified he sold sixty apartment houses to the Ardsmore Estate. The transfer involved $8,000,000 worth of property and he received $250,000 in cash and $200,000 in preferred stock in the Ardsmore Estate and a blanket mortgage. He denied that he was in any way interested in the Liberal Finance Corporation, but under cross-examination he admitted that the Liberal Finance Corporation was controlled by Barnett Klahr of Brooklyn, co-owner with Schenck of the Ardsmore Estate. He also said the only property of the Liberal Finance Corporation consisted of two apartment houses sold to it by the Ardsmore Estate, which got them from Schenck, who bought them in 1919 for $375,000.

Schenck said that much of the $250,000 in cash paid into the Schenck Company by the Ardsmore Estate, went to the Liberal Finance Corporation. He was asked who collected for the Schenck Company. "Schenck," he replied.

Q.—And the Pennant Co. collects for the Ardsmore Estate? A.—Yes.

Q.—And the Pennant Co. is Mr. Shenk? A.—That's right.

Schenck testified that the Pennant Company was a name used by him to avoid keeping an agreement with the owner of a house he leased at Broadway and 168th Street to whom he promised to reveal the rents he was receiving. He renewed the lease in 1919 for $30,000 a year, an increase of $8,000, and is now collecting in rents from $55,000 to $56,000. He testified that he had increased the rents twice in that house. He changed this to say that he had increased the rents twice since the lease was renewed by him.

Schenck testified that the Klasco Company was controlled by Klahr, his associate in other business. He admitted that he had been bound over for trial on a charge of failing to provide sufficient heat and had served six months on Blackwell's Island for renting apartments to disorderly persons.

Tenants of 200 Claremont Avenue, owned by Schenck, had given the Committee figures which were shown to him after which he admitted that the increase in rent demanded of tenants were as high as 83 per cent. and that some of the tenants had paid increases of 25 per cent. to the previous owner, making total increases of 108 per cent.

The records produced showed that in one apartment a tenant named Maurice, paying $62.50, is being asked to pay $110. Other increases sought are from $65 to $110, $75 to $125 and $81.25 to $125.

Schenck said he had 2,379 tenants and had taken 300 cases to court. He denied that he furnished cash for the sale of the houses to other concerns so that he could legally raise the rents. He asserted his only revenue was a 3 per cent. commission on his collections.

Schenck admitted that he was being sued for the return of $16 a month rent in excess of the amount permitted by the court in the case of a tenant at 200 Claremont Avenue, whose rent was $84.

The Committee's examination into the affairs of 1,690 Broadway indicated a maze of transactions involving several transfers, new leases and the return of the property to Schenck and the transfer again to the Newton estate, which now owns it. Schenck owns 40 per cent. of the stock of the Newton estate, and Klahr, his associate in other enterprises, owns 60 per cent.

Watt Terry, a negro, head of the Terry Holding Company, owner of properties in the negro section of Harlem, testified as to the Fifty Per Cent. Profit Sharing Corporation, which he controls. Stock of this corporation had been sold to colored people.

Mr. Untermyer produced an official court summons in the case of Cyrus Trent, a tenant of Terry's, which showed that Terry had demanded an increase in rent of from $40 to $84. Terry testified his lawyer had probably demanded $84 in order to fix a basis for adjustment.

Charles Moore of 29 East 124th Street described his interest in Morris Moore's Sons, Inc., the Anmore Realty Co., Traymore Leasing Corporation, the Tri-Borough Investment Company, James Rennsellaer and Charles Silverman. He denied he had instigated 2,000 cases in the Seventh District Court and said he controlled only 700 apartments.

Construction Started on Large West Side Apartment

S. W. Straus & Co. Underwrites Mortgage for Nine-Story Project Being Erected from Plans by Schwartz & Gross, Architects

WITHIN a short time actual construction will be started on a new nine-story fireproof apartment house to be located in the north side of West 71st Street about midway between Columbus Avenue and Broadway. This structure, which will be erected from plans and specifications by Schwartz & Gross, will be owned by the 141 West Seventy-first Street Company, Jacob S. Kahn, president. The building will occupy a plot with a frontage of 100 feet by 102 feet in depth and will involve a number of unusual labor saving features.

S. W. Straus & Co. have underwritten a first mortgage seven per cent. serial bond issue of $550,000 on this project. It is expected that the structure will be completed and ready for occupancy by October 1, 1922. A valuation of $800,000 has been placed on both the land the building and the net annual earnings are estimated at approximately $78,000.

This new multi-family building will occupy lots 139 to 147 West 71st Street and will contain sixty-three housekeeping units of three and four rooms, each with bath, with a pent house on the roof in which quarters for servants will be located. The apartments will each have a large living room, one or two bed rooms and a combination kitchen and breakfast room.

S. W. Straus & Co. announce that they have recently underwritten first mortgage serial bond issues amounting to $12,485,000. The list includes two large apartment house projects in Manhattan, $2,250,000; one apartment in the Bronx, $1,300,000; a Brooklyn multi-family structure, $210,000; an apartment in Chicago, $1,000,000; one in Detroit, $1,250,000; an apartment hotel in Omaha, $550,000 and others in San Francisco, Wilmington, Philadelphia, besides large mortgages have been made on a manufacturing plant in Chicago and an office building project in Dallas, Texas.

"There is a continued improvement to be noted in underlying conditions of the building industry," said Mr. S. W. Straus in discussing the building outlook, "and it is expected that activities during the ensuing year will be on a very heavy scale. There is a healthy inquiry for capital for building purposes, particularly for residential improvements and a large proportion of the outflow of capital for the building industry is being absorbed in financing the construction of these types of structures."

John M. Stoddard Outlines Real Estate Brokerage Laws

pensation from the owner. There is just one way that he can accomplish his purpose, and treat both parties honorably. That is, by making a full disclosure to the owner, and securing from the owner a promise to pay commissions notwithstanding the situation.

"Unless a broker has announced to the owner that he is working in the interest of the buyer and has secured the promise of the owner to pay commissions notwithstanding that fact, it is the duty of the broker to act in the sole interest of the owner. The man who pays for the services and negotiations of the broker is entitled to all that the broker can do for him.

"Frequently, a broker learns that a parcel of real estate can be purchased at such a price that he is disposed to participate in the purchase himself. In such cases, it is imperative that he disclose to the owner that he is the purchaser or interested in the purchase, and obtain from the owner a consent to the changed conditions. Otherwise, he not only loses his commissions, and is guilty of fraud, but also he will be charged as holding the property in trust for the seller, so that if any profit eventually results, he will be obliged to pay it over to the owner. Those are the penalties. Besides, any such business is not honest. There is plenty of opportunity to make a fortune in real estate brokerage, while adhering strictly to the line of honorable dealing."

Mr. Stoddard concluded by giving the following interesting examples of a broker's experiences:

"In a case where a broker so handled an exchange transaction that he himself obtained some of the property conveyed by his principal, the Court characterized the entire transaction as fraudulent, and gave back such property to the owner and in a case where a broker's clerk became the purchaser, he was required to account to the Seller for all the proceeds of his resales.

"In another case where a broker advised a contract of sale with a third party at a stated price, and where upon the closing the broker himself took the title, the Court upset the transaction and compelled the broker to restore the property.

"In another case where a broker upon receiving an inquiry by a prospective purchaser in respect to a piece of property, went to the owner and advised that its value was $42,000 and persuaded the owner to sell at that figure, and it later developed that the broker was interested to the extent of one-half in the purchase, it was held that the Broker and his associate were liable for all of the enhancement in value down to the time of the trial, to wit, $18,000."

"You gentlemen have chosen an honorable calling," said Mr. Stoddard. "That is, it is honorable if you make it so. Sometimes you will be thrown in contact with unscrupulous clients and unscrupulous competitors. If you sink to their level, you may obtain one commission or a few commissions, but sooner or later you will be classed as a trickster, and treated accordingly.

"Your profession is one in which a good will can be created. You meet many people. The majority of them are looking for an honest man with whom they can trade, and to whom they may give their confidence. In 10 or 15 years' experience you can capitalize that. Look around this town. Is not the important business, are not the most important holdings within the control of the old reliable firms of real estate brokers? The position which they now occupy is the one that you should fill when you reach the prime of life. That is the goal for which you should aim. Any transitory profit is of no consequence compared with it, especially if accompanied with any species of disloyal effort.

"My advice to you is: First: That you be sure, before entering upon any enterprise, that you are promised by somebody that the success of your efforts will be suitably rewarded. Second: That you stick to the negotiation until it is concluded. Third: That you devote your time, skill and honorable efforts in behalf of the persons from whom you expect your recompense."

Review of Real Estate Market for the Current Week

Fifth Avenue and 34th Street Corner Set a High Notch for the Week's Dealing, While Other Good Sales Added Strong Features

MARKING the high-water line of the week, as well as of the year, so far, in real estate dealing is the transaction about to be closed by Max Natanson whereby he disposes of the 14-story Columbia Trust building, on a plot 61.9x100, at the northwest corner of Fifth Avenue and 34th Street. It is one of the premier individual transactions of the city. This building was originally only four stories in height and was built by the Knickerbocker Trust Company and superseded, on the site, the historic mansion of Alexander T. Stewart. The seller enlarged it only a few years ago and it is looked upon as one of the fine investment properties of the city. Mr. Natanson must have had a tempting offer to part with it. Giving the market a New Year's surprise, as he has by this sale, it is to be remembered that he gave it a Christmastide surprise a few weeks ago by the purchase and quick resale of the Belnord apartment house that covers a square block on upper Broadway. The buyer of the Fifth Avenue corner has not yet been announced, but it very likely will be soon. It is to be recalled that about a year ago Mr. Natanson resold to William Ziegler the tall building, known as the structural splinter, at the southeast corner of Broadway and Wall Street.

Less prominent, but nevertheless important, was the sale of one building and the leasing of another one, this week, in the Broadway part of the Pennsylvania zone. The parcel sold was in the ownership of one family for four generations, a period of time and less when Broadway north of Fourteenth Street evolved from open country to the world's greatest commercial thoroughfare. Another sale of more than ordinary moment was that of the Abyssinian Baptist Church property on West 40th Street, between Seventh and Eighth Avenues. Situated as the latter parcel is, in the new garment center, the church edifice will in all probability make way for an immense loft building for occupancy by cloak and suit manufacturers.

Of marked contemporary interest, in this era of projected port improvements, was the sale by certain heirs of the Rhineland family of Piers 16 and 18, at the foot of Barclay Street and the foot of Murray Street, respectively, to a private purchaser. Both piers are well leased. The city usually makes it a point to acquire any private waterfront in Manhattan that is offered for sale, but the sale alluded to seems to be the exception that proves the rule.

Other sales of importance were several Madison Avenue parcels; the Elmore Court and El Casco apartment house in Harlem; numerous small business properties throughout the city; and numerous newly completed apartment houses in the Bronx and some, there, that are not yet completed, but the floor plans of which satisfied the buyers they were worth owning. The sale of vacant plots in the northerly borough is not as frequent as it was two weeks ago, but renewed activity is expected at any time.

PRIVATE REALTY SALES.

THE total number of sales reported, but not recorded in Manhattan this week, was 121 as against 127 last week and 105 a year ago.

The number of sales south of 59th st was 56, as compared with 51 last week and 51 a year ago.

The number of sales north of 59th st was 75, as compared with 76 last week and 54 a year ago.

From the Bronx 27 sales at private contract were reported, as against 53 last week and 22 a year ago.

Statistical tables, including the number of recorded instruments, will be found on page 114.

Pease & Elliman were the brokers in both transactions.

Officers of D. L. Elliman & Co.

The annual meeting of stockholders of Douglas L. Elliman & Co., Inc., was held at the company's offices, 15 East 49th st, on January 17, at which meeting the following directors were elected: Douglas L. Elliman, Roland F. Elliman, Argyll R. Parsons, Alfred E. Taylor, D. Chester Noyes, Henry A. Frey, Leslie H. Moore, Keith P. Walker, Lawrence B. Cummings and Sydney A. Jackson.

Immediately following the stockholders' meeting, the newly elected Board held its first meeting and elected the following officers for the ensuing year: President and treasurer, Douglas L. Elliman; first vice-president and assistant treasurer, Roland F. Elliman; second vice-president, Argyll R. Parsons; third vice-president, Alfred E. Taylor; secretary, Henry A. Frey.

The eleventh annual dinner of the entire organization was held at the Hotel Loraine, Tuesday evening, January 17.

Report by Cushman & Wakefield

Following the annual meeting on January 18, of the stockholders of Cushman & Wakefield, Inc., announcement was made that in spite of adverse general business conditions this realty organization has experienced a prosperous year, its net earnings for 1921 having shown an increase of 138 per cent. over the corporation's net profits of 1920. Since its inception four years ago the corporation has developed increased earnings, averaging more than 100 per cent. increase each year.

On account of the increase in volume and expansion of its business it was decided to separate the office of secretary and treasurer. Consequently, William J. Demorest, for several years a director, was elected secretary of the corporation, and Cyril F. Taylor was re-elected treasurer. J. Clydesdale Cushman was re-elected president, and Reginald W. Murray vice-president.

The following directors were re-elected for another year to succeed themselves: G. Maurice Heckscher, Charles B. Jaqua, J. Clydesdale Cushman, Reginald W. Murray, William J. Demorest and Cyril F. Taylor.

Famous Fifth Av Corner Sold

Negotiations are under way for the sale of the Columbia Trust Co. Building, at the northwest corner of Fifth av and 34th st, by Max N. Natanson, operator. The building was originally a 4-story white stone structure and was designed by McKim, Mead & White. It formed a notable architectural landmark, with its tall Corinthian columns and decorative cornices. Mr. Natanson bought it about two years ago, and later added 10 stories to it.

The building was designed and built for the old Knickerbocker Trust Co. The foundations were made sufficiently powerful to bear the weight of the additional height. It was once the site of the home of A. T. Stewart, the merchant prince of early New York. It was later occupied for a number of years by the Manhattan Club under lease. In January, 1901, it was purchased by Charles T. Barney for the Knickerbocker Trust Co. from the following Stewart heirs: the Butler and Clinch estates and Besie T. White, wife of the late Stanford White.

West Side Landmark Sold

Builders are buying the old Abyssinian Baptist Church property, on a plot 75x98.9, at 244 West 40th st, between Seventh and Eighth avs, for reimprovement with a large commercial structure. The price is said to be in the neighborhood of $200,000. The Abyssinian Baptist Church is one of the oldest negro religious organizations in the city, having been founded more than a century ago. The Rev. A. Clayton Powell has been its pastor for 14 years. The church is said to have a membership of nearly 4,000, the majority of whom reside in the Harlem colored section.

A year ago six lots on 138th st, between Lenox and Seventh avs, were purchased for a new church site. Work on a new structure will begin soon. The main auditorium will accommodate 2,000 persons. The church will retain the use of its 40th st property for one year, at the expiration of which time the uptown edifice is expected to be completed.

Site at Herald Sq. for New Building

The southeast corner of Broadway and 37th st has been leased by the estate of Robert Hoe to Harry Fischel, who will reimprove the site with a 16-story office and showroom building to harmonize in architectural appearance with the new bank home, which is to be erected on the Broadway plot adjoined on the south by the Greenwich Savings Bank. The bank, by the way, will make the building and permanent loan on Mr. Fischel's building operation, which, it is expected, will cost $1,500,000.

The site contains about 14,000 square feet, and is one of the principal holdings of the Hoe estate. The building operation will not include the small buildings on Sixth av. This parcel, however, is under negotiation for a leasing deal on similar building conditions. The Hoe estate will receive a net income of about 6 per cent. on the assessed value of the property. The lease is for 21 years, with two renewal privileges.

Frederick Fox & Co. were the brokers. Joseph Ravitch, who has been connected with Mr. Fischel in some of his other Broadway building deals, will erect the building from plans by Sommerfeld & Steckler. The Greenwich Savings Bank site, adjoining, was purchased last spring by the bank from the Van Ingen estate. It comprises the 2-story brick taxpayer on 36th st, from Broadway to Sixth av, with good frontages on the three streets.

Hotel Leased on the Plans

L. Marshall Thompson, proprietor of the Thompson chain of hotels, leased the 15-story apartment hotel to be known as the Emerson, which is about to be erected at 164-168 West 75th st by James Booth, the plans for which were filed on January 19, by Robert T. Lyons, architect. The lease, which was negotiated through Slawson & Hobbs and Boland & Campbell, is for a long term of years and calls for an aggregate rental of $3,000,000.

The structure will contain 300 rooms and 176 baths, and will, it is expected, be ready for occupancy about October 1. It will be added to the Thompson chain, which now includes the Madison Square, the Langwell and the Westminster. Stoddard & Mark represented the lessor and Samuel M. Reiss represented the lessee.

Leeds Sells West End Av. Corner

Rudolph G. Leeds, of Richmond, Ind., son of the late William B. Leeds, tinplate king, sold to Benjamin Winter, of the Winter Realities, Inc., the 12-sty apartment house, 92x100, at 780 West End av, southeast corner of 98th st. The house is arranged in suites of from 5 to 8 rooms, and has an annual rental income of about $125,000.

Mr. Winter has also bought from Mr. Leeds the 3-sty and basement dwelling at 766 West End av, adjoining on the south, to protect the light and air of the apartment house. The properties were held at $800,000. The apartment house was built by T. J. McLaughlin & Sons and was sold by them several years ago to Mr. Leeds, who gave in part payment the southeast corner of Broadway and 105th st, which was later improved by the buyers.

The Wood, Dolson Company represented Mr. Leeds and Henry I. Cooper of N. Cohn & Co., was the broker for Mr. Winter.

Operator in East Side Sale

Samuel Brenner, operator, purchased from Vanderbilt Webb the five 4-sty and basement dwellings 127 to 135 East 63d st, on a plot 100x100.5, between Park and Lexington avs, on a plot 80x100.5. The property was acquired along with a number of other parcels on Park av and adjacent side streets before the New York Central Railroad electrified its road. William J. Rooome & Co. were the brokers in the transaction.

On the Park av end of the block the Third Church of Christ, Scientist, is erecting an ornamental structure on the 63d st corner, while on the adjoining Park av and 64th st corner is the new home of the Fifth Avenue Baptist Church.

A New West Side Building

The ever increasing demand for space in modern buildings with heavy floor capacity is one of the reasons for the erection of the new 8-sty Kymson building, at 313-327 West 37th st, which is now under construction and will be ready for occupancy in May, according to Samuel Minskoff the builder. Concerns desiring to remain in the section north of 23d st and requiring a floor capacity of over 200 pounds per square foot have been practically forced to move their plants and operations to the extreme east or west sides of the city. The majority of present buildings north of 23d st and adjacent to main arteries of the city, being built for the express purpose of office, light manufacturing and garment concerns, have not been able to accommodate manufacturers of commodities necessitating heavy floors.

Jacob Monsky, president of the Herald Square Press, realizing this situation and having the fact brought home to him in his own business, conceived the idea of relieving this condition somewhat by the erection of the Kymson Building. Consequently heavy floors, good light and fire proof construction are facts which are sure to be of interest to many concerns. The building has been designed by Schwartz & Gross the architects and Price, Birkner & Johnston have been appointed as managing agents.

Elmore Court in a Trade

Elmore Court, a 6-sty elevator apartment house, 108x101, at 541 West 124th st, figured in a three cornered deal. The property, which was held at $235,000, was sold by Joseph M. Nimhauser for Joseph G. Abraham, who was represented by the Lloyd Winthrop Co. The purchasers were Isidor and Philip Baer, who gave in part payment the 5-sty, triple flat, 139 Edgecombe av, 25x112, held at $42,500.

In further payment the purchasers gave two second mortgages, amounting to $40,250, on the premises at 75 to 83 Northern av. As part of the transaction, the parcels given in trade were all sold by the Lloyd Winthrop Co. to a client. This is the second three cornered deal effected in less than a year by Joseph Nimhauser for the Messrs. Baer.

Tenants Were the Buyers

Charles F. Noyes Co. were the brokers who sold 277 Pearl st to Clinton K. Scofield; 109-111 Beekman st to A. W. Craven, and a plot, 35.9x100, on Atlantic av, adjoining the southwest corner of Kingston av, Brooklyn, to Charles H. Eggert & Bros. Title to all these properties was transferred within the past few days and all purchasers are present tenants of the premises sold. The Noyes company reports a strong demand for investment properties and properties suitable for occupancy.

N. Y. Times Leases Stores

Theodore C. Young leased to the New York Times Co. the stores in 213-215 West 43d st, which adjoin on the east the Times Annex building. The Times occupies adjoining stores, under lease, as well.

At 231-239 West 43d st, adjoining the Times Annex on the west, are five 5-sty brick and stone apartment houses, on a plot 100x100.5, which The New York Times Co. owns and which it will soon reimprove with an addition to its building that will be of equal height to it. The Times is now using parts of the old buildings it owns for some of its departments.

Undivided Pier Interest Sold

Cruikshank Co. sold for Miss Caroline de Forest, Frederic W. Rhinelander and George W. Murray, executors of the estate of Mary R. Calender, to Charles E. Perkins, a large undivided interest in Pier 16 and bulkhead and Pier 18 and bulkhead, North River. Pier 16 is under lease to the N. Y. C. & H. R. R. Co. and Pier 18 is under lease to the Eastern Steamship Lines, Inc. Pier 16 is at the foot of Barclay st and Pier 18 is at the foot of Murray st.

West Side Plot for Improvement

S. Morrill Banner and Herbert Mitler, the operators who recently purchased the Tribune Building at 154 Nassau st, have added to their now extensive holdings in Manhattan by acquiring the four 3-sty and basement brick dwellings, 71 to 77 West 12th st, on a plot on the north side, just east of Sixth av. The buyers will erect a 6-sty elevator apartment house on the site. The properties were sold by Pierce F. Groome, a cotton broker, who has held them since early in 1920. Peyton, Randle & Co. were the brokers.

Completes Apartment House Site

Pease & Elliman sold for Juliet A. Stursberg to James C. McGuire & Co., builders, 955-959 Lexington av, adjoining the southeast corner of 70th st. No. 955 is a 4-sty and basement brick dwelling, on a plot 38x80.6, and 959 is a 3-sty and basement stone dwelling, on a lot 21.6x80.6, while 957 intervening, is a vacant lot 19.5x80.6. The aggregate plot is 79.1x80.6.

In January of 1920 the same firm bought through the same brokers 943 to 953 Lexington av old 4-sty dwellings, giving them a frontage of 179.4 in all on the east side of the avenue. The builders are having plans prepared for the proposed improvement. The seller of the plot, purchased in 1920, was the estate of James McCabe and Henry and Simon McCabe.

Seamans' Estate Sold Two Parcels

Estate of Clarence W. Seamans not only sold the gore, 2x100x8.1, at the northeast corner of Bleecker and Lafayette sts, and along Bleecker st to Shinbone alley, but it also sold 51 Bleecker st, adjoining a 4-sty and basement brick building, on a lot 27x100 and through to Shinbone alley.

This is part of the old Lenox Library block, on which many prominent persons built homes following the improvement of the Fifth av end of the block with the mansion of Henry Clay Frick.

Investor Buys West Side Lofts

Dwight, Archibald & Perry, Inc., in conjunction with the Duross Co., sold for Thomas Develon, Jr., to the Acme Lighting & Fixture Co., the 6-sty stone loft building, 107-109 West 13th st, on a plot 40x100. The purchaser will use the greater part of the building for its own business.

Employers Reject Untermeyer's Wage Scale Proposal

Board of Governors Hold Plan of Lockwood Committee Counsel Discriminates

Against All Other Elements in Industry in Favor of Labor

AT a special meeting of the Board of Governors of the Building Trades Employers' Association held Wednesday afternoon further consideration was given to the proposal recently made by Samuel Untermeyer, special counsel to the Lockwood Joint Legislative Committee. This proposition provided that a new contract for two year from January 1, be entered into between the employers and the Building Trades Council; that the present scale of wages be continued for the year 1922; and that the wage scale for 1923 be based on that of 1922, subject to decrease or increase in the cost of living for the year 1922 as compared with 1921.

After all of the trade organizations affiliated with the Building Trades Employers' Association had met for a careful consideration of this proposal their conclusions were reported to the Board of Governors and the Board, acting in accordance with the expressed will of the entire membership, wrote a letter to Mr. Untermeyer rejecting his proposal. This letter said:

"Your proposition, that a new contract be now made for two years from January 1st by and between the Building Trades Employers' Association and the Building Trades Council, that the present wage scale be continued for the year 1922, and that the wage scale for 1923 be based on that of 1922, subject to decrease or increase in the cost of living for the year 1922 as compared with 1921, provided that the continuance of the present wage scale and the amount of the wage scale for 1923 be condition, as to the wages of $1.00 per day for each member of the unions, upon the efficiency of each union separately considered, efficiency to be determined by an arbitration board of seven members, has been considered by the trade associations, comprising the Building Trades Employers' Association.

"These trade associations have reported their conclusions to the Board of Governors, and the Board, acting in accordance with the expressed will of the entire membership, has rejected your proposal.

"The present wage scale has been repeatedly condemned by the public. Its continuance without a fair hearing of all the facts relating thereto by the representatives of the public would be unfair to the public and to the nine hundred members of the Building Trades Employers' Association who are dependent upon the patronage of the public for a living.

"Housing is one of the principal items of expenditure considered in computing the cost of living. Our investigation conclusively shows that the peak in rental values has been passed and that the trend is now downward. The items of cost of housing construction, other than labor, have been greatly reduced. The prices of all materials have been reduced and the wages of all those employed in the manufacture of housing materials already have been reduced. You now propose that the labor employed on housing construction, which up to the present suffered no reduction from war time wages, shall not only be exempted from a reduction during the whole year of 1922, but its wages for 1923 shall not be reduced unless additional reductions shall be made in all of the other items entering into the cost of living, which must mean a still further reduction in wages of all other lines except the building line. It seems to us that the building trades unions would not ask for more.

"The solution of other problems almost as important as the wage question is necessary to the making of agreements with the building trades unions.

"We have not charged that the entire membership of any union has been guilty of shirking. The consideration given by the union in return for the wages paid is a fair day's work by its members, and to enter into arbitration before a numerous board upon the question of whether the consideration has not been or is not being given by the union would mean continuous arbitration as to the performance of the contract, which would be a cumbersome proceeding.

"The Building Trades Employers' Association has for seventeen years enforced an arbitration policy. The unions have for all that time assented to arbitration. We now feel that, in fairness to our members, the public should not only be a party to the arbitration but should sit in all negotiations and participate in the settlement of all questions.

"We have fully advised the unions of our wishes."

A special committee headed by Walter Stabler recently attempted to use its influence in an effort to settle the matter of wage scales and trade abuses without further delay and submitted a program of procedure, that was accepted by the employers, but turned down by the labor representatives.

The letter of the Building Trades' Council to Mr. Stabler, rejecting the proposition of his Committee said in part:

"Your letter of January 16, addressed to Mr. Patrick Crowley, President Building Trades' Council has been received and considered by the Council Executive Committee and the Council. Your letter proposes that a committee of five from the parties you represent be present at a meeting between representatives of the Building Trades Employers' Association and the Building Trades Council in order to assist in the selection of another committee of citizens, this committee to be present and participate in negotiations for a settlement of the agreement for 1922 or longer.

"In a former letter to Mr. Robert D. Kohn, we stated that the Council had accepted a proposal made by Mr. Samuel Untermeyer as a solution of existing differences. We can only reiterate that the Council still believes that nothing better than the proposal made by Mr. Untermeyer has been suggested by any one. Coming as it does from the Council for the Lockwood Committee a Legislative Committee which had made an exhaustive investigation of building conditions—it emanates from that representative of the public best qualified to speak in the public interest and because of that must carry with it the approval of the public. There is nothing sinister or hurtful about it to any one and to the building trades workers it seems to be a fair and square solution of the question at issue.

"We do not want to appear discourteous to the gentlemen you represent but we are responsible to the men we represent and to the public and we must discharge that responsibility in a manner that will conform to the wishes of those men and the public. The organizations seated in the Council have decided in favor of the Untermeyer plan and if the Building Trades Employers' Association does likewise meetings between the two bodies need only consider details and therefore the presence of a third party would hardly be necessary. If however the Employers' Association deems the presence of a third party necessary or if the Lockwood Committee feels that it can pro-

New York State Builders Meet in Albany Next Week

Constructive Program of Activity for 1922 Outlined for Annual Convention of Association of Building Trades Employers

THE New York State Association of Builders will hold its twenty-sixth annual convention at Albany, Tuesday and Wednesday, January 31 and February 1. The headquarters of the convention will be at the Ten Eyck Hotel and the sessions will be held in the ball room. The responses from the various employers' associations throughout the State indicate that the forthcoming convention will be a notable gathering as far as the number of delegates is concerned and the sessions should result in some very constructive effort to revive interest in building in this Commonwealth.

The first session will be called to order at 10 a. m. Tuesday and the convention will be formally opened with an address by William S. Hackett, Mayor of Albany. C. W. Luther, president of the New York State Association of Builders, is scheduled to respond to the address of welcome after which the session will be turned over to routine business. This will include the annual reports of the secretary and treasurer and the appointment of special committees. One of the most important of the topics for discussion at this session will be that of wage scales and trade agreements and working conditions in each of the cities represented by delegates.

The annual banquet of the Association will be held in the ball room of the Ten Eyck Hotel on Tuesday evening at 7 p. m.

The Wednesday morning business session will convene at 10 a. m. and the program includes the reading of annual reports of the various standing committees, the report of the Executive Committee, the appointment of a new executive committee, the report of the Counsel on legislative work of 1921, session of State Legislature; the consideration of a legislative program for 1922 and whatever further routine business may come up. One of the most important features on the program of this session is an address by W. S. Hays, Secretary of the National Federation of Construction Industries, who will speak on national building problems and the plans for their solution.

This session will adjourn at 1 p. m. and will be immediately followed by the annual State Association luncheon. William T. Ritch, of New York City, will be the song leader and informal addresses will be made by past officers of the association and also by Edward A. Keeler, Secretary.

districts of the state by the farmer, the home owner and the rent payer.

"The committee believes that permanent relief for overburdened real property lies in the development of a new practice in the localities themselves with respect to waste and the extravagant extension of expenditures. At the present time real estate in New York is in an especially exposed position, bearing the full brunt of the mounting costs of government, the committee finds. It is now practically the sole shock absorber.

"Assessments of real property throughout many sections of the State appear to be involved in much incompetence and injustice," the report says. "What appears to be needed is a larger assessment district and more skilled and permanent assessment service. The attainment of this involves the adoption of a constitutional amendment."

"Another proposal which is urgent in the opinion of the Committee has to do with the increased taxation of motor trucks. It is perhaps not generally known that of every $30,000 a mile spent at present by the state for road building the second $15,000 is expended mainly that the roads may be fit to permit the operation of heavy trucks carrying great loads of freight.

"The committee has found," continues the report, "that the old method of taxing banks and other financial institutions, which has been in force for many years, produces very unequal results, and proposes that financial institutions be taxed by a new method on the basis of their 'net income.' This will make it possible to treat financial institutions with more exact fairness as compared with other business, and to correct the injustices which the committee's investigations show now rest upon the smaller banks of the State.

"A crisis has developed in bank taxation in the country because of a decision of the Supreme Court of the United States which apparently makes illegal the traditional method of taxing national banks. Certain of the national banks in the State are seeking under this decision to escape from all State taxation. This committee has joined in an effort to obtain an amendment to the Revised Statutes of the United States which will meet the condition created by the decision of the Supreme Court. Unless this amendment is conceded by Congress, the committee's plan outlined above for a reorganization of the bank taxes of the State, although greatly needed in the interest of justice to the banks themselves, as well as to the State, cannot be put into operation.

"However, if a reasonable plan is blocked through the short-sighted opposition of a small section of the financial community, the committee proposes to prevent the evasion of a fair share of the Government burden by validating the traditional national bank tax through a return to the taxation of all moneyed capital competing with national banks at the same rate as that imposed upon national banks themselves.

"The committee has received many complaints regarding the unequal manner in which the business taxes of the State apply when restricted merely to incorporated business entities. The committee believes that a fair business tax must be as broad as business itself, and that the unincorporated business entities, which prosper under the support and protection of the environment of a free and stable Government, should pay their fair share of the burden which the State finds it necessary to impose upon business. The committee recommends a reasonable tax upon the net income above $5,000 of unincorporated business."

Restricts Height of Buildings on Fifth Avenue

EIGHT of buildings on Fifth Avenue between 60th and 95th Streets will be restricted to 75 feet. This was decided at the meeting of the Board of Estimate on Friday, Jan. 20. Several weeks ago owners of property along this part of Fifth Avenue made an attempt to have the Board of Estimate include that territory in the zoning restrictions, thereby limiting the erection of tall buildings.

A majority of the board voted in favor of the restrictions, but when it was pointed out that the law provided that if 20 per cent. of the property owners within any zoning district opposed restrictions it required a unanimous vote of the board to adopt a zoning resolution, the matter was laid over until tomorrow to determine if the objectors numbered 20 per cent.

The Corporation Counsel gave an opinion that 20 per cent. of the owners had not protested, and that the resolution passed last November was legal.

Under the present law the height of buildings in this section may be 150 feet, but the amendment restricts the height to 75 feet.

Since the fight to restrict buildings on the Avenue to 75 feet plans have been filed for several apartment houses reaching the 150-foot limit.

Employers Reject Untermeyer's Wage Scale Proposal

mote the public interest by being present at meetings between representatives of the Employers and the Council we will not object to the presence of the Lockwood Committee because it is truly representative of the public. Your body can render no greater public service in this matter than by urging the Employers to accept the solution offered by Mr. Untermeyer and we would earnestly request you to follow that course.

"Since writing the above Mr. Crowley has been in touch with

Mr. Untermeyer and Mr. Untermeyer has made the following suggestions. That the Council will have no objection to a small committee—say three from your associates to be present while the representatives of the Employers' Association and the Council are discussing their differences but under no consideration are the members of this committee to have any voice in the discussion or to be considered as having any right to arbitrate existing differences.

"This council is thoroughly in accord with this suggestion."

Residential Building Still Dominates Local Situation

Weekly Figures of F. W. Dodge Company Show Tremendous Influence of Tax Exemption Measure Upon Construction Outlook in Greater New York

REPORTS from architects and engineers in New York State and New Jersey, north of Trenton, show a steady increase in the volume of projected construction now scheduled for a start during the early spring months. Although the commitments of the past few weeks have not quite kept pace with the newly projected work reported the actual contract awards have been fair and certainly indicate sufficient active building to assure a busy season to the construction fraternity.

According to the figures tabulated by the F. W. Dodge Company for the third week of 1922 there were 446 new building and engineering operations reported as being planned for locations in New York States and Northern New Jersey. This work will involve an outlay of approximately $26,020,500. During the same week the contracts awarded in this territory numbered 279 and represented a total value of $11,754,900.

Residential construction accounts for approximately one-half of the proposed buildings reported and is nearly two-thirds of the work actually placed under contract during the week. This is largely due to the fact that the close of the tax exemption period is near at hand and speculative builders are making every effort to get their operations started in order to claim their exemption for the specified period.

Among the 446 projects for which plans were reported during the week of January 14 to 20 inclusive were 73 business buildings such as stores, offices, lofts, commercial garages, etc., $5,345,000; 17 educational projects, $4,625,400; 3 hospitals and institutions, $1,058,000; 17 factory and industrial buildings, $323,500; 9 public works and public utilities, $345,000; 8 religious and memorial structures, $224,000; 301 residential operations including apartments, flats and tenements and one and two-family dwellings, $13,180,100 and 18 social and recreational projects, $918,500.

The list of 279 projects for which contracts were reported during the third week of 1922 was comprised of the following groups: 49 business buildings of various types, $1,428,800; 3 educational buildings, $305,000; 3 hospitals and institutions, $655,000; 15 factory and industrial projects, $315,000; 6 public works and public utilities, $465,000; 1 religious edifice, $10,000; residential operations, $8,270,100 and 4 social and recreational projects, $306,000.

The fourth annual "Own-Your-Home" Exposition will be held in New York City April 22 to 30, inclusive. Robert H. Sexton, 512 Fifth avenue, is the managing director. The 1922 Exposition will be even more extensive and interesting than those of previous years. Practically every phase of home planning, financing and construction will be shown graphically and considerable exposition space will be devoted to the furnishing and decoration of houses of moderate cost.

Paint Research To Be Undertaken

Research into the problems of the protecting power and durability of paint on wood is being planned by the Engineering Foundation. It is likely that the organization of the proposed investigation will be directed jointly by the Foundation, the Division of Engineering, and the Division of Chemistry and Chemical Technology of the National Research Council. The Foundation says that in view of the great annual expenditure for paint, about $300,000,000, it is important to have dependable information on the durability both of paint and of the wood which it protects.

Mr. Wilson, who has one of the organizers of the Brooklyn Builders' Supply Company, had been its president for the past ten years. Prior to entering the material supply business he was one of the most prominent builders of the Park Slope section of Brooklyn, where he erected many private residences and large apartment houses. He was born in Aberdeen, Scotland, and came to the United States when he was about twenty years of age. For the past thirty years he had been a resident of Brooklyn and was prominently identified with business and civic activities. He was a member of the Rotary Club, the Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce, the Crescent Athletic Club and Greenwood Lodge, No. 569, F. & A. M. He is survived by his widow and a daughter.

LOCAL building interests are now chiefly concerned with the prospects for a new working agreement and wage scale with labor and until this question is settled there is likely to be some hesitancy about starting new construction. There is a vast amount of contemplated work pending, a large percentage of it for which plans are fully matured, but owners are unwilling to make definite commitments while there remains any doubt as to wages for building mechanics.

Reports from speculative building interests are indicative of an early spring start on a lot of new apartment houses and one and two-family projects so as to obtain the advantages of tax exemption. Although there is a possibility that the tax exemption law may be extended the majority of prospective builders of speculative operations are not taking a chance on the extension of the present law, but will make every possible effort to get their jobs substantially under way by the time specified under the law as it now reads.

Recently there has been a slight advancing tendency to material prices and the markets in general are now quite firm. Brick, Hudson River common, is being held at $17 a thousand in the wholesale market and lumber is higher than it was. Fabricated steel is off a bit, but several other lines are more costly today than they were a few weeks ago. Demand is fair, but inquiry shows that a large amount of new business will be released just as soon as conditions warrant.

Common Brick—Owing to the extremely cold weather of the past week or ten days business in the New York wholesale market for Hudson River common has been quite light. Sales have been negligible and as the river is completely ice-bound above Tarrytown there have been no arrivals of brick from up-river yards. Common brick prices have advanced sharply during the week with current quotations $17 a thousand. The manufacturers who are asking this figure feel that they are fully entitled to it because of their extra costs in holding and covering this brick.

Summary—Transactions in the North River common brick market for the week ending Thursday, January 26. Condition of market: Demand light; prices sharply advanced. Quotations: Hudson Rivers, $17 a thousand to dealers in cargo lots alongside dock. Number of cargoes arrived, none; sales, 6. Distribution: Manhattan, 4; Bronx, 1; Astoria, 1.

Remaining unsold in the New York wholesale market, 9.

Lumber—Trade is quiet in both branches of the local lumber market, but recent inquiry is indicative of a large amount of potential business that is likely to be released shortly. It is reported that the majority of the yellow pine mills have again resumed operations after the holiday shutdown. Although the present demand for this kind of lumber is weak, prices have not been reduced. Long leaf timber prices are also holding firmly. Flat grain floorings which advanced during the last quarter of 1921 are now selling considerably below the December 1 prices, with demand light. Spruce prices are firm but stocks are badly broken. There is a tendency on the part of some mills to make concessions in prices on maple and oak flooring. The market at present is particularly spotty and will not settle down again until the 1922 building season gets actually under way.

Structural Steel—The local market for fabricated steel for buildings is steadily improving, with a continuation of fairly good tonnage for commercial construction and the release of quite a number of apartment house projects, the majority ranging from 500 to 1,000 tons each. Although there has not been quite so much new construction figuring during the past week as there was just prior to the close of 1921, the outlook for the early spring is bright as architects and engineers are working on plans for a number of important operations that will in all probability be shortly released for bids. Prices are slightly lower and ruling quotations range from $60 to $65 per ton, fabricated and erected.

Builders' Hardware—There is quite an active interest in this line and both manufacturers and jobbers are anticipating a busy season ahead. Early prospects for an extensive building movement during the coming spring and summer months are excellent and as a consequence the outlook for a heavy hardware demand is particularly bright. At present the movement out of jobbers' stocks is fair and dealers seem to be augmenting their stocks in preparation for the early spring building requirements. Prices are steady and no changes were reported.

Window Glass—Although business in this line has been somewhat dull since the beginning of the year, there has been an increase in the number of inquiries local jobbers have received during the past week that are indicative of greater buying activity within the next few weeks. There is still considerable new construction with window glass requirements yet to be taken care of and a large amount of new work has lately been placed under contract, so that the market for glass is practically assured for the coming spring and summer. Prices are firm and unchanged.

Electrical Supplies—Business in this line has slowed down to some extent during the past week and it is all the more apparent because there was quite a buying spurt directly after the first of the year. The outlook for early spring business is excellent, however, and with the volume of projected construction steadily increasing there should be no complaint of a lack of business during the coming season. Prices for electrical materials and supplies remain steady and are practically unchanged. For the most part stocks are adequate for the light current demand and ample supplies are easily available at production points. Quotations on flexible armored conduit are somewhat easier than they were and rubber-covered wire prices are slightly off.

Cast Iron Pipe—Orders for cast iron pipe for spring delivery are coming in from private buyers quite rapidly and some are for fairly large tonnages, so that the industry has quite a large volume of business ahead and prospects of considerable municipal business shortly to be released. Manufacturers are far better off as regards orders than they were one year ago, and practically all of the plants are working at more than 75 per cent. of capacity. Prices are firm and unchanged, with New York quotations as follows: 6 in. and heavier, $47.30 per net ton; 5 in. and 4 in., $52.30, and 3 in., $62.30, with Class A and gas pipe $4 extra per ton.

Linseed Oil—During the past week there has been somewhat of a change in the linseed oil market situation. The demand has improved, although practically all buying is in small lots, and the number of current inquiries leads to the belief that business conditions are changing for the better. Prices are firm.

Nails—Business has been quite dull during the past few weeks and jobbers do not anticipate much of an increase until the spring building season commences.

New York Gas Light Rates

The New York Mutual Gas Light Co., the Standard Gas Light Co., the New Amsterdam Gas Co. and the East River Gas Co. of Long Island City, filed affidavits with the Public Service Commission Saturday last in justification of the $1.25 rate which these companies have filed with the Public Service Commission, to take effect February 11, superseding the $1.20 rate charged by these companies under the temporary injunction granted by the Federal Court. These companies have just obtained final decrees in their rate suits in the United States District Court, and the affidavits filed by the presidents of the respective companies explain that the $1.25 rate is slightly less than the companies are legally entitled to receive, as a matter of adequacy of return, but that the $1.25 rate is promulgated in the interests of uniformity with the $1.25 rate now being charged by the Consolidated Gas Co., the Central Union Gas Co. and the Northern Union Gas Co., in the same territory in Manhattan and The Bronx.

The affidavits show the detailed costs of the production and distribution of gas as of January 1, 1922, in comparison with the costs in 1919 and 1920, and show the present cost to be substantially higher than in those years. These actual costs for the four companies, including return on their actual investment at the rate found by the Federal Court, are stated by the affidavits to be as follows:

New York Mutual Gas
Light Co.	$1.2938	$1.4694	$1.4012
Standard Gas Light Co.	1.3581	1.4296	1.4526
New Amsterdam Gas Co.	1.3075	1.3395	1.4132
East River Gas Co.	1.3075	1.3395	1.4132

An affidavit contemporaneously filed by Robert A. Carter, vice-president of the Consolidated Gas Co., and in charge of the accounts and records of that company and the affiliated companies in Manhattan and The Bronx, shows the combined cost, as of January 1, 1922, for all the companies, to be $1.3696, as contrasted with a rate of $1.25.

The affidavit of Mr. Carter shows that several items of costs, notably taxes, have increased in 1922 as compared with previous years. The increases in taxes assessed by public authority, which the companies are powerless to prevent, amount to several cents per thousand cubic feet of gas sold.

A Positive Foundation Upon Which to Build

The Federal Reserve Board, in its January bulletin, declares that "the most encouraging feature of the business situation is that a positive foundation apparently has been established upon which to build development during 1922." Governor Harding believes that the country as a whole has passed safely the points of danger entailed in after-war deflation.

One positive foundation upon which real estate and construction interests can effectively build their business is regular, consistent advertising in

Putting It Up to the Legislature

The week's developments indicate that some of our Eminent Solvers of the Housing Shortage continue to rely on printers' ink as the stuff with which to build homes for the homeless. The Lockwood Committee used a considerable quantity of it in a preliminary report submitted to the Legislature at Albany last Monday evening, exploiting officially the new-fangled plan of Chief Counsel Untermeyer to build 45,000 new homes for 225,000 people for $100,000,000. This plan, in the form in which it appeared at Albany, adhered to original lines, being based on the proposition that someone must furnish the money, that labor contribute a part of its labor gratis, and that material dealers furnish the necessary materials regardless of market values. Another angle of this remarkable plan, it will be recalled, contemplates that the construction shall be done without any profit to the concern handling it.

As was to be expected, the formal presentation to the Legislature of this extraordinary scheme afforded opportunity for additional reams of newspaper publicity, free advertising all along the line for the proponents of the plan. The idea is so perfectly simple, it was so easy to outline, that the wonder is some of our Eminent Solvers of the Housing Shortage did not think of it before. It is obvious, of course, that if Mr. Untermeyer's plan is feasible, it was just as feasible a year ago or two years ago. What a fine thing it would have been, what an evidence of forethought, what an example of genuine strategy, if Mr. Untermeyer and his associates had gone right ahead and done this thing a couple of years ago! How perfectly obvious it is that there would be no shortage of any kind today if under this plan 45,000 new homes for 225,000 people had been erected for $100,000,000 during 1920, and 45,000 new homes for 225,000 people for $100,000,000 had been erected during 1921! If Mr. Untermeyer and his associates had put their plan into effect only twenty-four months earlier, the housing shortage already might have been turned into a housing surplus here in New York, everybody might have been happy, and probably nothing would have remained to be done by the Lockwood Committee. Al Jolson never manipulated his Aladdin's lamp to produce such astounding results as those which have redounded to the everlasting glory and advertising of the Lockwood Committee and its chief counsel.

The sad fact must be kept in mind, however, that Mr. Untermeyer and his associates did not carry out this new-fangled scheme in 1920 or in 1921. As a result, here we are starting the year 1922 with the great plan still in embryo. But the scheme is beginning to move now, as is shown by the Albany dispatches, and in some quarters it continues to be taken seriously. Governor Miller, for instance, takes it seriously, but in a different sense. The Governor, who generally keeps his feet on the ground and strives to keep his head within hailing distance of his feet, regards this plan as something that requires very careful study. "As an original proposition," the Governor says, "it would undoubtedly be a very unwise thing to do. The only question is whether it will help in the present emergency and whether it would be justified as an emergency matter. That has to be given careful consideration."

Governor Miller's observations indicate a serious question is in his mind as to whether the plan is sound or not. The doubt he expresses is one of the encouraging signs of the times. It is a cheering omen that Governor Miller, though not from Missouri, insists on being shown about this latest Lockwood Committee nostrum. For nearly two years the people of New York have been struggling with Lockwood remedies for the housing shortage, and now the Lockwood Committee itself reports to the Legislature that the situation is practically as serious as it was when that committee began compounding remedies which the sufferers were compelled to take and which unquestionably have done them little good.

Before adopting any more of the Untermeyer-Lockwood remedies it would be well for the Legislature to join the Governor in not only careful, but very, very careful, consideration of this latest remedy. The Albany statesmen not only should keep in mind that the various plans heretofore proposed by the Lockwood Committee have proven ineffective, but they also should keep in mind the fact that in the matter of office space shortage, which was quite as serious in the metropolis two years ago as the housing shortage, the situation has worked itself out under the old law of supply and demand. No emergency laws were enacted at Albany to straighten out the office shortage, and yet that is the one space shortage in New York which no longer exists. Besides, there has been a marked drop in office rentals.

Safety of New York Theatres

New York City, recognized as the theatrical center of the world, has been badly shaken by the disaster which befell the Knickerbocker Theatre in Washington last Saturday evening. As yet the blame for this terrible disaster, with its toll of more than one hundred dead and scores of maimed and injured, has not been localized, and it may be doubtful if responsibility can ever be fastened upon anything but purely natural causes.

A valuable lesson is to be learned by the metropolis from the awful calamity in the nation's capital, however, and that is a repetition of it must never be permitted to occur in this city if preventable by human ingenuity, engineering skill, protective building code provisions and careful supervision during construction, along with regular inspections by qualified persons during the life of the structure. Already State and city authorities have planned for an exhaustive survey of the theatres and other structures commonly used for public gatherings, so that the people of New York City may not be subjected to sorrow and loss by a similar accident.

Preliminary surveys of the Washington disaster have so far failed to show criminal structural weakness in the roof construction of the theatre or negligence on the part of its owners and managers. The accident seems clearly the result of the weight of an excessive fall of snow, a fall most unusual as compared with the normal climate of the capital. The building code of Washington did not guard against this extra weight in its provisions, although a factor of safety was called for that was generally considered ample and perfectly in accordance with local conditions.

Competent authorities in the design, construction and supervision of theatres in the metropolis have assured the theatre-going population of New York City, and that means practically everyone, that a disaster such as befell the Knickerbocker Theatre in Washington is an impossibility in this city. They point out that the factor of safety demanded by the Building Code for roof construction of all theatres and halls for public gatherings is sufficient to prevent a similar accident here.

Architects of theatres in New York City are required by the provisions of the Building Code to allow for forty pounds live load to the square foot on a flat roof or a roof having an angle of less than twenty degrees. Where the angle is greater the load may be reduced to thirty pounds per square foot. The factor of safety generally considered as the minimum is five; that is, the architect must design his roof to be sufficiently strong to support five times the load per square foot that is required by the Building Code. In New York City, where the live load provision is forty pounds per square foot, the roofs must be capable in an emergency of supporting five times this weight, or two hundred and fifty pounds, on a flat or slightly slanting roof, and at least one hundred and fifty pounds per square foot where the roof angle is greater than twenty degrees.

Dense or wet snow is generally calculated by engineers to weigh approximately twenty-five pounds per cubic foot. Thus a roof capable of supporting the live load provided by the factor of safety commonly considered good practice can carry at least ten feet of wet snow before it is strained to the breaking point, and this is far in excess of any snowfall on record in this city, not excepting the great blizzard of March 12, 1888.

The code provisions offer every possible assurance of safety to the theatre-going public of New York City, and where the structures are erected by competent engineers and builders who have respect for these laws and who build honestly and without attempt to skim and save on their material bills, every safeguard humanly devisable is guaranteed. From accidents that are the results of natural causes or conditions there can be no such guarantee, but as engineering knowledge of the present is rated unusually high there is every reason to pre-suppose that all adverse factors possible to guard against have been included in the provisions for the safety and comfort of New York City's theatre patrons.

Lessons for New York in British Housing Experiments

Editor of the Record and Guide:

"Housing Betterment," a quarterly journal issued by the National Housing Association, devoted its issue of September, 1920, to the presentation of the housing policy of the British Government. Some of the comments quoted from English journals and from English experts are of particular interest in view of the light they throw upon the inevitable results of the method pursued by the New York Legislature in dealing with the same problem.

On page 4 the quarterly quotes from one of the architectural journals as follows: "What is the lesson? A nation cannot supply free houses any more than it can supply free clothing outfits. Houses must be built as a paying business concern, and this is the fundamental principle to be accepted. The only way this can be done is by utilizing the ordinary channels of private enterprise."

The quarterly adds, page 10: "The fundamental difficulty lies in the Increase of Rents Restriction Acts, which still keep the rent of a house far below what it would be in an open market." . . . "It is obvious that the Government's failure in housing finance is due in part, at any rate, to the measure of their success in keeping back the rising tide of rents." . . . "Like Canute, they have done their best, but they are bound, sooner or later, to let the tide rise—at any rate, sufficiently to float the 'plank.' Failing that, they must be prepared to carry the plank themselves! . . . It may be taken as an axiom that no housing scheme can be regarded as a success unless it pays its way. That is to say, the price of building must come down and rents must go up to such a level that economic conditions are possible."

"To sum up with regard to housing, unless some form of subsidy is continued, very few houses are likely to be built until the Rent Restriction Acts are put on such a basis as will ensure a progressive movement towards an economic rent."

When will our legislators learn that the same economic principles govern conditions in this country as in England; that laws designed to keep rents down necessarily and inevitably result in keeping houses from being built; that the only way to cure the housing shortage if it exists is to stimulate and not discourage the building of houses; and that the sooner ordinary economic processes are allowed to operate without interference, the sooner the whole situation will cure itself? Indeed, there is no need to go to England for an example. The Legislative Committee is convicted out of its own mouth. In spite of legislation; it concedes that the shortage that it finds today is worse than it was two years ago. In the same interval of time, an even more extreme scarcity of office and loft space has cured itself. The Legislature interfered in housing; it left lofts and office buildings alone. Can anything be more illuminating?

Labor Law Change Eliminates Costly Hoisting Provisions

THE first law passed by the Legislative Session of 1922 was one materially effecting builders and property owners. The new legislation is an amendment to the Labor Law affecting the construction of tall buildings and the change has been made through the enactment of Chapter I of the Laws of 1922 relating to the hoisting of materials entering into the construction of buildings.

In the recodification of the Labor Law by the Legislative Session of 1921 the old law was changed in such a way as not only to create additional cost in construction but also to present physical difficulties almost impossible to overcome by builders in their work. After the situation was brought to the attention of the Board of Appeals and discussed by other interested organizations and parties the conclusions were placed before the Senate Committee on Labor and as there appeared to be no substantial underlying reason for the change made in 1921, and no opposition to an amendment to bring the wording back to the language of the old Section 10, now new Section 241, of the Labor Law.

The law is now limited in its application, as it was prior to 1921, to the hoisting of lumber or timber in buildings in course of construction, five stories or more in height, and excepts all other materials which must be so hoisted if construction costs are not to become prohibitive.

New Standards for Fifth Avenue Real Estate Values

Deal Just Closed for Lease of Hotel Bristol and Negotiations for Democratic Club Site Reveal Marked Changes

THE recent efforts of Saks & Company to acquire control of the National Democratic Club's home, at 617 Fifth Avenue, a plot 42x100, in order to complete the assembling of all the parcels on the east side of Fifth Avenue, from Forty-ninth to Fiftieth Street, as the combined site for a modern store building for their own use, and the new lease on the Hotel Bristol site, corner of Fifth Avenue and Forty-second Street, have attracted general investment interest once again to Fifth Avenue real estate values, and especially the part of the thoroughfare from Thirty-fourth Street to the Plaza at Fifty-ninth Street. The remainder of the frontage on the block, Saks & Company wants is 158.10 feet. The Hotel Buckingham, at the southeast corner of Fiftieth Street, runs along the street 208 feet and has an L running to Forty-ninth Street in the rear of the rest of the Fifth Avenue front of the block. The property of the National Democratic Club immediately adjoins the Hotel Buckingham on Fifth Avenue.

It will be recalled that R. H. Macy & Company built their building around the northwest corner of Broadway and Thirty-fourth Street because they could not buy the corner at a price that they deemed within reason; also, that the late E. R. H. Martin built the Marbridge Building around the old four-story brick building, 18.9½x60, at the southeast corner of Broadway and Thirty-fifth Street, diagonally opposite the former Herald Building, for the same reason, and that the New York Telephone Company built a large building on the east block front of Broad Street, from Bridge to Stone Street, except the immediate corner of Stone Street, on which stood a small building, 10.6x20.3, the price of which the company would not pay. There are other corner instances in various parts of the city. The club site on Fifth Avenue, however, presents an interior structural obstacle on the greatest of shopping thoroughfares that has meant a delay in the beginning of work on a block front improvement.

Saks & Company have offered $1,000,000 for the club site and have set that as the highest figure they will pay. The National Democratic Club has declined to sell its property for that sum.

The club has what it believes are logical alternatives to this proposition. It has received from Warren & Wetmore, architects of the Heckscher Building, at Fifth Avenue and Fifty-seventh Street, a plan for a new building on the club-house site that would yield a revenue proportionally the same as that of the Heckscher Building. It has been characterized and is known as the Heckscher plan. The architects show that the National Democratic Club has one of the most valuable club-house sites in the United States if properly utilized. As the site for a club house which they term a "revenue producing club house," the architects show that a structure on the same lines as the Heckscher Building would net the club annually, for the first thirteen years, respectively, as follows: 1st year, $200,000; 2d year, $206,000; 3d year, $212,000; 4th year, $218,000; 5th year, $224,000; 6th year, $230,000; 7th year, $236,000; 8th year, $242,000; 9th year, $248,000; 10th year, $254,000; 11th year, $260,000; 12th year, $266,000; 13th year, $272,000, and every year thereafter the last figure, with the club free and clear of building debt, and all other debts. This $272,000 per year net would represent over 4½ per cent. on a six million dollar valuation of the club ground and club building. The club would in addition have a cash surplus in its treasury at the end of the thirteenth year equaling the difference between the $100,000 a year paid annually on account of mortgage of $1,200,000 and the annual income as per above table.

Warren & Wetmore have also submitted another plan for a "building for club uses to be constructed on convertible commercial purpose lines" that would net the club annually, for the first thirteen years, as follows: 1st year, $109,000; 2d year, $115,000; 3d year, $121,000; 4th year, $127,000; 5th year, $133,000; 6th year, $139,000; 7th year, $145,000; 8th year, $151,000; 9th year, $157,000; 10th year, $163,000; 11th year, $169,000; 12th year, $175,000; 13th year, $181,000, and every year thereafter the latter amount, $181,000, with the club free and clear of debt, and with a surplus in its treasury equaling the difference between $100,000 annual payment on $1,200,000 mortgage and the total annual net income as per above table, and the club would have the use of the finest club house of its kind in the world, for the exclusive use of members.

In reply to an inquiry from Charles C. Hughes, secretary of the Ways and Means Committee of the National Democratic Club, who inquired of them about the Fifth Avenue rental power, Cushman & Wakefield, who manage the various Heckscher properties, state: "In a general way, possible rentals that might be expected from a commercial building, of the type and character of the Heckscher Building, Fifth Avenue and Fifty-seventh Street, to be erected upon the present site of the Democratic Club, we will say that the store should have a rental value of about $20 a square foot. This price might be increased in the event of there being large stores on either side of it. For the first floor, above the store floor, about $6 a square foot. The floors above this would be valuable according to their light and window display. You might obtain from $3 to $4 a square foot for them. Above, say from the tenth floor, the space should become more valuable and should range from $4 a square foot upwards. Owners on Fifth Avenue are asking for unusually light top floor space as high as $6 a square foot for small areas. The location of a building such as you speak of makes it somewhat difficult to determine the possible rentals, as there are no very large office buildings nearer than the Straus Building at Fifth Avenue and Forty-sixth Street, where a prevailing price of $4 a square foot for good space obtains. In the Forty-second Street district, office space ranges from $3 to $5 a square foot a year, according to the character of the building and the desirability of the space."

Secretary Hughes has stated to Henry Mandel, representing Saks & Company, that the Warren & Wetmore estimates are absolutely reliable and that the club could erect on its present home site, on the Heckscher plan, a modern clubhouse for the exclusive use of its members and pay for the same in its first thirteen years of occupancy, with a net estimated surplus at the end of the period of $635,000. Including the interest on this surplus, the club, after the thirteenth year, would have a net income of $200,000 a year, for all time, and it would in addition have an added income of $200,000 through the accruals of interest on the cash yearly surplus and the net annual income. The net result at the end of 105 years would be that the club would have a club-house built absolutely for its own membership and would have more than $26,000,000 in its treasury and an annual income of more than $1,000,000 on and after that date, with the club still owning the property in fee.

The so-called "convertible commercial purpose" building, before alluded to, if built would at the end of 105 years about double the net income figures mentioned above; which would prove the contention of the Non-removal Committee, that the club property utilized is one of the most valuable properties of its size in the country. The committee challenges any realty expert to prove to the contrary.

If either one of the building plans submitted by Warren & Wetmore is carried out, the National Democratic Club will arrange to assign two floors of the building for the use of representative women's organizations of the Democratic Party, at a rental to be agreed upon.

Jefferson M. Levy is chairman of the Non-removal Committee of the club; Nathan Hirsch is chairman of the Ways and Means Committee; Charles C. Hughes is secretary of both committees; and Frederick A. Wallis is treasurer and chairman of the Executive Committee of the General Committee.

Fifth Avenue real estate values and their increment since trade first began to invade the thoroughfare form interesting observations. In 1889 a committee composed of John D. Crimmins, Orlando B. Potter and Jefferson M. Levy bought for the National Democratic Club for $175,000 the property it now occupies. The site had been the home of the late Cord Meyer, Jr., who was long treasurer of the Democratic State Committee and a man of large wealth. Mr. Meyer thought the price he obtained for the property was very satisfactory. Apparently he did not foresee the marvelous growth of business in the avenue. The club was offered $210,000 before it took title and refused it. In 1897 Richard Croker took an active interest in the management of the club, and through his counsel and judgment the organization held on to the property, in spite of the fact that it had bought the old building of the New York Athletic Club, on Sixth Avenue, which the club finally decided not to use. It was ultimately sold at a loss to the Democratic Club of $50,000. In the light of the increment of the Fifth Avenue home of the organization it could well afford to have lost the $50,000 instead of the great increment of the present holding, which it would have lost instead if it had sold.

It will be recalled that many years ago the Manhattan Club, a famous Democratic social and political organization, leased the old Stewart mansion that stood on the plot, 61.9x100, at the northwest corner of Fifth Avenue and Thirty-fourth Street, which it occupied for some years. About twenty years ago the club was offered an option of purchase of the property at $1,200,000, on easy terms, by the heirs of A. T. Stewart. The price seemed enormous and the club could not see the advantage of it. Today the property is worth more than $5,000,000, with a fourteen-story building on the site. Before that was built it was assessed at $1,725,000, with a four-story office building thereon. The new building was sold a few years ago, at a good profit, by Max Natanson, who erected the larger building.

Less than a decade after the Manhattan Club declined to buy the Stewart mansion a plot one-half the size of the Stewart plot and directly across the avenue was sold to Benjamin Altman by the King family for more than $900,000. It adjoined the northeast corner of Fifth Avenue and Thirty-fourth Street and now forms part of the site of the Altman store building. About the same time, Henry Clews sold his home, a four-story stone double house, on the north side of West Thirty-fourth Street, a few doors west of Fifth Avenue, for nearly $700,000 to McCreery & Company as part of the site for their store building which they were then assembling. Mr. Clews took a handsome profit over what he had paid for the property many years before. About the same time, also, the New York Club sold its club-house and site at the southwest corner of Fifth Avenue and Thirty-fifth Street, which is now the site of a large building. The club thought it was obtaining an enormous price for the property at the time, but it has trebled in value since.

The elder James Gordon Bennett lived and died in an old brick and stone mansion that stood on the plot, 60.11x125, at the northeast corner of Fifth Avenue and Thirty-eighth Street, which he owned. That was in 1872, and Mr. Bennett had bought the property some years before for a comparatively nominal sum. The entire neighborhood was purely residential. His son, of the same name, resided there for some years afterward. Less than twenty-five years ago Mr. Bennett sold the property to the late Austin Corbin for residential purposes at the then munificent price of $175,000. Ten years later the Corbin estate sold the parcel for $350,000; a year or two later it was sold for $500,000; and later still for $800,000. The Siebrecht Building, a five-story office and store structure, now occupies the site; and the aggregate annual rental of the property now is within $35,000 of what Mr. Bennett obtained for the fee of it.

Twenty-five years ago the late Judge Bixbee sold the lot, 25x100, at the southeast corner of Fifth Avenue and Forty-second Street for $149,000. It is now worth $1,000,000 by itself, although it forms part of a large site.

About fifteen years ago the Lorillard estate owned the plot, 74.1x125, at the northeast corner of Fifth Avenue and Thirty-seventh Street, with an old brick mansion on it. It was sold then for $325,000. A few years later Benjamin Altman bought it for $850,000; and it has since been sold for $1,200,000. In 1903, Commodore Elbridge T. Gerry leased the Bristol Building, northwest corner of Fifth Avenue and Forty-second Street, an eight-story structure, on a plot 74.6x125, to Walter J. Salmon, for $45,000 a year. Mr. Salmon's lease expires next year, but last week he signed a new lease for the entire Gerry plot for a rental of about $430,000 a year. Mr. Gerry, beside owning the Bristol Building, owns the five-story building at 506 Fifth Avenue, adjoining, 25.11x125, together with 28, 29, 30 and 31 West Forty-second Street, adjoining the rear of the Bristol Building, old five-story buildings with stores, each on a lot 20.10x100.5. The lease on all of these expires next year also. For all of these properties, including the Bristol Building, the annual rental asked on a new lease was $450,000 a year. By acquiring a lease covering these properties Mr. Salmon now has a plot approximately 100x195 feet on the corner many experts consider the most valuable in uptown New York. There are other stores on the Forty-second Street block that are bringing record rentals on new leases. A new lease may mean a large modern building on the combined plots. One lot at the northwest corner of Fifth Avenue and Forty-second Street, part of the Bristol Building site, was in 1849 worth $1,250. In that year the Hoffman family bought lots on the north side of Forty-second Street, opposite Bryant Park, for $250 each, and it still owns them, improved, of course.

Less than a decade ago the five-story building 535 Fifth Avenue, adjoining the Delmonico Building at the northeast corner of Forty-fourth Street, could have been bought for about $200,000. Now it is assessed for $475,000, and during the last year was sold at a figure considerably beyond that. The Delmonico Building itself, covering a plot 65.5x140, the latter frontage on the avenue, is assessed at $1,600,000. It is understood that it was acquired not long ago by the Harriman National Bank at more than $2,000,000.

An interesting single parcel is that owned by the estate of Anson R. Flower at 601 Fifth Avenue, between Forty-eighth and Forty-ninth Streets. It is a five-story building, on a lot 27x100, and it is assessed at $390,000. The estate is asking $650,000 for it, and it is understood to have refused an offer of $625,000.

Nearby, at the southwest corner of Fifth Avenue and Forty-eighth Street, is the five-story modern structure known as the Black, Starr & Frost Building, covering a plot 45.5x125, with an interior "L" 25x55. About ten years ago it was sold for $1,000,000, and the price was then considered a record one in upper Fifth Avenue. Now it is held at $2,800,000. It is assessed at $1,500,000, or half a million dollars more than it was sold for about a decade ago.

Opposite the property of the National Democratic Club are two stores that are leased at a rental of $36,000 a year each, while the jeweler, Kirkpatrick, at the southwest corner of Fifth Avenue and Fiftieth Street, has been offered a large profit for the remainder of his lease on his store.

In the light of the increment of property values all around it, many members of the National Democratic Club feel that there is no good reason for it to sell its property.

Lockwood Committee Insists Emergency Still Exists

Alleges Shortage of 80,000 Apartments and Introduces Bill to Allow Insurance Companies to Invest Temporarily in Low-Priced Land and Buildings

Albany, February 1, 1922.

SENATOR CHARLES C. LOCKWOOD, chairman of the Joint Legislative Committee on Housing, has presented the Legislature a preliminary report summing up the activities of the committee and its findings, and presented a bill to carry out the recommendation that life insurance companies be permitted under certain circumstances to invest in land and thereon erect tenements in which the rental for rooms shall be estimated not to exceed $9 per month at the time construction is begun. A further report and more recommendations will be presented to the Senate and Assembly about February 15. The preliminary report follows:

Your committee finds overwhelming evidence that the emergency in housing accommodations that existed, particularly in the city of New York, at the time the emergency rent laws were passed still exists, and that, with respect to the cheaper class of tenements and houses that formerly rented at from $4 to $11 per room, the emergency has grown and is today more acute than it was at the time the laws were passed.

Your committee further finds that, owing to the high prices of labor and materials and to other economic conditions, no houses of the character last described are being constructed or are in prospect, whilst, on the other hand, many of the older tenements of this class have become obsolete and uninhabitable, whilst many others have been torn down to make room for business buildings that are encroaching upon these neighborhoods.

The present costs have driven building activities into the construction of business and residential properties and of the more expensive apartment houses to the exclusion of reasonably priced tenements.

Meantime the congestion among the masses of people in the great cities, and particularly in the City of New York, is increasing to such an extent that it has become a menace to the lives, health, morals and safety of the entire community. In many districts there are from three to four times as many human beings housed in the same number of cubic feet of living space as before the war.

Such is the condition of this class of property that in the Borough of Manhattan alone there are said to be about 100,000 violations against the sanitary and building laws now on file in the public departments, upon most of which no action has been taken.

The congestion, both in these departments and in the courts that have to deal with these violations, is so great that the public officials, notwithstanding the commendable efforts they are making, are swamped with them and have practically been unable to enforce the laws.

Your committee is satisfied that as a result of the shortage in this class of living accommodations, the lives and health of the population of the City of New York are in grave danger from the results of contagious diseases, apart from the perils that lurk in the unhealthy surroundings which the poorer classes of our population are compelled to live.

There is no relief in sight from the ordinary activities of competitive building, for the reasons above stated. We estimate that there is a shortage of about 80,000 apartments, as compared with the normal supply that existed in the years preceding the war. As the average apartment of this class was formerly occupied by five persons, the accommodations required to remedy this shortage would be for about 40,000 people in the City of New York.

In as much as our labors are still far from completed in many of the ramifications of this subject upon which we have entered and should enter, there has not yet been the time or opportunity to examine into conditions that are said to be almost, if not entirely, similar in other cities of the State.

Unless the State or the city, assuming that either can secure the necessary constitutional power, will undertake to supply this pressing need (as to the advisability of which the committee expresses no opinion at this time), the only way we see in which the necessary capital may be promptly secured would be by enlarging the powers of investment of the life insurance companies so as to permit them (but only during the existence of this emergency) to invest a small proportion of their capital in the constructions of this class of buildings and the purchase of the land necessary therefor, subject to the limitations contained in the accompanying proposed amendment to the insurance law.

Your committee regards this form of investment as entirely safe for these corporations under existing conditions. Our investigations have satisfied us that if the work of construction is conducted on a large scale by the buildings of units of square blocks at one time, substantial concessions from the ruling prices of labor and materials can be had that will permit of the construction of healthful model tenements, in good neighborhoods, adapted to the use of families of workmen, mechanics, laborers, clerks and others of very limited incomes, at rental prices of not to exceed from $8 to $9 per room, and still leave for the companies safe returns of 6 per cent. upon their investment after making liberal allowances for depreciation, vacancies, reserves and the like.

The plan as outlined, provided the proposed amendment is enacted, contemplates that, in return for concessions to be made below the prevailing wage scale by mechanics and laborers who work upon these buildings, they would be afforded by the owners a preference over the tenants in hiring apartments in the building, the hope and expectation being that by these means the men will feel that they are constructing their own homes and that added labor efficiency will thus be secured, which is regarded as an important item by way of reduction in costs.

The following bill, introduced to carry out the recommendation of the committee, was referred to the Committee on Insurance:

Until March 1, 1924, and so long thereafter as the emergency in housing conditions mentioned in certain acts of the Legislature of 1920 and 1921 shall continue, every life insurance corporation, foreign or domestic, transacting business in this State, may purchase land in any city of the first-class in this State, and on land in such city acquired pursuant to any other provision of this chapter may erect apartment, tenement, or other dwelling houses, not including hotels.

Such corporations may thereafter hold, maintain, manage, collect and receive income from and from time to time sell or convey the lands so purchased and the improvements thereon. The aggregate cost of all the lands so purchased and improvements so made shall not exceed 10 per cent. of the total admitted assets of such corporation as of December 31, 1921, as such assets are shown in the annual report of such corporation to Superintendent of Insurance for the year 1921.

The cost of land acquired under this section shall not be allowed as an admitted asset unless improved as provided by this section, nor if so improved, shall the cost of such land and improvements thereon be so allowed unless the average net rental value of such apartment, tenement, or other dwelling house erected thereon, as estimated at the commencement of construction, be $9, or less, per month per room.

When Governor Miller was asked if he approved of the measure introduced by the Lockwood Committee giving the insurance companies the right to invest a part of their assets in the construction of dwellings, he intimated that he was not altogether convinced of its wisdom.

The measure, Governor Miller said, did not as an original plan meet with his approval, but it might prove to be desirable in view of the existing emergency.

"Do you favor Lockwood committee's bill and the so-called Untermyer building plan?" Governor Miller was asked.

"That is something that requires very careful study," he replied. "As an original proposition it would undoubtedly be a very unwise thing. The only question is whether it will help in the present emergency and whether it would be justified as an emergency matter. That has to be given careful consideration."

The Governor's attention was called to the fact that one of the real estate bodies held the plan had already had the effect of stopping building operations because of fear of competing with new dwelling construction investors.

"Well," he said, "the class of buildings that that was aimed to provide for according to my information, are not being constructed anyway. In other words, the low priced tenement buildings are not being constructed, as I understand it, and that is where the acute shortage is now, and the purpose of this is to stimulate such building."

"Now, whether it will do it or not, whether the plan is sound or not, has to be very carefully considered. I do not think any one would think it wise as a general policy to permit insurance companies to invest in that fashion, having regard solely to the security of the funds and such a proposal would have to be justified as a temporary thing, limited very carefully in its duration to provide for an emergency."

How Rentals Were Increased by a Few Landlords

BEFORE winding up its public hearings in this city previous to making a report to the Legislature the Joint Legislature Committee on Housing again on January 27 last placed witnesses on the stand to confirm previous testimony that professional "leasers" and a small number of landlords were responsible for most of the trouble between landlords and tenants which resulted in the outcry against

"profiteering" and brought about the passage of the new rent laws. The committee's accountant reported that he had found accurate the accounts of John P. Burns, clerk of the Seventh District Municipal Court, who testified recently that ten landlords in that district were responsible for thousands of landlord and tenant cases. Mr. Burns has handled $1,936,697 of

Metropolis Gained 50,000 Living Units During 1921

Report of Building Trades Employers' Association, Following Exhaustive Survey Shows Housing Crisis Less Acute and Rentals Receding

CONCLUSIVE evidence that the local housing crisis is far less acute at present than it was one year ago is presented in the report of the exhaustive survey recently made by the Building Trades Employers' Association. Although this survey was not fundamentally an analysis of the housing situation in Greater New York, but rather a general investigation into conditions in the building industry, authorized by the employers for a specific purpose, the fact that residential construction absolutely dominated the entire local building field during the past twelve months made it natural that it should have developed practically into a valuable commentary on the housing situation.

The summary of this report indicates a condition quite different in many respects from the claims presented by the Lockwood Committee and others in regard to the present housing situation in New York City. The report of the Employers' Association shows that the past year was one of the most productive in local building history when residential construction is considered and that because of the vast number of living accommodations provided the housing problem of the Metropolis, while admittedly not entirely eliminated, is far less critical than it was, and that already rental values are reflecting a downward trend through the substantial number of new habitations available for occupancy.

Claims have repeatedly been made during the past few weeks that this city is still short approximately 80,000 dwellings for the accommodation of about 400,000 residents. This statement naturally leads to the question whether or not the claimants of this great home shortage have taken into consideration the fact that nearly 50,000 living units, providing for about 250,000 persons, were provided during the past year. The job-to-job investigation made by the Employers' Association shows that in round numbers this amount of residential space was provided by builders as the result of the tremendous demand and the favorable provisions of the Tax Exemption ordinance. The report further shows that the construction of one and two-family dwellings in the outlying districts has reached the point of saturation, hundreds still remaining on the market for sale or rent.

The survey of the local building situation started last November is summarized by Secretary Samuel B. Donnelly in the following statement:

"There was completed between April 1 and December 31, 1921, in the entire city: Brick, one-family houses, 406; brick, two-family houses, 640; frame, one-family houses, 2,046; frame, two-family houses, 337; apartment buildings, 210.

tenants money since the emergency laws were passed.

Harry Goodstein, president of the West Harlem Property Owners' Association, testified that the houses Nos. 204, 206, 208, 210, 205, 207 and 209 West 118th street and 164 and 176 St. Nicholas avenue were known as Garden Court. Goodstein said that his association learned that in November, 1919, Edward W. Browning bought the property from the Central Savings Bank, investing about $60,000 in cash and taking a mortgage of $275,000. Browning immediately increased the rent from $40 to $60 and $65 on the promise to make some repairs. There were only white people in the houses, some of whom had lived there fifteen years. Then the property was leased to Klein, who demanded $100 and $125 of the tenants for their apartments. The tenants refused to pay and Klein was defeated in the actions he brought in court.

Then Klein, testified Goodstein, rented the apartments to negro families after the Tenement House Department had stopped him from using them as lodging houses.

Adolph Koffel of the Central Savings Bank, which sold the

"These buildings provided accommodations for 9,889 families.

"There was under construction on January 1, 1922: Brick, one-family houses, 1,152; brick, two-family houses, 1,728; frame, one-family houses, 5,877; frame, two-family houses, 969; apartment buildings, 838.

"These buildings will provide accommodations for 26,760 families and when completed will make a total of families provided for since April 1, 1921, of 36,649.

"An estimate based upon the number of plans filed since January 1, 1922, shows that buildings upon which work will be started between January 1 and April 1, 1922, will provide accommodations for 10,000 additional families, and the work completed prior to April 1, 1921, to which the tax exemption law will apply, will bring the grand total of families provided for under the tax exemption law to approximately 50,000.

"Eighty per cent. of the buildings constructed since the tax exemption law has been effective are located in the boroughs of The Bronx, Brooklyn and Queens. The average tax rate for these boroughs for the year 1921 was 2.83. Should this be the average tax rate for the ten-year period during which the tax exemption ordinance will be in effect and should the average assessed valuation upon the accommodations provided for each family be $4,000, the annual amount of taxes on accommodations for each family, from the collection of which the owners will be exempted, will amount to $113.20 per annum or $1,132.00 for the ten year period.

"The total amount of taxes, the collection of which the City of New York will waive, will amount approximately to $56,600,000, which sum will indirectly be contributed by the tax payers of the city to the providing of additional housing accommodations for the well-to-do.

"The house building boom of 1921 in the commuting area, composed of Nassau and Westchester Counties, New York, and Hudson, Passaic, Essex and Union Counties, New Jersey, has been unprecedented as has been the migration of city dwellers to these counties.

"The effect of this enormous increase in housing accommodations will be a reduction of rent for all classes of rent payers. The present rate of $18.00 to $25.00 a room in the new buildings is now declining and will drop to a rate of $15.00 to $20.00 a room, which will cause a migration of people who are now paying a $15.00 and $20.00 rate for less desirable habitations in old buildings, and effect a general reduction of rents and ultimately result in an enormous quantity of vacancies in the older apartments and tenements."

property to Browning, said that when he called Browning's attention to Klein's advertisement for negro tenants he told Browning, "Your name will be cursed by all people whom you are injuring, hundreds and thousands of them, perhaps."

Browning said, "Well, I cannot help that."

Arthur V. Seaman, tenant of one of the houses for thirteen years, said that Klein took him to court seven times and lost each time. Klein summoned one tenant to court eleven times.

Dr. Michael J. O'Brien, of 101 West 122d street, said that he was interested in St. Thomas's Church, which is opposite Klein's houses, together with the parochial school next to it, represented an investment of $1,250,000, but that its value had depreciated since the negroes moved in. He said the effect of Klein's action had frightened the entire neighborhood and had caused many to move.

Klein was called and refused to sign a waiver of immunity from criminal prosecution. He was asked if he would rather have the charges against him go unanswered. "Yes, sir," he said, and was excused.

Browning also appeared and refused to waive.

Sustained Dealing Brought Forth Some Good Corner Parcels Throughout City and Some Large Leases Were Closed That Spell Increased Values

THE real estate market, this week, was a well-sustained continuation of that of the week before. There was no immense sale, but there were numerous transactions that bordered on large, as well as the sale of numerous fine dwellings, tenement houses and elevator apartment houses and some medium-sized business buildings. An investment feature that loomed strong was the sale of numerous parcels to tenants of them. Good leases was a striking feature, too.

The big sales comprised the 9-story mercantile building at the southeast corner of Fifth avenue and 17th street; a tract of 21 lots, in Harlem, as a site for a new Public School, and another large plot in the Tremont section of the Bronx as the site for another Public School; the southeast corner of Nassau and Fulton streets, an 8-story business building, and a corner of Fulton and Pearl streets, an old 4-story brick building; some large apartment houses in Harlem and on Washington Heights; some good East side avenue sales of tenement houses with stores; the sale of some loft buildings on Broadway, between Spring and Broome streets; numerous large new apartment houses in the Bronx; some large vacant and improved parcels in Brooklyn; and a few good transactions in old buildings on the lower East side.

The number of sales of fine dwellings would seem to indicate that there are still many persons who prefer private residences to choice apartments. The vacant land movement in the Bronx that has been prevalent for a long time has subsided somewhat and the speculation and investment there, just now, is in improved properties mostly. The lower

West side was prominent in the sale of properties of diversified character. An old and large bread-baking firm bought a large plot in the Borough Park district of Brooklyn; and probably nothing more aptly illustrates the spreading out of residential area within a generation than this transaction. It is not so many years ago that this concern had only one plant wherewith to supply its trade, whereas now it has baking plants as large, if not larger, than its original one in Williamsburg, scattered through three boroughs.

The most notable lease of the year was that signed January 27, by Walter J. Salmon, when he renewed his lease, for 20 years, on the Bristol building and adjacent parcels at the northwest corner of Fifth avenue and 42d street, at a price reputed to be nearly ten times as much as the price of the original lease made twenty years ago. Nothing more strongly illustrates the premiership of Fifth avenue as a great business thoroughfare. A twelve-story building, further north on Fifth avenue, was leased by the Levi P. Morton estate, owner. Two other leases in the Grand Central zone illustrate the northward march of trade in this city: one being the removal of the headquarters of a prominent desk and office furniture firm from Stone street, in the lower Wall street section, to a large store in the Canadian Pacific building, at Madison avenue and 44th street; and the other the removal of the executive offices of a large chain store firm to a building in 42d street, near the Grand Central Terminal, from a building on Broadway, near 12th street.

Lecture by E. P. Doyle

IN his address made at the West Side Y. M. C. A. as part of the course for their real estate class, Edward P. Doyle, manager of the Bureau of Information and Research of the Real Estate Board of New York, sketched the progress of this country for a hundred years, stating that the only important laws passed in all that time affecting real estate seriously were the laws to correct abuses in New York State, and the law giving owners the right of summary proceeding. The rights of property were held sacred and we were a home owning nation.

In about 1920, he said, and he quoted from ex-President Wilson's History of the United States, the character of immigration changed. Then began, said Mr. Doyle, the invasion of property rights, and the beginning of the propaganda that a man was his brother's keeper, and that it was the duty of the thrifty to take care of the unthrifty and the worthless. Laws were constantly passed to make living easy for people.

He said the Tenement House Law with its absolutely rigid provisions, was the first important act of this character passed. The passage of this act was the beginning of a situation which finally made it impossible to build houses that could be rented at a profit to the very poor. Mr. Doyle then said that other laws passed regarding real estate and private property until the cumulating laws, the rent laws of 1920. These, if finally confirmed by the Supreme Court of the United States, he said, would entirely change the character of our government and we would no longer be a constitutional republic, but a pure democracy. They would absolutely discourage home owning today in the United States. Of 26,000,000 heads of families in the United States now, only 12,000,000 own their own homes. In conclusion, he said, that the only thing that could solve the housing problems was the free operation of the laws of supply and demand, and the Legislature could in no manner aid.

Allan Robinson Opens Offices

Allan Robinson, who has been president of the City and Suburban Homes Co., since 1915, has resigned from that company and opened an office at 50 East 42d st, where he will specialize in real estate management, land and industrial development work. For ten years prior to his taking up his late work with the City and Suburban Homes Co., Mr. Robinson was president of the Allied Real Estate Interests of the State of New York. He also published the Real Estate Magazine which had a national circulation. The last annual report of the City and Suburban Home Co. showed that the company was paying 4½ per cent. on its stock and earning sufficient to warrant a 5 per cent. declaration.

In 1918, Mr. Robinson went to Washington to take charge of the Government munition housing development. His official title in the United States Housing Corporation was "Manager of Operating Division," which meant that he had to operate some 63 different developments from the Atlantic to the Pacific coast, including towns ranging in population from a few hundred to as many as 25,000 people in each and hotels, cafeterias, churches, schools, recreation centers, etc. The Residence Hall for Women in Washington as originally planned, provided for 5,000 guests; and, as actually built, they provided for 1,500 guests. Mortgage Loans

L. Davis placed a mortgage loan of $66,000 on the premises, 294 West 92d st; on the premises at the northeast corner of St. Nicholas av and 59th st, $45,000; and on the premises, 1412 Fifth av, $17,000.

Charles Griffith and Eugene Moses & Co. obtained for the Friedman-White Realty Co. from the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. three 10-year term mortgages, aggregating $750,000, on three large elevator apartment houses in course of construction on the west side of Riverside dr, 300 feet north of 158th st. They will house 175 families.

The building company is composed of Morris White, a wealthy business man who is investing some of his surplus capital in real estate, and Henry Friedman, who has built more than 100 apartment houses in New York, in the last few years.

The land, overlooking Audubon Park, was formerly the homestead of William Foster, Jr., who was associated with Jay Gould and Russell Sage in the building of the original elevated railroad on Ninth av. The location on high ground which slopes off sharply to the south and west will afford an uninterrupted outlook from every apartment and the physical conditions of the surrounding land are such that the view of the Hudson River can never be shut off.

New York Title & Mortgage Co. made four building loans aggregating almost $500,000:

Two on the block front, West Side of St. Nicholas av, between 189th and 190th sts. to the Hudson Builders' Corporation, composing a syndicate of Louis Klosk, Barnett Brodsky and Dr. Solomon Gettenberg, of $150,000 each; and two loans on the West Side of Edgecomb av, 749.6 feet and 824.6 feet, respectively, north of West 150th st, to the Hudson Builders' Corporation, consisting of Louis Klosk, Barnett Brodsky and Dr. Solomon Gettenberg of $90,000 each. The four buildings are to be high-class apartment houses, and are to be ready for occupancy in the Spring.

Lawrence, Blake & Jewell placed, for new construction loans, for the erection of apartment houses, mercantile and office buildings, during the month of January, more than $1,350,000.

Quinlan & Leland placed a first mortgage loan of $85,000 for the Kodgy Building Co., Harry Freed, president, on the new 5-sty apartment house, on plot 75x125, at 2315 Andrews av, Bronx.

Edwards, Dowdney & Richart obtained for the Nieuwenhou Co., Inc., a first mortgage loan of $180,000 on their property northwest corner Park av and 163d st, Bronx.

Leon S. Altmayer negotiated a first mortgage for $25,500 on the northeast corner of Longfellow av and Bancroft st, Bronx, and known as 1141 East 165th st, a 5-sty triple apartment house with 3 stores.

P. M. Clear & Co. obtained for the N. & N. Realty Co. a first mortgage of $11,000 on the premises 134 Tompkins av, Brooklyn.

Quinlan & Leland placed a first mortgage loan of $80,000 for the Morena Building Co. on the new 5-sty apartment house, on a plot 75x100, on the east side of Davidson av, 75 feet south of 190th st.

Douglas L. Elliman & Co. have been appointed renting agents for the new 10-sty, fireproof apartment building, to be erected on the northeast corner of Lexington av and 80 st, by the Cresham Realty Co., Alexander M. Bing, president. The plan calls for 4 house-keeping apartments of 3 to 5 rooms and bath on each floor. The living-rooms are exceptionally large, averaging 14x22.10 each, with an open fireplace and an interesting innovation is the "Pullmanette" or California-type of kitchen, which is really a kitchen and a breakfast room combined. When entertaining, the living room can be used as both dining and living room after the English custom, which has recently become so popular in this country. It is expected that the building will be completed and the apartments ready for occupancy next autumn.

Walter M. Waskom became associated with the mortgage department of William A. White & Sons on February 1. He will handle primarily the out of town loans of the firm. He was formerly connected with S. W. Strauss & Co. and latterly was manager of the branch of the National City Bank at Porto Alegre, Brazil.

Architectural League Opens 37th Annual Exhibition

Unusually Attractive and Interesting Display of Architecture, Painting, Sculpture and Craftsmanship in Fine Arts Building

THE thirty-seventh annual exhibition of the Architectural League of New York formally opened Friday evening, February 3, in the Fine Arts Building, 215 West 57th street. At the opening ceremonies the award of medals in Architecture, Painting, Sculpture, Landscape Architecture and Artistic Craftsmanship were awarded and an address was made by Howard Greenley, president of the League. The program for this exhibition includes the usual reception of the League to its members and friends, which will take place Saturday afternoon, from 3 to 6 p. m., and the exhibition will be open to the public from Sunday, February 5th, to Saturday, March 4th, between 1 and 10 p. m.

In connection with these opening ceremonies will be a Russian folk-lore fairy story pantomime, "The Princess Who Never Smiled." This is a very naive and primitive play carried out in most gorgeous early costumes, specially made by the various members of the League in conformity with their unique pantomime character. The part of the Czar will be taken by Leo Lentelli. "The Princess Who Never Smiled," by Mrs. H. V. B. Magonigle. Robert Aitken is the Astrologer and S. Dekosenko takes the part of the Bear. Special music has been adopted for the story by Miss Wright from the works of Holland's Sumurun.

The Exhibition this year is being arranged by a Committee headed by Harvey W. Corbett, and will occupy the three large galleries, and will comprise architectural designs, paintings and architectural works and exhibitions of the Allied Arts and Crafts, Mural paintings, sculpture, tapestry, ornamental iron work, stained glass, and in fact all other architectural accessories that fittingly appear in such an exhibition. This year a particularly wide range is covered, and to illustrate the work a number of models have also been submitted.

The War's activities have caused a number of proposed Memorials to be exhibited, the largest of which is "The Harkness Memorial Group" at Yale, by James Gamble Rogers. Another is, "The Liberty War Memorial," at Kansas City, the designs of which are by H. V. B. Magonigle. Among some of the other architectural works which are quite prominently displayed are the drawings of the Nebraska State Capitol by Bertram G. Goodhue, a very interesting example of Church architecture, by Helmle & Corbett, the Seaboard National Bank, New York, by Alfred C. Bossom, the main entrance of the Detroit Public Library, by Cass Gilbert, and the North Entrance of the Ohio Stadium, the Ohio State University at Columbus, by George Dwight Smith, etc.

The decorative painters are quite well represented and the works of Mack Jenney & Tyler are very prominently illustrated, and the designs worked out. Mr. Leon V. Solon in connection with decorative tile work, form quite a new and interesting note.

Also photographs are shown of the interior of the Cunard Building with its wonderfully colored ceiling, executed by Ezra Winter.

Among some of the sculptors whose work should be of considerable interest to visitors are specimens by Robert Aitken, Leo Lentelli, Charles Carey Rumsey, C. E. Jennewein, Emil Fuchs and others.

The League's policy of bringing the architect to the craftsman, and the craftsman to the architect, so as to insure the very best result for the general public, due to having the spirit behind the architectural conception interpreted intelligently by all those who enter into the work, is bringing about very considerable response among the various tradesmen.

Several years ago the Architectural League increased the scope of its exhibition by inviting the various crafts identified with the decoration and equipment of high class projects to participate. It was thought that a closer co-operation between the manufacturers of fabrics, furniture, floor coverings and all of the other examples of artistic craftsmanship that are commonly employed to add comfort and beauty, and the architects who design the buildings in which they are used, would be mutually beneficial. The League offered a medal in Artistic Craftsmanship as a reward for the maximum of progress in design and workmanship. The experiment was a complete success and each succeeding year has witnessed a greater interest on the part of manufacturers and dealers to co-operate more fully with the architects, sculptors and painters in their effort to give a wider scope to the annual expositions of the Architectural League and give it a greater appeal to the public which is growing constantly more appreciative of art and beauty in their buildings.

The 1922 Exhibition of the League is unusually attractive because of the increasing interest in artistic craftsmanship. A large number of manufacturers have joined with the League to make this 37th annual exposition epochal in the history of the organization. Interesting displays of furniture, beautiful fabrics, rare pottery, etc., have been combined in artistic groups and the result is most pleasing and instructive.

The architectural showing embraces a wide range, from models of country club buildings, with parking sheds for motors, to designs of country villas, city skyscrapers and railroad freight terminals. The designs have been submitted by architects in all parts of the country and comprise work completed or planned during the past year which has not heretofore been shown.

The exhibition at the Metropolitan Museum of Industrial Art, which at the present time is going on, is carried out along the same lines and shows there is a real demand for this type of exhibition among interested parties. Many of the great designs in the past have been ruined when the execution has not been carried out in sympathy and harmony with the Architect's intention, and the more mutual interest and co-operation that can be created between the one who designs the building on paper and those who create it in the three dimensions, the better it will be for the architecture of America.

TOTAL building contracts awarded in New York City (five boroughs) during the month of January, according to The F. W. Dodge Company, amounted to $33,460,500. This is more than four times the amount for January, 1921.

Although this January was 25 per cent. under the preceding month, the decline representing a somewhat delayed seasonal drop in activity, its total was equal to the average monthly total for last year. This ought to be an indication of an increased volume of construction this year.

Residential construction continues as the dominant factor in the situation, having amounted in January to $24,537,700, or 73 per cent. of the total volume of building operations.

Another Hostelry Planned for Times Square District

American Bond & Mortgage Company Underwrites $1,500,000 Bond Issue on Fifteen-Story Hotel Claman in Forty-third Street

PROMINENT in the group of large building projects scheduled for erection in the Times Square district during the coming year is the fifteen-story hotel planned to occupy a large plot at the northeast corner of Eighth avenue and 43d street. This hotel will be constructed by a syndicate, headed by Henry Claman, which purchased the property from the Christman estate in March, 1920. Gronenberg & Leuchtag, the architects who are preparing the plans and specifications, estimate the cost of the structure to be approximately $1,500,000, and, with the value of the land included, the operation will represent an investment of about $2,500,000.

This new hostelry will be known as the Hotel Claman, after Mr. Claman, who has built and operated apartments and apartment hotels in this section of New York City during the past twelve years. The project has been financed by the American Bond & Mortgage Company, which has underwritten a 7½ per cent. serial bond issue for $1,500,000 on the land and building.

The construction of this hotel is the result of the real need for such accommodations as it will supply, as well as the long experience of the owner in building and managing similar properties. There are many small hotels in this neighborhood with twenty to two hundred rooms, the majority centered within a radius of a few blocks, and they seldom have a vacancy, and usually have a waiting list. The builders calculate that rentals in the Hotel Claman will range from $9 to $14 per week, and therefore should appeal strongly to the city's bachelors, as this hotel will be exclusively for men.

The plans call for twelve stores on the ground floor, and there will be 875 bedrooms, 460 with baths connected; 68 independent baths and showers, commodious lounge and reading rooms all completely furnished with equipment necessary for the operation of a modern hotel. A gymnasium, 66x70 feet, for the use of the guests will be located in the penthouse on the roof, and there will be a large swimming pool in the basement.

In discussing this project, Henry Claman said that the site for the hotel had been selected after considerable investigation as to the best possible location for a hostelry of this type.

"Times Square, which is only one block from the property, is one of the busiest theatrical and business sections in the city," said Mr. Claman, "and it is one of the few districts in New York City where business is carried on uninterruptedly for almost twenty-four hours each day."

Brooklyn Real Estate Board Holds Annual Banquet

RESIDING at the seventh annual banquet of the Brooklyn Real Estate Board, at the Hotel Bossert, Brooklyn, last Saturday evening, President James B. Fisher of that organization prefaced his opening address by quoting almost in its entirety the editorial which appeared in the Record and Guide of January 21, entitled "Emergency Laws vs. Economic Laws," and said that it was "one of the most concise and accurate statements in relation to the subject that has attracted by notice anywhere." The sentiments expressed in the article were enthusiastically applauded.

Continuing, Mr. Fisher said: "There is every indication that real estate is coming out of the maelstrom of unjust rent laws, increased taxes and boosted assessments in which it has been surging the last few years. No other stable security ever weathered such a storm and no other security could weather such a storm. It is another testimonial to that ancient doctrine, the survival of the fittest."

The banquet was the largest ever held by the Brooklyn Board, and it was attended by nearly every real estate broker, manager, builder and title company official in Brooklyn. Despite the fact that a snowstorm was raging at the hour set for the banquet, fifty more guests arrived than were expected. The menu was illustrated with the site of the Bush Terminal, on South Brooklyn's waterfront, showing it as it looked twenty-five years ago and as it looks now. The principal speakers of the evening were Edward C. Stokes, formerly Governor of New Jersey, who discussed "Individualism as the Source of Progress," and the Rev. C. Wallace Petty, D. D., of Manhattan, who responded to the toast, "Everyday Philosophy." An original song of fourteen verses rendered by the diners contained happy hits at various prominent Brooklyn brokers.

Among those present were H. W. Ackerson, Stephen L. Angell, Frank Bailey, Homer L. Bartlett, Albert Beer, Louis Beer, De Hart Bergen, C. D. Burdick, William R. Burling, Richard T. Childs, Charles E. Covert, President of the United States Title Guaranty Company; William H. Goldey, William E. Greenman, William M. Greve, Arthur B. Gritman, John E. Henry, Arthur J. Horton, George S. Horton, Clifford S. Kelsey, H. B. Lyons, Thomas F. Martin, Joseph M. May, George H. Gray, Edwin P. Maynard, President of the Brooklyn Trust Company; William G. Morrisey, A. J. Murphy, George H. Ohnewald, Lewis H. Pounds, William P. Rae, Charles E. Rickerson, Granville H. Rome, John E. Rutson, William H. Robbins, John B. Slee, Clarence B. Smith, Fred B. Snow, Elisha Sniffin, Charles C. Stelle, Maurice G. Straus, Frank H. Tyler and Ernest Tutino.

Plans in Progress Indicate Busy Spring Building Season

Statistics Tabulated by F. W. Dodge Company Show Increasing Interest in Residential Operations Scheduled for Early Start

RECORDS of proposed construction in the New York territory, as tabulated by the F. W. Dodge Company, show that a vast amount of new building will be undertaken during the coming spring and summer months. The reports of the first four weeks of the new year indicate an even greater amount of building activity than that which marked 1921, which from a construction viewpoint was an extremely active period in this part of the country.

The report for the fourth week of 1922 shows that plans were reported in progress for 379 new building and engineering operations all scheduled for locations in New York State and New Jersey, north of Trenton. This work will involve an outlay of approximately $13,318,000. During the same period contracts were awarded in this territory for 240 projects at an estimated total valuation of $14,182,800.

Although there is a steady and consistent increase in the volume of commercial and industrial construction appearing on the building program for the coming season residential projects continue to dominate the situation, according to the figures. The past few weeks has brought out plans for a great number of large apartment house projects in New York City, and reports from the suburban districts indicate a great interest in small house construction.

The weekly report shows that the list of 379 proposed operations is grouped as follows: 56 business operations, such as stores, offices, lofts, commercial garages, etc., $3,192,000; 5 educational projects, $145,600; 9 factory and industrial buildings, $277,000; 1 military structure, $10,000; 5 public buildings, $98,500; 11 public works and public utilities, $953,200; 8 religious and memorial projects, $247,500; 278 residential operations, including apartments, flats and tenements and one and two-family dwellings, $7,915,000, and 6 social and recreational projects, $480,000.

Among the 240 operations for which contracts were awarded during the week of January 21 to 27 inclusive, were 34 business projects of various types, $1,157,000; 2 educational buildings, $350,000; 1 hospital, $15,000; 8 factory and industrial buildings, $3,095,800; 2 public buildings, $28,500; 4 public works and public utilities, $10,500; 2 religious and memorial structures, $129,000; 186 residential operations, including multi-family structures and one and two-family dwellings, $9,377,000, and 1 social and recreational project, $20,000.

The exposition will open at Rio de Janeiro on September 7 and will commemorate one hundred years of Brazilian independence. It was recently announced at the White House that the American building would be of permanent construction and so designed as to permit of its being converted into an embassy for this country's diplomatic representative after the close of the exposition.

LOCAL building interests are at present largely confined to preparations for the vast amount of new construction now scheduled for a start just as soon as weather conditions will permit. There is considerable work now in progress and the awards of the past week or so have shown an active interest on the part of prospective builders but the recent commitments will be relatively insignificant when compared with those likely to be made as soon as conditions are more settled. The labor problem is one of the most important retardants at present and an early solution will do more to assist the construction industry in getting back to a normal basis than any other single factor.

Reports from the territory adjacent to Greater New York are indicative of an unusually active suburban building season. Architects and engineers have been especially busy on the preparation of plans for new construction and several operations of considerable magnitude are on the program for the early spring. There is quite some interest being displayed in industrial construction in the manufacturing centers contiguous to New York City and the current reports show that preparations are being made for an unusual amount of residential building to be undertaken next season.

The local building material markets have been quite dull during the past few weeks but this is largely attributable to weather conditions rather than to a lack of demand or interest in construction. The slippery streets have made material hauling difficult and outside work on new projects has been prevented because of the cold. The outlook is promising and within the next few weeks local dealers are confident that a decided change for the better will occur. Building material prices are firm in practically all lines and in some instances there has recently been a very decided tightening of prices with several advances noted.

Common Brick—Business in the New York market for Hudson River common brick has been almost negligible during the past week and although the outlook is fairly promising brick manufacturers do not anticipate any real revival of business until the spring building season starts. There appears to be a vast amount of new construction getting ready for active work during the early spring months and a number of inquiries for brick and other materials in substantial orders have lately been presented. Business in the local wholesale brick market this week was confined to the sale of a single barge load at $17 a thousand for delivery in Manhattan. The price is holding firmly at $17 and no reduction is likely until the Hudson River is again open to navigation. Brick manufacturers are now making their preliminary plans for next season's operations. The big question in their minds at present is labor; will it be available in sufficient volume and what wages will be demanded? According to the rate new building projects are being reported there is likely to be an unusual demand for brick and other basic materials and manufacturers are looking forward to a season of greater production than those of the past few years.

Summary—Transactions in the North River brick market for the week ending Thursday, February 2, 1922. Condition of market: Demand extremely light; prices firm and unchanged. Quotations: Hudson Rivers, $17 a thousand to dealers in cargo lots alongside dock. Number of cargoes arrived, none; sales, 1. Distribution: Manhattan, 1. Remaining unsold in the New York wholesale market, 8.

able activity in this line and dealers anticipate a steady increase in business as the outlook for an unusual amount of new construction is now very promising. According to the plans in progress the spring and summer of 1922 should be a notable period in local building history for the number and value of active building projects. At present hardware prices are steady and no changes of importance are anticipated.

Structural Steel—Business in the fabricated steel market has been more than fair during the past week and there is every reason to expect that the improvement recently shown will continue. A number of important projects have been let within the past few weeks and their steel requirements will involve a very substantial total tonnage. Several other large operations are pending and the announcement of commitments for steel for these will add materially to the stability of this market. There has lately been noticeable a trend toward slightly advanced prices in this line and contractors' quotations on structural steel, fabricated and erected in commercial projects generally range between $60 and $65 per ton.

Electrical Supplies—The market for electrical materials and supplies is quiet with demand for wiring materials moderate and other items moving slowly. Little change in the outlook has been noted, however, and as a rule the trade is optimistic about the prospects for spring business. The reports of a large amount of new construction soon to be released coupled with the fact that residential construction next season will in all probability surpass that of 1921 gives both manufacturers and dealers every reason to anticipate a real revival in their line during the coming months. Electrical material prices are generally firm and no changes of importance have been announced.

Cast Iron Pipe—Trade in this line is generally considered satisfactory for this period of the year. As a matter of fact the manufacturers of cast iron pipe for the most part have substantial orders ahead and the outlook is more than promising. Although new municipal business is lacking at present several projects of more than usual importance are likely to be released for bids shortly and private buying is in good volume and inquiries steadily gaining in number and total tonnage. Prices are steady and unchanged with New York quotations $47.30 per net ton, in carload lots for 6 in. and heavier; $52.30 for 4 in. and 5 in.; $62.30 for 3 in., and $4 extra per ton for Class A and gas pipe.

Window Glass—Just at the moment the market for window glass is dull but there are strong signs that a new buying movement is not far off. Quite some new construction is nearing the final stages of completion and the glass requirements of these projects will amount to a satisfactory total. There is every indication of a tremendous apartment house building movement during the coming season and when the glass requirements of this work is added to the commercial and other building on the program there is reason for this market to be extremely optimistic. Glass prices are somewhat easier than they have been but are expected to tighten up as the demand grows in strength.

Nails—Market conditions are practically unchanged with demand fair and prospects of greatly increased business during the spring and summer months. Jobbers are now mostly concerned with getting their stocks in order for the early spring buying. Prices are firm with New York quotations $3.25 base per keg for wire nails and $4.25 base per keg, for cut nails.

EDITORIAL

If No Repeal, Then Revision

The most reliable information obtainable at Albany indicates that the Legislature will extend for another year the Emergency Rent Laws. Governor Miller is understood to favor such action. In fact, the Governor frankly declared at the annual dinner of the Real Estate Board of New York last Saturday evening that the realty interests in the metropolis might as well reconcile themselves to at least one more year of difficulties under these emergency measures.

The RECORD AND GUIDE opposed the enactment of the Emergency Rent Laws in the beginning, believing them unjust to property owners and a positive deterrent, rather than an aid, in the solution of the housing shortage. The developments since these laws were enacted amply justify that position. There is sound basis for the belief that the sooner these emergency laws are dropped the better it will be for all concerned.

Inasmuch as this view is not accepted by the Governor and the Legislature, however, it would seem the part of wisdom for all interested to devote their efforts to obtaining a reasonable modification of these laws. The RECORD AND GUIDE has opposed these emergency measures consistently because of the fact that they do not differentiate between the reputable, fair-dealing landlords and the fly-by-night profiteers who have no legitimate connection with the business and who, turning their attention to it temporarily, have been guilty of most reprehensible tactics. The great majority of New York landlords are reputable and square dealing, and it is grossly unfair that they should be made to suffer for the indefensible actions of a small minority of temporary landlords who were not in the business before the housing shortage arose and who will not be in the business when the opportunity for profiteering has passed. This is a vital statement of facts which has been ignored persistently at Albany, and one to which Governor Miller and the Legislature should give thoughtful consideration before they extend the Emergency rent Laws, especially in present form, for another year. They have only to consult the testimony taken by the Lockwood Committee to verify the fact that professional leasers and a small number of landlords have been responsible for most of the complaints of profiteering which have arisen.

The Governor and the Legislature should not confine their solicitude to one class. The legitimate property-owners of the metropolis, the great bulk of New York landlords against whom charges of profiteering never have been sustained and cannot be sustained, should get at Albany this year some approach to the square deal of which they have been deprived since the Legislature began its experiment of substituting half-baked theories for the immutable laws of supply and demand. From the Real Estate Board of New York and from other authorities who have made a careful study of the subject the Legislature can get some timely and sound suggestions to make the Emergency Rent Laws more effective, easier of enforcement, less confusing to both landlords and tenants and fairer in many respects. By adopting these suggestions, making them a part of the 1922 statutes, the lawmakers can go quite a way toward making tolerable for another year emergency measures which hitherto have been almost intolerable.

January Building Awards Significant

January construction commitments, as compiled by the F. W. Dodge Company show a gain of approximately fifty per cent. when compared with the total for the corresponding month of last year, and are the best indication that the repeated predictions of a very extensive building movement to start during 1922 were firmly founded in fact. The building records of 1921 show a gradual and consistent gain throughout the year and, although during the final quarter of 1921 the totals indicated a slight decline in the volume of commitments, it was nothing more than a seasonal drop which every one identified with the building industry was able to understand and allow for. The steady improvement in the monthly totals of last year, however, permitted the prediction that the coming season would witness a revival of building activity throughout the country amounting to boom proportions, and the totals for the first month of 1922 adequately bear out these optimistic opinions.

The building totals for January, 1922 argue most favorably for the contracting interests in the United States. There is now no qualified reason for anticipating anything but a consistent gain during the coming months in both the volume of new work planned and new contracts awarded. The country is still underbuilt as far as the actual requirements are concerned, with demand greater than the supply in both housing and commercial projects. As the national building material markets are now in a favorable position, with price levels practically stabilized and adequate reserves assured for any emergency, no anxiety is felt as the success of the national construction program for 1922.

The building figures for the New York territory for January are even more significant than those for the entire territory covered by the F. W. Dodge Company, which includes the twenty-seven Northeastern States. The local figures show that the January, 1922 commitments for new construction were nearly two and one-half times greater than the total for the same period of last year. The tremendous local interest in residential construction, plus the constantly increasing amount of commercial and industrial building activity being planned, is entirely responsible for the improvement shown by the January totals. Although the Metropolitan District has several important problems that must be worked out before complete success is assured for the coming building season, there remains but little doubt that the adverse conditions will be adjusted in time to permit local building interests to avail themselves of the prosperity promised by the recorded commitments.

At present serious drawback to local construction progress and prosperity is the deadlock between employers and labor representatives over the matter of wage scale readjustments. With the exception of labor, the entire building fraternity is convinced that war-time wages are, and will be, an insurmountable bar to the maximum of progress this year, and that although a large proportion of the work now scheduled will proceed despite extortionate labor costs, the prospects for a real building boom would be manifestly improved if the attitude of labor were more reasonable regarding a moderate reduction in wages.

Home Rule by Way of Florida

These seem indeed hard days for that noble bulwark of our municipal liberties, Home Rule. Mayor Hylan is accused by his political critics of using the long-distance telephone to direct various city matters from Florida, and Samuel Untermyer is frankly engaged in writing amid Florida scenes the report which the Lockwood Committee will submit to the Legislature in a few days. Thus, it appears, the metropolis is getting Home Rule in various important matters by way of Florida, which, as every student of distance knows, lies much farther from Broadway than even Albany itself.

Members of the Lockwood Committee undoubtedly are quite as curious as the average New Yorker to learn what Mr. Untermyer will say in the report to the Legislature which they will have an opportunity to sign after Mr. Untermyer has it ready. Senator Lockwood and his associates would seem justified in expecting that the recommendations of their Chief Counsel may lack some of the harshness which often characterizes his public statements in view of the fact that Mr. Untermyer is performing this work on board the Houseboat Nirodha, cruising in the vicinity of Palm Beach. A committee report prepared in such charming surroundings certainly ought to exude the spirit of contentment and good-will which only those fortunate enough to spend the cold season in Florida can feel.

Under the circumstances, the members of the Lockwood Committee, toiling at their other tasks in Albany, may be pardoned if their minds wander occasionally down to the balmy coast of Florida. It is only human nature for them to speculate as to whether all is well on the Houseboat Nirodha, and whether their Chief Counsel is in good health and getting along all right with the task of writing their report for them.

Real Estate Board Proposes Amendments to Rent Laws

BELIEVING that the necessity for the rigid application of the rent laws to apartments desired by, and within the means of, the well-to-do and wealthier classes has ceased to exist, the Real Estate Board of New York has suggested a series of statutory amendments which, if enacted, will go far in the direction of relieving the congestion in the Municipal Courts and will, at the same time, encourage speculative builders to resume the construction of multi-family houses.

Bills are being prepared by the legal department of the Real Estate Board incorporating these suggestions and these measures will be offered in the Legislature and advocated at hearings on the housing situation which will be held in Albany previous to action on the legislation suggested by the Lockwood Committee as the result of its investigations during the last year.

The proposed amendments would exempt from the application of the rent laws proceedings instituted to dispossess objectionable occupants as well as objectionable tenants; discharged janitors; tenants of a building, other than a tenement house, where plans have been filed for converting the structure into living quarters for two or more families; hold-over tenants who have failed to make timely reply to a written notice that their leases may be renewed at the old rental, and all premises occupied under leases hereafter entered into or hotel apartments occupied by transients or under lease. It is also proposed that the law exempting co-operatively owned tenement houses from the application of the rent laws as ameliorated to permit the taking over of an apartment in such a house by the stockholder subscribing therefor, even if all the other apartments have not been subscribed for.

In order to remedy the congestion in the Municipal Courts the rent laws have produced, the Real Estate Board has recommended the repeal of the statutory provision that allows costs to a landlord as a matter of right only in case he recovers the full amount claimed in an action for rent or rental value. As the law now stands, tenants have nothing to lose and everything to gain by litigating every disagreement as to rents. It is contended that a return to the traditional policy of making costs abide the result of a litigation would promote the arbitration or amicable adjustment of thousands of controversies between landlords and tenants, which would correspondingly reduce the demand upon Municipal Courts and juries. To the same end, the Real Estate Board has recommended the re-introduction of the bill vetoed last year by the Mayor, authorizing the Appellate Divisions of the First and Second Departments to appoint a corps of referees to assist the Municipal Court justices in disposing of the avalanche of rent law litigations that is overwhelming them.

"Reasonable Rent Decision" Clarified

DECLARING there had been an unfortunate misunderstanding of its former decision, handed down last June, regarding what constitutes "a reasonable rent," the Appellate term of the Supreme Court in Brooklyn recently rendered a clarifying decision in which it is held that the amount of return on real estate investments is elastic and depends on conditions in the financial market. The new decision was rendered in an appeal from the verdict of a municipal court jury which fixed rentals in flats on Meserole st., owned by Mrs. Mary T. Kelly, of Great Neck, L. I. The jury, from all the facts submitted, named figures for various of the apartments which made possible a net return of a little more than 8 per cent., and she appealed on the theory that she was entitled absolutely to such rent as would bring her a full 10 per cent. net after the payment of all operating and maintenance expenses.

The new memorandum written by Justices Cropsey, Lazansky and Faber, follows:

"The verdict of the jury was warranted by the facts in the case. In this case, as in other cases and in other places, there has been an unfortunate misunderstanding as to what was decided by this court in Hirsh v. Weiner, June term, 1921. The Court did not decide that a 10 per cent. return upon the value of the property was a conclusive and invariable standard. On the contrary, the Court clearly held that it depended upon the conditions of the financial market. Attention should be directed to the following in the opinion:

"In the case at Bar the landlords stipulated that they would accept 7 per cent. on the fair value of the premises as the proper amount of net income. We think that this is not only fair, but that a larger rate of net income would be fair. The evidence shows that at the present time one can buy with reasonable safety first mortgage coupon bonds that are producing income at 8 to 8 1-2 per cent. The investor in real estate, if building of houses is to be encouraged, should at least get as much income from real property, with all its attendant trouble, as the investor in mortgages on realty and franchises."

"Then in laying down a way to determine various questions involved, it was said, among other things:

"5. If this net rental does not exceed 10 per cent. of the present value of the property, then the rent demanded is not unreasonable. The reasonableness of a rent charge may vary under changing financial conditions. Upon the proof to this record allowing the return upon other well recognized and generally accepted forms of investment we think that 10 per cent. as a net return to an owner of real property is not unreasonable. But such a percentage might be excessive if the evidence showed a different situation regarding other investments."

"We are unable to say in this case that a return of over 8 per cent. to the landlord as a result of the jury's verdict and upon the basis of a valuation of $80,000 upon which the landlord argued her case in this court is less than reasonable in the absence of any proof as to the return on good securities at the time of this trial."

There will probably be an appeal from this new decision.

Coal Consumers Organize to Secure Lower Fuel Costs

Will Petition Interstate Commerce Commission for Reduction in Freight Rates to New York and Ask Congress to Regulate Quality of Shipments

CONSUMERS of anthracite coal in the Metropolitan District have formed an organization which will attempt to secure a reduction in the cost and an improvement in the quality of the huge amount of fuel shipped into this territory annually. The plans of this organization, known as the Anthracite Coal Consumers' Association, Inc., have been approved by the Board of Governors of the Real Estate Board of New York, the Directors of the Fifth Avenue Association and the Executive Committee of the Building Managers' and Owners' Association of New York. Charles G. Edwards, President of the Real Estate Board; John H. Towne, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Fifth Avenue Association, and Lawrence B. Elliman, of Pease and Elliman, have accepted membership on the Advisory Committee and the organization has been completed by the election of Henry Mace Payne, a mining engineer, as President; Charles C. Heffley, real estate, as Vice-President, and Charles S. Allen, freight rate specialist, as Secretary-Treasurer and the appointment of George Gordon Battle, of O'Gorman, Battle & Vandiver, as General Counsel. An office has been secured at No. 90 West Street.

Efforts of the organization will be directed mainly to trying to secure through the Interstate Commerce Commission a reduction in the freight rate on coal from the mines to tidewater terminals, and to obtaining congressional action which will standardize the quality of coal shipped which now carries a large quantity of waste material. This program is expected eventually to reduce the present exorbitant freight rate from $2.61 to $1.31 per ton, a saving of $1.30 per ton to the consumer; and to improve the quality by elimination of refuse on which freight is now paid, saving 13 cents a ton in freight charges, and $1.20 a ton in value so that there will be a total saving to the consumer of $2.63 per ton.

Further activities of the organization will be in the direction of urging the passage by Congress of a bill to require the Interstate Commerce Commission to have put into effect lower freight rates on coal in the spring and summer months than in the fall and winter, and thereby lower the price of coal in the spring and summer and encourage storage by consumers who are equipped for same; encouraging consumers to economize in fuel costs by a proper and scientific mixture of bituminous (soft) and anthracite (hard) coals; and advising consumers to effect savings in fuel costs by following simple scientific methods in burning coal economically.

The Anthracite Coal Consumers' Association, Inc., has made the following statement with reference to the rate question:

Anthracite coal is found in a very small area in the northeastern portion of Pennsylvania, in and about the cities of Scranton and Wilkes-Barre.

From this region it is brought to tidewater, New York, by seven railroads, namely: Delaware, Lackawanna & Western, Lehigh Valley, Erie, Central of New Jersey, Philadelphia & Reading, Pennsylvania, and New York, Ontario & Western.

The expression "tidewater, New York" refers to the terminals of these various railroads on the Jersey side of the Hudson river, from South Amboy north to Weehawken. The freight rates apply to those terminals and, contrary to popular belief, do not include delivery to coal yards on Manhattan Island or other parts of the greater city.

The actual average distance from the anthracite producing sections to those terminals is 172 miles; but in the computation of rates, inasmuch as the two carriers which have the longest haul handle a very small proportion of the total tonnage, a fair and just computation must be based upon what is known as a weighted average, which is 155 miles.

Until a comparatively recent date the principal anthracite mining companies were owned or controlled by the railroads on which their mines were located and over which the coal was and is shipped to tidewater. These railroad-owned mining companies are referred to as "line companies," as distinguished from "independent companies."

The distinction between the "line companies" and the "independent companies" should be borne in mind, to have a proper appreciation of the significance of the findings of the Interstate Commerce Commission as to the relations between the anthracite-carrying railroads and the "line companies" and the bearing of that relationship upon the present day freight rate to tidewater.

At the date of the inception of the freight rates which forms the basis of the present rates to tide-water, the relationship between the anthracite-carrying railroads and the "line companies" was of the most intimate character.

Tidewater New York is now and has always been the largest market for anthracite coal, and the prices there prevailing govern the prices in other and less important markets.

By an order dated June 10, 1912, the Interstate Commerce Commission instituted an investigation, under its docket 4,914 entitled "In the Matter of Rates, Practices, Rules and Regulations Governing the Transportation of Anthracite Coal."

Under this order the Commission conducted an exhaustive investigation into the relationship between the anthracite-carrying railroads and the so-called "line companies," and, on July 30, 1915, through Commissioner McChord, then as now the Chairman of the Commission, rendered its decision, which may be found in volume 35, Interstate Commerce Commission reports, at pages 220 to 460.

Briefly, as a result of the investigation conducted by the Commission, it ordered a reduction of the then typical rate to tidewater of $1.65 per ton, on domestic sizes, to $1.45.

Inasmuch as the Commission found that at that time this operating cost of transporting this coal to tidewater was an average of only 3.3 mills per ton per mile, or, using the 155 mile weighted average, less than 52 cents per ton, those interested in the matter were greatly surprised that the reduction ordered by the Commission was so small; many feeling, in view of the vigorous language employed by the Commission in denouncing the practices of these carriers and their allied coal companies, that, instead of $1.45, a very liberal rate would have been $1.00 per ton, which would have shown a margin of almost 100 per cent. above the cost of transporting the coal.

However, the rate of $1.45 was put into effect in 1915 and has, by the operation of the various horizontal percentage increases authorized since that date, been advanced until today it reaches the exorbitant figure of $2.61.

This rate of $2.61 shows a ton mile return of 17 mills. It is the opinion of those who are qualified by training and experience to pass upon such matters, that this present rate is at the very minimum $1 per ton in excess of a properly compensatory return to the railroads, and, when anthracite coal is given a proper relationship to other commodities of the same character, transported under similar conditions, the rate is at least double what it should be. In other words, a rate of $1.30 per ton will return to the anthracite carrying railroads a revenue of 8.4 mills per ton per mile, which is far in excess of that accruing to the railroads of the country generally for transporting commodities of similar character and moving under like transportation conditions.

The foregoing has had to do simply with the question of the justness and reasonableness of the rate, in and of itself. In addition it is grossly discriminatory against the users of anthracite coal who pay prices of which the tidewater rate is a part or upon which their freight rate is based. On this point the Commission, in its decision, at page 227, said:

"Through rates to New England points are made via New York City, the Poughkeepsie bridge, and the Albany gateways, and are influenced to a large extent by the rates to tidewater for reshipment, plus the rates beyond the tidewater ports by rail or by water to points in New England."

Speaking of the tidewater rate and the conditions which surrounded its making, as well as the purchase by the "line companies" of the output of the "independent companies," paid for at a certain percentage of the prices prevailing at tidewater, the Commission, at page 232 of its opinion, said:

"The evidence in this case conclusively shows that the rates on this commodity were established at an excessive basis, and clearly it was so done for the purpose of eliminating the independent output as a factor of competition in the markets with the railroad interests' output."

And, at page 233, it says:

"The carriers for many years were allowed a free hand in the institution of freight rates. It is evident that they used that great power not with the view of establishing reasonable freight rates, but with the intent to establish rates on this commodity that were high enough to remove the production of the independent operators from the field of competition with the coal mined by the railroad interests."

The Association quotes other passages from the findings of the Interstate Commerce Commission in which the rates are declared to be excessive and in restraint of trade by small, independent shippers, and comparing the coal rates with those on other commodities. On this question the Commission declared that "freight rates on many commodities are but an infinitesimal part of the price which the consumer pays for such commodities. On coal the freight rate is a more important factor. Anthracite coal is very largely a fuel for domestic use, and it is a necessity. That reasonable freight rates should be charged for the distribution of the great fuel tonnage herein involved is of vital importance to the producers and of equal concern to the consumers."

In view of the foregoing expressions by the Commission as to the characteristics of and conditions surrounding the transporta-

Mr. Guerrlich Lectures on "The Brokers' Point of View"

Speaker at Y. M. C. A. Realty Course Points Out That Success Demands Memory, Tenacity, Vision, Integrity and High Ideals

THE "Brokers' Point of View" was the subject of the lecture in the Y. M. C. A. real estate course, delivered by Francis Guerrlich, Secretary of Horace S. Ely & Company, last Tuesday evening at the West Side Branch, West 57th Street. The speaker was introduced by Harry A. Kahler, President of the New York Title and Mortgage Company.

Mr. Guerrlich reminded his audience, which filled the auditorium, that the broker is a professional, rather than a business man, whose success is measured by the service he renders.

"The brokers task," he said, is to deal with problems—other people's problems. To their solution he must bring certain equipment which is necessary in any profession—brains, vision, initiative, energy, memory. All professions do not require personality, tact, persistence. The broker's does. Every profession or business requires technical knowledge and experience. Much of this technical information will come to you by giving attention to the collateral lectures in this course—much more in daily practice.

"I ask you to note carefully those three simple, commonplace words, vision, memory, persistence. Take them from the realm of mere words and apply them in your daily life."

The lecturer drew a picture of the growth of cities because some men's minds were able to project themselves into the future. Then he went on as follows:

"But let us keep our feet on the ground so that in our ecstasy we do not confuse creative imagination with vain imaginings. There is a vast difference between a 'man of vision' and a 'visionary man.' Dream your dream but wake up to the realities of life. Let your creative imagination run in practical lines. Do not be afraid of the bold, audacious vision—the big vision—but analyze it. Can it be financed? Will it pay its way? Can the land be assembled? Can possession be secured? Is this the time to do it? Are you the man to handle it, or should you get some help?"

So much for the big thought. All that has been said about it applies to the smaller problem, whether it be the renting of an apartment or an office or the sale of a house or a lot. Your imagination must run ahead of your act. You must visualize your buyer or tenant. You may not find exactly what you seek, but in following your definite objective you may open up new avenues of endeavor.

I have singled out the word memory because I have observed that the most successful brokers, and for that matter the most successful men in any walk of life, have had the faculty well developed. I think it is of the greatest value, and urge you to refer to your note book as little as possible. Keep notes and records by all means, but do not use them as a lame man does crutches.

You have your idea—you have your memory full of facts. They are, however, valueless unless you also have the will to achieve. Tenacity of purpose. Grip hard. Beaten; rise up again. Balked at one door enter another. Remember that that which reasonably should be can be. You have the will and pertinacity, brains and resourcefulness to do it. Therefore, do it. History is filled with success plucked from repeated failures because of persistence. Real Estate experience is not different.

M. Guerrlich said there are three stages to a real estate brokerage transaction—its beginning or initiation, the negotiations, the conclusion. He then said:

How then shall we commence? Shall we specialize or shall our work be general? As a rule it is better to start off with some definite plan, and let it be modified as you find desirable. Determine, therefore, whether you wish to be a renting man, a salesman or a mortgage broker. If renting appeals to you, decide what kind of property you think you can best handle—offices, lofts, factories, apartments, dwellings. If selling you may do well to commence with a certain territory or district or a certain type of property. Having a definite line of work in mind you can then set out to familiarize yourself with that field of activity. You will begin to prepare a renting or a sales list, and a list of probable customers.

Now you are at work in your profession. You are making calls and writing letters. You are reading the daily real estate news and watching the real estate trade papers, such as the Record and Guide, and the Real Estate Magazine.

Sketching the business of classifying customers, realty facts, leads and the other activities of the broker the lecturer declared that presently somebody was found to take an interest in the property the broker had in hand. Then came the negotiations for a sale or lease. The lecturer continued:

Real estate is a peculiar thing. It can almost be said that no two inches of it are alike. So it happens that it cannot be quoted by the bushel or barrel. It is affected, it is true, by the law of supply and demand, but individual pieces are governed by local conditions—by immediate neighborhood influences—by the owner's opinion, not necessarily of its real value, but of what he thinks is the value to a particular customer. And so it is that there arises a wide difference of opinion as to the value of a given piece of real estate—particularly so between interested parties. Value is lost sight of by the instinct to bargain. The buyer concludes that the seller must have the money and the seller thinks that his is just the land that the buyer must have—else why did he make an offer?

Aside from the fact that a broker is a clearing house of information—a trading post where buyer and seller may meet—he is, in our scheme of things, an economic necessity—in fact a psychological necessity. He has the perspective that his customers lack. And if his clients or customers are not too stubborn he can often save them from losing excellent opportunities. The large majority of transactions are made through the agency of a broker, because principals seldom get along well together. The broker is the bumper or air cushion which softens the first contact of the opposing parties. He gets the slant of mind—the habit of thought—the point of view of each. He interprets these divergent thoughts to the other as necessity demands.

The sale of a parcel of property or the leasing of space is a matter of selection. Avoid confusing your customer with too many offerings and be alert to reach a decision that this or that particular property is the one that will best suit his needs. Then concentrate your efforts on that one. You have played lawn tennis, no doubt, and know that when several balls are being sent over to you preparatory to serving, you lose both if you try to get both at once. By keeping your eye on one to the exclusion of the other you are quite sure to get that one. Keep your own direct customer's attention on the ball within reach.

Sometimes such deals are made by one broker acting alone, but generally there are several working in co-operation. This is very helpful, as a rule, provided your associate broker is a good one. Often one broker has the confidence of one of the other parties and the other of the other party. This makes a good combination. In planning a transaction, therefore, you will do well to consider carefully whether or not some special assistance may be desirable. For my own part I am much more interested in assuring the success of a negotiation than I am in getting all the commission. There will be no commission if I fail, so why not reduce the chances of failure as much as possible.

Some time ago it was suggested to me by a business friend who had an indirect interest in a certain large hotel that I try to sell it to a hotel man who was the logical buyer. I did not personally know the proposed buyer, nor did I know anything about the hotel business. I knew that there had been efforts made in the past to bring about this sale, and that both principals had pretty well concluded that it was useless. In a general way I had an idea of the kind of deal that eventually was consummated, and which has since proved very good for all concerned. To have stated it in those terms at the beginning of the negotiation would have meant a prompt declination from both sides, and would, moreover, have been unauthorized. I happened to know an attorney who had all that I lacked to make such a sale possible. He had not only his legal experience with hotel matters which proved so valuable to us but he knew the hotel business and could think the way a hotel man would be apt to think. Moreover, he knew well all the principals. So I went to him with my plan and invited him to join with me. Without his help no sale would have been made. We were a winning team, whereas alone I could not have gone far. The point I want to bring home by this illustration is that you should as far as possible plan an important negotiation, and in planning it get as much expert assistance as the particular circumstances would indicate.

The most simple sales, the speaker said, often have unimportant features which may jeopardize their success. Early in a negotiation every one is thinking of the most important thing—the price, and little is said about the various points which are brought out when the contract is drawn, such as apportioning city taxes, payment of mortgage, recording tax, personal property, such as coal or mantels or chandeliers. It would be wise to have these details settled at the earliest possible interview. Before the price and term are agreed upon these little matters are easily disposed of. Afterward they may become subjects of undue importance.

Mr. Guerrlich urged the importance of a knowledge of real estate law, and urged his listeners to read that portion of Blackstone which has to do with real estate and who advised a modern book such as that of Prof. Reeves'. Mr. Guerrlich concluded:

There is a school of thought which maintains that the test of a salesman is his ability to sell goods that are valueless or greatly overpriced. But it seems to me that there is a great difference between "putting over a deal" and "putting one over" on some one else. The one implies a transaction which is fair to all; the other a swindle. Every sale indicates either a difference of opinion or reflects some special need or desire. One may think the price is high and the other that it is low. Either may be right. The broker is, therefore, not the keeper of his customer's judgment. But somewhere, sometimes his conscience will step in and he will step out.

Something should be said about dependability. Every one likes to do business with a man upon whom they can depend. One whose statements are true—whose word is good—who keeps his appointments—who does not offer property which he cannot deliver. That I should refer to the latter may seem strange to you, as it would seem a commonplace mistake to waste time in that way. Yet that is exactly what many brokers are constantly doing to the disgust of their customers. They hear a rumor or have an idea that a certain piece of property can be purchased at a certain figure. Without checking it up they commence offering it around and soon acquire a bad reputation for lack of dependability.

"Bluffing" is not a part of the equipment of a broker, although the ability to size up and call a bluff is very desirable. It is defined in the dictionary as "the act of deceiving or influencing by a show of confident assurance." I would like to add "practiced by many but deceiving few." You will meet the bluffer very often and the more he talks, the more he tries to impress you with his strength or his purpose, or the more he tries to deceive you the quicker will you perceive the weakness of his position.

There will come a time in many a negotiation where its success will depend upon your ability to sense the wisdom of stopping still. You will need courage and patience. To push on would simply create a wrong climax. The rest cure is what it needs. Heads hot with activity of thought about the transaction must be permitted to cool off a little so that they may better see a perspective. Likewise learn to know when to stop talking. You talk for the purpose of inducing someone to sign

Real Estate Board Holds 26th Annual Banquet

Governor Miller Chief Guest of Honor at Affair Which Was Attended by 1,500 Leaders in Realty Activities of the Metropolis

THE Real Estate Board of New York held its twenty-sixth annual banquet in the grand ball room of the Hotel Commodore last Saturday evening, having as its principal guest of honor, Governor Miller of New York. His speech on matters of great moment to real estate interests of this city, was virile. While many of the realtors did not agree with some parts of the Governor's address they nevertheless admired his candor and its unequivocal tone. When he had finished every hearer knew exactly what the Governor thinks on the matters he discussed. Governor Edwards, of New Jersey also had been expected, but a telegram was received announcing his inability to attend on account of an attack of influenza. More than 1,500 real estate and tile insurance men comprised the audience. Judge Frederick E. Crane, of the New York Court of Appeals, delivered a scholarly address, and Martin W. Littleton aroused enthusiasm by his eloquence and wit. A speaker not on the programme, but who was listened to closely, was Frank A. Stevens, head of the New Jersey Real Estate License Bureau. Edward J. Cattell, City Statistician of Philadelphia, provoked much mirth with his after-dinner talk.

Charles G. Edwards, President of the Board, acted as toastmaster. He prefaced his introduction of the Governor with a brief address wherein, much to the surprise of many present, he expressed the hope that the Real Estate Board of New York would some day have a home of its own in preference to leased quarters, such as it has had and has now. He said that this is an era of home ownership for the organization as well as for the individual.

President Edwards expressed great satisfaction over the large attendance of members at the first monthly meeting of the Board, held at Delmonico's in January. He urged a still larger attendance at the next monthly dinner in March. Declaring that the Board can be only as big as the members by their activity and enthusiasm make it. Mr. Edwards urged co-operation on the part of all. He hoped to see twice as many members at the next monthly meeting as there were at the first one.

The front cover of the menu booklet was appropriately illustrated with a picture of the large new building to be erected on the site of the former Grand Union Hotel, on Pershing Square, and to be known as the Pershing Square Building. The banquet committee comprised Elisha Sniffin, Chairman; William L. De Bost, Chairman of the Committee on Guests; Laurence McGuire, Chairman of the Committee on Speakers; and J. Irving Walsh, Chairman of the Committee on Seating. It was a matter of comment that each of these Chairmen did his work well.

Aside from the speakers of the evening, the other guests of the Board on the dais were: James B. Fisher, President of the Brooklyn Real Estate Board; Darwin P. Kingsley, President of the New York Life Insurance Company; Louis V. Bright, President of the Lawyers Title & Trust Company; Maj. Coogan, Military Secretary to the Governor; E. H. Outerbridge, Chairman of the Commission of Port Authority; William Crittendon Adams, President of the United States Savings Bank; William B. Cardoza, Vice-President of the Farmers Loan & Trust Company; Haley Fiske, Frederick H. Ecker and Walter Stabler, President, Vice-President and Comptroller respectively of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company; H. A. Kahler, President of both the New York Title & Mortgage Company and the American Trust Company; Henry A. Schenck, President of the Bowery Savings Bank; Morgan J. O'Brien, George R. Read, Alfred T. Marling, Philip Rhineland, Adolph Lewisohn, Robert E. Dowling, Frederick Brown, George L. Ingraham, H. Harwood Garfield, H. R. Ennis, George Cromwell, R. T. Childs, Stephen H. Angell, John P. Leo, Assistant Corporation Counsel Charles D. Olendorf, Charles Rohe, W. H. Schoendorf, E. Everett Thorpe, John G. Williams and Horace S. Wilkinson. Music by Pinto's Orchestra, assisted by the International Quartette, enlivened the evening.

Governor Miller was scheduled to speak on about port matters, but he alluded to that subject only briefly. He stressed the question of state government and home rule, and spoke emphatically about the administration of the public schools which he declared should be kept entirely outside the realm of politics. The Governor remarked at the outset that the real estate business was as closely related to the pending problems of the day as any business he could think of and that it came as closely to the masses as any business he could think of. He said that the great social revolutions of the past had revolved around property and property rights, adding that real estate values in this city had fluctuated largely because the city had been built up without its citizens looking far enough into the future. Transportation had been created in makeshift fashion, he declared, and that had created great congestion. He told his hearers that they were the kind of men who could properly appreciate the situation and insist on making ample provision for the future.

Taking up the housing situation, the Governor said:

"You have another problem here which I imagine you are keenly interested in, and that is the housing problem. I am not going to undertake to solve that problem; that is too difficult also for an after-dinner speech. Efforts have been made to alleviate conditions and necessarily those efforts have been of a temporizing and temporary character. You still have the problem with you and many other citizens throughout the country have that problem, though probably not so acutely.

"You had two things to accomplish. The solution of the problem required more houses, but there was also a temporary emergency which afforded opportunity to some men engaged in the real estate business to take advantage of others; and as always happens in such a time, a great mass of fair-dealing and just-dealing men engaged in the business had to suffer because of the misconduct of a few.

"Now, that emergency created a demand for temporary relief of those who were unable to defend themselves and resulted in measures which, under ordinary conditions and in ordinary times, would have been unwise. Those measures, designed for temporary relief, no doubt had the effect, to some extent, of retarding the very thing that was necessary for the permanent solution of the problem, namely, the building of more homes. None the less, the emergency was here, and that emergency, as you know, resulted in the passage of the so-called rent laws, which were sustained by our Court of Appeals under a doctrine of the police power which, if it were somewhat new, at least, demonstrated that our institutions were suited to meet new conditions and to deal with unexpected emergency. Now we still have those laws, and I am going to tell you frankly that you will probably have them for another year.

"And the point which I wish to make is that the influence of such an organization as this should be exerted in a constructive way to deal with these problems and to make the most of situations which perhaps you may not like. We find that as new conditions arise we sometimes have to accept the best that we can get; and, instead of opposing the inevitable, the wise thing to do is to accept the situation, to make the best of it, and to contribute in a constructive way to work out the situation, so as to make it unnecessary to continue upon the statute books laws which, except for this emergency, undoubtedly would be an invasion of personal and property rights.

"I understand that the difficulty in lack of housing of the better class is being relieved, but that the situation with respect to the cheaper tenements is more acute today than ever. Frankly, I do not know precisely how that problem can be solved, but you gentlemen can do more to assist in the solution of it than any other similar body of men in our community."

In the course of his success Judge Crane urged his hearers not to overlook the fact that good government is realty's greatest asset. He declared:

"In determining the value of real estate you consider many things—location, accessibility, possibilities. But one thing you invariably leave out, and that is the most important of all—I speak of the security of ownership and possession afforded by good government, regulated and controlled by wise laws.

"There have been times in this country when a consideration of this thing very much affected values. How quickly prices would tumble if anarchy, rebellion, uncertainty and doubt should creep into the administration of government? Suppose the provision that property cannot be taken for public purpose without just compensation should be removed from our Constitution? Or that by the desire of the majority sufficient to modify our forms of government, taxation should become a means of destruction and spoliation in an endeavor to socialize society? What about your values?

"You say that our Government, our laws and our courts guard against these things, but what is the Government? Too often we think it is something given to us by demigods, called forefathers, and that it will run itself. We think of government as being officialdom, and that as long as we have Presidents, Governors and Judges we are safe. The real and basic fact is that our Government—and in this day we can truly say all Governments—is dependent upon the right thinking of the people. An idea, once seizing, possessing, moving a people, can overturn almost anything. No one can read the history of this country and of England without realizing that peaceful revolutions are continually taking place. Our Government and laws, therefore, depend not upon officeholders but upon the intelligence, understanding and the restraint of our citizens.

"The nuisance clause against obnoxious things which affect real estate values applies to Government. Ignorance, prejudice, class selfishness and educated indifference are things to be guarded against and fought and expelled from our midst. Danger never lies in our differences. Danger lies in our indifferences—a disease more prevalent among the educated class than among the uneducated."

Extension for Lockwood Committee Strongly Opposed

Legislature May Grant It New Lease of Life, But Is Considering Other Plans If Leaders Decide to Continue Housing Activities

Albany, Feb. 9.

THE plan to continue the Lockwood Committee for another year has strong opposition in the Legislature, but indications now are that the committee's life will be extended for another year, that it will be re-created as a commission under a special bill, or that some body to supervise the activities of building and trades organizations will be formed.

Legislative leaders want to be sure of their facts before they act, however, and have called upon Senator Lockwood, Chairman of the Housing Committee, for a statement of expenditures of his committee since its creation several years ago. It will show about $154,000 spent and will point to fines of about $500,000 collected, besides claiming a saving of many millions of dollars on New York school contracts.

A series of more than a score of bills has been drafted to carry out proposed recommendations to be included in the committee report which Samuel Untermyer, Chief Counsel, is expected to bring to Albany next week.

Chief among the proposed laws will be one bringing fire and casualty insurance companies under closer state supervision, and empowering life insurance companies to devote 10 per cent. of their funds to investments in real estate mortgages. The committee is prepared to quote figures to prove that for a period of years investments in real estate mortgages have been the best of any made by insurance companies. It also will be shown that heavy losses have been sustained through other investments, which will be characterized as highly speculative.

One proposal before the Lockwood Committee is that State Trade Commission be created, with power to handle all questions in regard to labor organizations, trade organizations, and possible disputes between them.

No recommendation will be made for incorporation of labor unions, the committee having decided that if this is done another law should be passed at the same time providing for incorporation of employers and trade organizations.

When the Lockwood Committee report is submitted it is expected that the bills putting its recommendations into effect will be introduced. The committees of the Senate and Assembly will set aside a full day, or perhaps two days, for a hearing, giving everyone a chance to discuss the proposed measures. Many believe that some of the Lockwood Committee recommendations will go over to next year for consideration, along with the bulk of the Davenport Tax Committee recommendations.

Coal Consumers Organize to Secure Lower Fuel Costs

tion of anthracite coal, the Coal Consumers' Association says it is interesting to note a comparison of the rates charged for transporting that commodity to New York with certain figures recently issued by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

On 167 Class One railroads, embracing upwards of 233,000 miles of line, in the first seven months of 1921, the average return for hauling all classes of traffic, from the highest to the lowest, with an average haul of 187 miles, the charge for transporting one ton one mile was 12.75 mills, compared to 17 mills charged for transporting one ton of anthracite coal one mile, based on the rate to New York.

Analyzing the situation the Association says: "The rate nearest in amount to that applying on anthracite coal from the mines to New York is from the Virginia fields to Hampton Roads, $2.80, compared to $2.61; but note that for $2.80 the haul from the Virginia fields to Hampton Roads is 403 miles, whereas for $2.61 the haul from the mines to New York tidewater is only 155 miles.

"If New York had as fair a rate from the mines as that from the Virginia fields to Hampton Roads, it would be $1.31 per ton instead of $2.61.

"It will be remembered that this tidewater rate largely influences the rates applying to the territory in eastern Pennsylvania and New York and the entire territory of New Jersey and the New England states, to which there move annually approximately 40,000,000 gross tons of anthracite coal, and, in this respect alone, each year lays a burden upon the consumers thereof ranging from fifty to fifty-five million dollars ($50,000,000 to $55,000,000).

The Association has prepared a chart giving the rates on anthracite coal from the mines to New York and to four Western cities. The discrimination against New York is shown in the following table:

Anthracite from mines to:	Average distance	Rate per gross ton from mines to destination	Rate for hauling one car of 47 gross tons one mile
New York (tidewater).....	155	$2.61	$0.80
Buffalo	340	3.64	.50

his name. When he is convinced, for goodness sake don't talk him out of it again, or put some new idea into his mind. Then, too, often silence is golden. If the others are using the right kind of language and things are going as they should, why say anything?

"The object of all your efforts," said Mr. Guerrlich, "is to get a contract signed, and having in mind the fact that people change their minds the quicker it is signed the better. The ability to draw a good contract is a valuable asset as it may make it possible to get your parties signed up at once. However, in the great number of cases the contracts are drawn up by lawyers. And this is as it should be even though a broker's real troubles often begin when the lawyer is called in.

"When difficulties arise at this stage the situation is a very delicate one, and calls for a great deal of tact, patience and resourcefulness. Sometimes some of the parties are beginning to become tired out with the negotiation, and care must be taken that new developments are so presented that they will not become a source of irritation. Frequently the attorney calls attention to matters which are more or less important, and the broker should have the ability to clearly state the business risk involved as against the possibility of the legal contingency which the careful mind of the lawyer has suggested.

"With a moderately good legal education you are frequently able to suggest some practical solution of a difficulty which the attorneys have pointed out.

"I have tried to indicate in the larger view point the position of the broker in the community, as well as to discuss some of the details of his work. My purpose has been to show that a wise broker is the one who can see beyond the immediate transaction on which he is working and realize the asset value of a good name. Let us then keep before us a high ideal, even if we may not attain to perfection, we may move from one success to another.

Review of Real Estate Market for the Current Week

Leases Disputed Sway of Market with Sales of Multi-Family Houses, While Business Buildings and Dwellings Sold Well

LEADING all transactions of the last seven days was that of the leasing of the improved site, 66.8x100, at the southeast corner of Madison avenue and Forty-third street, for an aggregate term of 63 years and for a total gross rental of $7,000,000. In the light of the steady evolution of property values in the Grand Central zone this rental is causing property owners there to sit up and take notice. A 14-story mercantile building will supplant the three smaller buildings now on the plot. The real estate movement which started there a few years ago has gained steadily in size and before the year has ended it would not be surprising if other transactions as large as the corner deal mentioned above were effected. A lease as large as the one in discussion cannot long remain an isolated instance in such a growing district as the Grand Central.

An interesting contrast is the lease, made a few days before, of the Bristol building and adjacent smaller structures at the northwest corner of Fifth avenue and Forty-second street. Covering a site fronting 101.4 feet on the avenue and 208.4 feet on the street, the parcels were leased by the estate of Louisa M. Gerry to Walter J. Salmon for a second term of 20 years, at a new rental of $450,000 a year, or ten times as much as the site brought 20 years ago. The group of buildings are not modern. The aggregate amount of this lease is $9,000,000, but the site is much larger than the Madison avenue corner mentioned, while the term is more than two-thirds shorter and net. This demonstrates the enormous rental power of Fifth avenue property in this era of its increased trade prestige in retail and wholesale business.

The strong feature of the sales market this week was the large number of multi-family houses of all kinds and descriptions that changed hands. From East Fourth street to the Harlem Ship Canal and beyond into the Bronx dealing in this kind of property was steady. Just now it would seem as if anybody could sell a multi-family house at a good price. The multi-family house boom of a decade or more ago was primarily in new buildings. Now any kind of such building is marketable.

Dwellings of the better class were in good demand, as was evidenced by the sale of some on Riverside Drive and in streets contiguous thereto. Medium-sized business buildings are still attracting investors who are buying them for occupancy, they being principally business firms who wish to feel secure in their location. In this era of big demand for business space firms find it worth while to buy instead of rent space on a graduated upward rental scale. Numerous tenants of dwellings are buying them also. Vacant plots, as sites for garages, are still in good demand. The ever-increasing use of auto trucks and of private cars makes garage building a logical sequence.

Numerous important leases of more than ordinary size were closed during the week, while there was an abundance of leases of medium sizes. Brooklyn and Queens also witnessed the closing of some large leases of business spaces.

PRIVATE REALTY SALES.

THE total number of sales reported, but not recorded, in Manhattan this week was 64, as against 65 last week and 92 a year ago.

The number of sales south of 59th st was 17, as compared with 21 last week and 47 a year ago.

The number of sales north of 59th st was 47, as compared with 44 last week and 45 a year ago.

From the Bronx 29 sales at private contract were reported, as against 29 last week and 15 a year ago.

Statistical tables, including the number of recorded instruments, will be found on page 180.

Bronx Board of Trade Election

The annual meeting of the board of directors of the Bronx Board of Trade was held at the board rooms on Wednesday evening, February 1. There was a full attendance.

The following members of the board of directors were nominated as vice-presidents and heads of bureaus for the current year: Martin Walter, second vice-president and chairman of the Civic Bureau; Charles Schneider, third vice-president and chairman of the Industrial Bureau; Maurice Muller, fourth vice-president and chairman of the Publicity Bureau; Alexander Haring, fifth vice-president and chairman of the Traffic and Waterways Bureau; Adolph G. Hupfel, Jr., sixth vice-president and chairman of the Trade and Commerce Bureau.

Frederick A. Wurzbach, who was elected to the first vice-presidency at the annual meeting of the board on January 25, will be chairman of the Manufacturers' Bureau. J. Wynne Jones was selected as chairman of the membership committee and chairman of the Noon-Day Luncheon Committee; and Herbert A. Knox was selected as chairman of the Law Committee. The board of directors also re-elected Charles E. Reid as executive secretary and Theodore S. Trimmer as treasurer, the office of treasurer carrying with it the chairmanship of the Finance Committee. The new telephone number of the Bronx Board of Trade is Mott Haven 4646.

Club House and Hotel for Long Beach

Sixteen lots on the Boardwalk at Long Beach, at the corner of Lafayette Boulevard, have been sold to the Alexandria Hotel Construction Co. The property consists of about 50,000 square feet and runs from the Boardwalk through to Broadway.

Upon this property the Alexandria Hotel company will build a large, modern hotel to cost approximately $1,000,000. Severance & Van Alen, architects, are now working on the plans, and the company hopes to break ground this Spring.

The present plans call for 500 guest rooms. In addition to these the top floors of the building will be fitted up as club rooms of the Alexandria Club.

The hotel will be built on the co-operative plan, and the company will offer Long Beach property owners the first opportunity to secure charter membership shares. Membership in the club will include the privileges of the Lido Golf Club, which adjoins Long Beach proper. In addition there will be facilities for tennis, pool bathing, boating, etc.

The officers and directors include H. Craig Severance of the firm of Severance & Van Alen, architects; William T. Mullally of the William T. Mullally, Inc., Advertising Agency; Martin J. Peters of the Permanent Mortgage Corporation, and Frank J. Wiggins, who is at present associated in the management of the Hotel Vanderbilt, and who will manage the Alexandria when completed.

Cooley Property in Richmond Sold

The Hollis Cooley property, at Great Kills, was sold last week under the direction of the Surrogate's Court, and public administrator, William T. Holt. This sale was held to satisfy the creditors of the late Hollis E. Cooley, noted theatrical director and manager. There were seven parcels in all, three houses and several large plots of land. The first two parcels were sold to Mrs. Frederick Simmons, of Great Kills, and William Doerzbach, of 110 First av, Manhattan, respectively.

The price paid for the two parcels covered the amount of indebtedness against the estate. Administrator Holt ordered a discontinuance of the sale until further notice.

Merchants Buy Water Street Corner

Manus, Muller & Co., Hugo Muller, president, bought through Tankoos, Smith & Co., from Percival R. Lowe, 152 Water st, southwest corner of Maiden la, a 6-story brick loft building, on a lot 21.8x62.1. The new owners will remodel the structure.

Two Brooklyn Firms Merge

A notable merger of real estate brokerage interests in Brooklyn took place last week when the Burling Realty Co. and Frank M. McCurdy organized as one firm and amalgamated with them the business conducted by Robert A. Wright and that of Burling & Swan. Mr. Wright is now in the fire insurance business in Manhattan.

William Raymond Burling, who heads the new firm, known as Burling & McCurdy, Inc., was formerly president of the Brooklyn Real Estate Board. The Burling Realty Co. had been in business since 1911. Mr. Burling is an active member of both the Brooklyn Real Estate Board and the New York Real Estate Board.

Frank M. McCurdy, the treasurer of the new firm, has been actively engaged in the real estate business since 1903, specializing in Flatbush and other suburban sections. Mr. McCurdy is an active member of the Brooklyn Real Estate Board and chairman of one of its important committees.

Both men have been identified with some of the large real estate sales in Brooklyn in recent years.

Supt. Miller in Consultation

Rudolph P. Miller, until recently Superintendent of Buildings of Manhattan, has been called to Washington, D. C., to investigate the collapse of the Knickerbocker Theatre for the Associated General Contractors of America. Mr. Miller is a consulting engineer.

New Golf Club in Westchester

The Briarcliff Country Club, a new aggregation of prominent golf fans, purchased from the Briarcliff Realty Co. 150 acres of land on a commanding site at Briarcliff Manor, Westchester County. On this tract, possessing all the topographical features over which the golf enthusiast is wont to rave, an 18-hole course will be laid out under the supervision of Devereaux Emmet, golf course architect. The construction of the course is already well under way.

If the present plans of the organization are carried to fulfillment the clubhouse will be one of the most substantial and attractive buildings of its kind in the East. The locker rooms and shower baths will be placed in a wing on the first floor. The grill room, lounge and sun parlors will command a fine view of the Hudson River, Tappan Zee, and the surrounding country. The membership of the club, it is expected, will be limited to 300 in the active classification. George Howe was the broker.

Big Apartment House Trade

Charles S. Kohler, Inc., represented by Harold M. Silverman, secretary, sold for the Service Realty Co. (Ennis & Sinnott, Inc.) the Allerton, a 12-story fireproof apartment house, on a plot 100x100, at the southwest corner of 113th st and Broadway, renting for $125,000 per annum and held at $850,000. The buyer is Charles H. J. Big Deal in East Harlem

Charles F. Noyes Co. sold to Harris and Maurice Mandelbaum and Fisher and Irving I. Lewine, 1915-1923 Third av. and 202-204 East 106th st, southeast corner, a plot 100x110, improved with seven distinct buildings. The property was sold for the Jeremiah Pangburn estate, which was represented by James T. Pangburn. The Pangburns have owned the property for more than 50 years. The new owners will improve the property with a modern taxpayer, so as to get the benefit of the exceptional location for retail merchandising. Located at an elevated station point, the traffic on this side of Third av is exceptionally heavy. Stoddard & Mark represented the sellers and Eisman, Lee, Corn & Lewine were the attorneys for the purchasers. The amount involved in the cost of the property and the improvement is approximately $250,000. The northwest corner of 106th st and Third av has been purchased lately by Kaufman, the Hatter, and the southwest corner by the Adler Shoe Co.; and the purchasers of the property in question sold the northeast corner about 12 years ago.

A. H. Levy and Henry I. Cooper of M. The Sixth avenue buildings, landmarks of Greenwich Village, have a frontage of 70 feet on the avenue, 115 feet on 10th st and 15 feet on Patchin pl. All of the store leases expire next May. The property was acquired by Mr. Winter a couple of weeks ago from the estate of George Chesterman, whose family had owned it more than 40 years.

Another deal by Mr. Rutheiser involves the resale of the 5-sty apartment house with store at the southwest corner of St. Nicholas av and 148th st, on a lot 24.1x100, built on land formerly belonging to Frank Leslie. Better Light, Better Business

Much of the success of our most prosperous merchants is attributable to better lighting. The store that displays its goods under good light establishes confidence in the quality of its wares. Customers are able to see, without eye strain or effort, what they are purchasing.

Better Light in the store is a prerequisite of Better Business. It benefits the merchant as much as it does the customer. Merchandise, irrespective of merit, cannot be shown to advantage unless lighting is correctly distributed and properly diffused.

The psychological influence of good lighting is marked. Employee alertness is maintained. Cheerfulness, affecting both the customer and the sales force, is encouraged. Purchasing desire and sales instincts are heightened. The very atmosphere is permeated with inviting hospitality.

Avoid glare as you would darkness. It is irritating, tiring and blinding to the sensitiveness of the eye. Distribute and diffuse your light correctly with scientifically constructed fixtures. The results will be more profitable to you in sales value, display of merchandise, employee efficiency, general appearance and perhaps even in the consumption of electric current.

Our representatives or those of any lighting fixture or electrical dealer's store will be glad to render advice and assistance in any store lighting problem you may wish to solve.

RECENT LEASES.

Notable Uptown Leasehold

The Prudence-Bonds Corporation, having outgrown its present quarters at 31 Nassau st, has, through Brown, Wheelock & Co., closed a long term lease of the Charles & Co. property, southeast corner Madison av and 43d st, where it will construct a suitable building to house its expanding business. William H. Beam, attorney, represented the Charles interests, and Stoddard & Mark acted for the Prudence Bonds Corporation.

The plot, now occupied by a group of three buildings, has a frontage on Madison av of 66.8 feet and of 100 feet on 43d st, the rest of the Madison av block to 42d st being occupied by the Winchester-Liggett Building. The lease involves a gross rental of $7,000,000 for a period of 63 years, in three terms of 21 years each. The location selected for the future expansion of the Prudence-Bonds Corporation is in the heart of the new uptown financial district.

According to plans prepared by Severance & Van Alen, architects, the Prudence building will be 14 stories and of Roman classic design, constructed of steel with granite base and marble facade finished with bronze on the street level and banking floor 11 feet above. In architectural design and arrangement these floors will be a near replica of the Bankers Trust Company Building, corner of Fifth av and 42d st. Shops with show windows of bronze and marble will front on the street level, two of these on Madison av and five on 43d st.

Entrance to the main building will be on Madison av through antique bronze doors opening into a spacious marble corridor 16 feet wide serving the elevators, and from which a grand stairway 10 feet wide of Italian Travertine marble will lead to the banking floor. This floor will be constructed of marble, with a 20-foot ceiling of Roman classic design, incorporating an indirect lighting system. An artistic screen of marble and statuary bronze will inclose the banking space.

According to the construction plans, the new building will incorporate the frame of the Charles & Co. 12-story building on the corner, involving a change of facade from brick to marble, a lifting of the cornice and a general rearrangement of architectural features. The building will be completed and ready for occupancy on or before October, 1923.

Charles & Co. will at once erect a 7-story building, designed for their exclusive use, at 43-50 East 43d st, a part of their present location. This is the site of the original Charles store of 51 years ago on this block. For many years they were the tenants of Joseph Milbank in a large store running through to 42d st, which was between the plots owned by Charles & Co. When the Milbank property was improved with the new Winchester-Liggett building the Charles properties became separated, so that it was necessary for them to operate two distinct stores on the same block. This also made it necessary for them to secure another property in order to handle their business. With this end in view they bought 106-108 East 41st st, which is used for a warehouse, assemblage of orders, and delivery.

The new building will eliminate a great deal of congestion and expensive duplication, and will provide more adequate facilities for customers, as all details of construction will be worked out with this end in view. It will also connect with a Charles & Co. store on Vanderbilt av, directly across from the Grand Central Terminal.

The business was established in 1848 in Delancy st, when that was a fine residential neighborhood. In 1860, it was moved to 28th st and Fourth av, which was then at its height as a residential section, and in 1871 it moved to 43-50 East 43d st, and later expanded to include the corner of Madison av and 43d st, where it has grown to its present importance, this location having been unusually well suited for the development of out of town as well as city business.

Scheier Leases Seventh Ave. Corner

John H. Scheier, architect and real estate investor, has leased from the owner, for a long term of years, the new 4-story building at the southwest corner of Seventh av and 49th st. in the heart of the motion picture, office building and amusement district. The aggregate rental to be paid during the term of the lease, 21 years with renewals, is approximately $600,000.

The building contains a large store and basement, with an entrance into the B. R. T. Broadway subway station at 49th st. The upper floors are laid out as lofts. Mr. Scheier will immediately alter the building to contain a number of ground floor and basement stores, while the upper floors will be remodeled into offices and a large roof sign erected. Frederick Fox & Co. were the brokers.

A Lease That Smacks of the Sea

William A. White & Sons leased for Amos D. Carver to the Independent Wireless Telegraph Co., for a term of years, the 4th and 6th floors and Pent House at 35 Water st. This is the first lease made on this building, which was recently completed. The Independent Wireless Telegraph Co. is one of the prominent radio companies and is represented by branches in all parts of the world. In moving to Water st, the company is consolidating its various branches now at 42 Broadway, 18 Murray st, 6 West 48th st and Port Chester, N. Y., and is locating in the shipping district where it will be in closer touch with all the docks and steamship offices.

The premises just leased will be used for executive offices and the installation of powerful sending and receiving apparatus, both for wireless telegraph and wireless telephone; for the accommodation of ship owners there will be carried on the premises radio parts and supplies. On the roof of the building is being installed a complete wireless station (telephone Broad 6500) for communication with vessels at sea. The station will be open continuously.

It is interesting to note that only 90 years ago the first system of communication with ships at sea was operated in connection with Holt's Hotel at the southwest corner of Fulton and Water sts. The proprietor of that hostelry arranged to receive news of incoming vessels by means of flag signals sent in relays from Sandy Hook to Staten Island and thence to Governor's Island, from which point the news was wigwagged to the cupola of Holt's Hotel, which was the gathering place for men of the navy and shipping merchants.

Long Lease to Restaurateur

As a result of the relocation of the millinery trade uptown, Arnold Schliefer leased, for 12 years, the store and basement, 34x100, at 43-50 West 36th st and will open it as a restaurant on the plan of his establishment at 603 Broadway. Mr. Schliefer formerly operated the restaurant of the Aberdeen. The new lease was made by Cross & Brown Co. and is for a gross rental of more than $125,000.

Long Lease Near Fifth Avenue

Clyde Martin and Sterling Martin leased to Joseph E. Marx for a term of 31 years at an aggregate rental of about $300,000 the 5-story dwelling 42 West 50th st, on lot 20x100. It will be altered for business.

Leases in Hanover Square Section

Charles F. Noyes Co. leased for W. R. Grace & Co. the entire 3d floor in the Grace Building, 3-13 Hanover sq, to Sorenson & Neilson, now located at Maiden la and South st, for a long term of years, at a rental of about $18,000 per annum. It is the most important lease negotiated for some time in the Hanover sq district. The Noyes Co. also rented the easterly portion of the 6th floor in the Terminal Warehouse Building, 25 South William st, to J. W. Jay & Co. at an aggregate rental of about $25,000.

New Downtown Post Office Space

William A. White & Sons leased for the National Surety Co. to the Federal Government the entire ground floor and part of the 2d floor of the building in course of construction, by the lessor, on the Washington st block front from Albany to Carlisle st. The space will be used as a sub-distributing station. It is understood that the object is to promote better service in the westerly financial district, and to relieve the congested conditions existing in the Wall st sub-station at Pine and Pearl sts and Station P, in the Custom House.

China Firms Go Northward

Maddock & Miller and Herman C. Krupper, two of the largest importers of china, for many years located on Murray st, leased, for a long term of years, with a renewal privilege, the 6-story building, 39-41 West 23d st, extending through to 20 West 24th st, from Sheppard Knapp's Sons Co., Inc., who were compelled by the moving of the furniture district to locate uptown. The new tenants will occupy a large portion of the building and will sublease the balance for showroom space to representative dealers in china and glassware, after extensive alterations are made. The lease was negotiated by Cross & Brown Co., who have been appointed agents of the building.

Express Company Leases Space

The American Express Co. leased the entire 12th floor, comprising approximately 12,000 square feet, in 65 Broadway to the Asiatic Petroleum Company of New York, Ltd., for a long term of years at a gross rental of about $600,000. Charles R. Hinerman was the broker.

Death of Andrew Cone

Andrew Cone, founder of the advertising agency that bears his name, died early last Monday of influenza. Illness, which began a week ago, developed into pneumonia. Mr. Cone's death occurred at his home, in East Front st, Red Bank, N. J., where he had lived for many years. He was in his 60th year and unmarried.

A son of the late Edward Payson Cone and Anna M. Cone, of Brooklyn, where the elder Cone was associated closely with Henry Ward Beecher, Andrew Cone was born in Nashville, Tenn., in 1862. Early in life he entered the advertising field in New York City, and more than 35 years ago established his own firm in the Tribune building, where it has been ever since.

Mr. Cone was prominently identified with patriotic societies, which told of his Revolutionary stock. He was a member of the Sons of the American Revolution and the Society of Founders and Patriots. He was a member also of the New York Club, the Rumson Club of New Jersey and of many of the more prominent clubs of the Shrewsbury section. He is survived by two brothers, Edward S. Cone, of Cone, Hunton & Woodman, and Frederick H. Cone, treasurer of the Andrew Cone General Advertising Agency. Funeral services were held at his late residence on Wednesday afternoon.

Commissioner Murphy Dead

Arthur H. Murphy, of the Bronx, a real estate operator and broker and a Commissioner of the Department of Taxes and Assessments under Mayor Hylan, died Monday morning in St. Vincent's Hospital, following an operation for gallstones. He had been a Tax Commissioner since January 1, 1918, and he was 53 years old. He was considered an authority on Bronx property values.

Residing in the northerly borough for 30 years, Mr. Murphy became a power in Democratic politics there. He was a strong Tammany man. He was the first Democratic county chairman of his party in the Bronx upon its becoming a separate county and he held the position until his death. He was a member of the Board of Aldermen in 1903 and in 1909. He was defeated by Cyrus C. Miller for the borough presidency of the Bronx. He was distinguished as a political conciliator.

Commissioner Murphy is survived by his widow, three sons and four sisters. His funeral took place Thursday morning, in St. Joseph's Catholic Church, Bathgate and Tremont avenues, and the interment was in St. Raymond's Cemetery, Bronx.

BUILDING SECTION

Deny Lockwood Claim of 80,000 Housing Shortage

Practical Building Experts Also Question Whether "Untermeyer Plan" Apartments Can Be Constructed to Rent at $9 Per Room

DESPITE repeated claims of the Lockwood Committee and other official and semi-official bodies that New York City is still short approximately 80,000 homes for about 400,000 persons, a wide difference of opinion on this subject prevails among practical building interests.

Speculative builders, who have been tremendously active during the past year on the construction of multi-family dwellings as well as rows of one- and two-story houses, are certain that the crisis is over, and that the supply and demand for living accommodations is rapidly being adjusted. One thing is certain and that is these builders have hundreds of completed buildings on their hands, erected during the past year under the Tax exemption ordinance and with material costs substantially lowered, and yet they are unable to sell or rent. Numerous vacancies exist in newly completed structures and rents in some districts are notably lower than they were one year ago and even considerably less than were being asked about October 1, 1921.

The claim of the Lockwood Committee that modern apartments can be erected that will rent for $9 per room is not even seriously considered by builders of standing who have given thought to this subject. They all state that in order to erect such buildings it will be necessary to cut costs at least twenty-five per cent. under existing levels and that this is manifestly impossible.

Samuel B. Donnelly, secretary of the Building Trades Employers Association, declared that statements that the city is short "80,000 homes for 400,000 residents" and that "The Housing Shortage Menaces Life," are absurd and known to be so by every well informed resident of the city.

"Statistics compiled from the records of the building bureaus and from researches made by competent investigators conclusively prove that the assertions of the Lockwood Committee are not based upon facts," said Mr. Donnelly.

"The wage rates of all mechanics and workmen are still from fifty to one hundred per cent. above the pre-war rates, and the number of the unemployed is much less than it was in the years 1915 and 1916. We have no homeless people.

"The housing construction now under way and projected will exhaust the resources of the material and labor markets and create a surplus of accommodations greater than that which existed prior to the placing of the embargo on housing construction by the Government in 1918. The building industry is solving the problem.

"The fact that a great surplus of accommodations existed when the war embargo became effective was not referred to by the city officials who testified before the Lockwood Committee. That the population of the city increases at the rate of 85,000 a year does not mean that 17,000 apartments must be provided annually. It is not necessary that an additional apartment or house should be constructed whenever five babies are born. Babies are usually born in existing homes. The increase in population is not the only factor that must be considered in estimating the shortage or surplus of housing accommodations. The migration of people to and from the city, marriage rate, the demolition of existing habitations and many other factors must be considered.

"The report of the Lockwood Committee clearly conveys the impression that it wishes to create in the public mind hostility toward all domiciles erected prior to 1900 and destroy the value of not only the cold water tenement but of all the comparatively old residences regardless of their sanitary condition.

The report of the Joint Legislative Housing Committee, read in the light of facts and figures in possession of the Real Estate Board of New York, demonstrates that the only housing shortage actually existing in New York City is confined to the supply of comfortable, convenient and thoroughly sanitary habitations within the means of the poorer classes. A statement issued by the Real Estate Board follows:

The claim of the Committee that there is locally a general shortage of housing to the extent of 80,000 living apartments is founded merely upon an estimate of the Tenement House Commissioner which was based upon the false presumption that during the period between January 1, 1917, and December 31, 1921, the increase in population of the City had been greatly in excess of the additional housing provided during that period.

Concerning the "Untermeyer Plan" for relieving the congestion in the slums, the Real Estate Board states:

Concerning the "Untermeyer Plan" for relieving the congestion in the slums, the Real Estate Board states: Locally, and in every large city, there is and always has been a shortage of comfortable housing available at rentals that the very poor can pay. No one familiar with local conditions believes that this situation will be remedied to any appreciable extent by the "Untermeyer plan," for it is generally recognized that, under existing construction handicaps, even "cold water flats" cannot be produced to rent for less than $8 per room per month to pay a 6% return upon their cost. The average workingman's family requires at least four rooms, for which the rent would be at least $32 per month, which is not only an overwhelming load for a family having an income of less than $1,500 a year, but is a higher rent than is now being paid for the general run of "cold water" flats, especially in the congested sections of the city. Locally, mechanics, clerks and other wage-earners above the "just landed" type look askance upon living quarters not provided with steam heat, hot water supply and a bath tub. It is impossible to construct buildings containing apartments having such conveniences to rent for less than $12 per month, per room, at a reasonable profit to the builder or owner. How many families of modest means can afford to pay a rent of $48 per month?

The Real Estate Board of New York contends that the surest and swiftest way to provide for a substantial additional supply of desirable housing within the means of wage-earners would be to convert every available one-family house into living quarters for two or three families. To this end the Board has suggested that the Tenement House law be amended to render the statute inapplicable to buildings housing not more than three families.

G. E. Hardie, engineer of the Sage Foundation Homes Company of Forest Hills, L. I., says that the "Untermeyer Plan" is economically unsound and incapable of fulfillment and a "fool proposition that should be frowned upon by every one whose interest lies in bettering the home conditions of the city."

In a report to his company Mr. Hardie declares that the proposal is a retrograde movement in home building. He says:

Mr. Untermeyer should know, for he is in touch with proper information sources, what class of construction would go into such a building project as he proposes. He proposes high finance and low construction. He proposes $8 a room apartments, that will be $4 a room in five years, and possibly $2 a room within fifteen years, for if he knows the building game he will have a knowledge of what will be taking place day by day in such a building, built along the lines he proposes.

"As the housing situation eases up the $8 tenant will surely move, unless this "home" which the Lockwood committee has provided for him has degraded him in like manner as the building has degraded everything connected with the name of home. Then the $6 tenant will move in and stay until decay's alarm chases him away also, and along down the scale of human desire and human endeavor, till we reach the low level of man and womanhood that knows not the finer feeling of home life and wants none of it—this will all surely happen inside of fifteen years and of human desire and human endeavor, till we reach the low level of Mr. Untermeyer knows it.

Mr. Hardie, in conclusion, says that the public is not yet informed as to the expense of financing the Untermeyer plan, the ultimate ownership and operation of the 1,500 apartment units proposed and the terms on which title to these may be secured by private individuals.

Building Totals for January Show Gain Over Last Year

Figures of F. W. Dodge Company Indicate Construction Revival Will Start Throughout United States Early Next Spring

JANUARY construction activity was 49 per cent. greater in volume than it was in the corresponding month of last year, according to the F. W. Dodge Company. The total amount of contracts awarded last month in the 27 northeastern states of the country was $166,320,000. Although this represented a decline of 16 per cent. from the previous month, it was the second largest January total of the Dodge Company's statistical record, having been exceeded only in January, 1920.

Not only did the work actually started in January, as indicated by the awards of contracts, hold up exceedingly well for this season, but the volume of contemplated new work reported, amounting to $435,859,000, was the largest monthly total of contemplated work reported since April, 1921, registering an increase of 3 per cent. over the amount reported in December, and 27 per cent. over the amount reported in January, 1921. All this indicates an increased volume of construction in 1922.

Residential building accounted for 45 per cent. of the January total, amounting to $75,728,000. Business buildings amounted to $23,694,000, or 14 per cent. of the total; industrial buildings, $19,695,000, or 12 per cent.; public works and utilities, $18,735,000, or 11 per cent. Industrial building, although small, showed a gratifying increase over the previous month.

Contracts awarded in the New England States during January amounted to $16,005,000. Although this is a 40 per cent. decline from the preceding month, it is nearly double the figure for January, 1921.

Among the items included in the January, 1922, total was the following: $5,090,000, or 32 per cent., for residential buildings; $3,283,000, or 20 per cent. for industrial buildings; $3,137,000, or 19 per cent., for business buildings, and $1,307,000, or 8 per cent., for educational buildings.

Contemplated new work reported in January amounted to $43,778,000, an increase of 40 per cent. over the volume of contemplated work reported in December.

In New York State and Northern New Jersey, January building contracts amounted to $54,260,000, just two and a half times the amount for January, 1921. Although there was a decrease of 13 per cent. in January, 1922, from the previous month, the January total was equal to the average monthly figure for 1921, an unusually high January record. In fact, this is the second largest January figure for this district in the Dodge Company's record.

The month's figures included: $35,330,000, or 65 per cent., for residential buildings, $6,420,000, or 12 per cent., for business buildings, and $4,724,000, or 9 per cent., for industrial buildings.

Contemplated new work reported during the month amounted to $88,669,000, an increase of 4 per cent. over the amount reported in the preceding month.

January building contracts let in the Middle Atlantic States (Eastern Pennsylvania, Southern New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, District of Columbia, Virginia and the Carolinas) amounted to $24,237,000, a decrease of 24 per cent. from the preceding month, but a marked increase over the corresponding month of last year.

The January, 1922, total included the following items: $12,849,000, or 53 per cent., for residential buildings; $2,699,000, or 11 per cent., for business buildings, $2,304,000, or 9 per cent. for public works and utilities; $2,205,000, or 9 per cent., for educational buildings; and $2,055,000, or 8 per cent., for industrial buildings.

Contemplated new work reported during the month amounted to $65,795,000, an increase of 22 per cent. over the volume of contemplated work reported in December.

Contracts awarded during January in Western Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Ohio, Kentucky, and Tennessee, amounted to $25,966,000, an increase of 16 per cent. over the preceding month, and a decrease of 6 per cent. from January, 1921.

Included in the January, 1922, figures were the following items: $7,966,000, or 31 per cent., for residential buildings; $5,203,000, or 20 per cent., for industrial plants; $4,973,000, or 10 per cent., for public works and utilities; and $2,697,000 for business.

Awards Announced in Tenement House Plan Competition

AWARDS have been announced in the final competition for model tenements which was held under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce, the Merchants' Association, the Advisory Council of Real Estate Interests, the Real Estate Board of New York and the trustees of the Phelps-Stokes Fund. In the preliminary competition forty-nine architects submitted ninety-four plans, and from these the jury of award selected thirteen for final consideration at its recent session.

Seven of the plans were chosen for further development in accordance with the terms of the competition and from these the awards were made as follows: Class A, first prize, consisting of the commission to erect a model tenement house on a lot 100x100 feet, Sibley & Featherston, 101 Park Avenue; second prize, $1,500 to Frank J. Schefcik, 4168 Park Avenue; third prize, $1,000 to John Tompkins, 139 East Fifty-third street. In addition a supplementary prize of $100 was awarded to Raymond M. Hood, 7 West Forty-second street, for his plan submitted in the preliminary competition, under Class B.

The purpose of the competition, which was open to all members of the New York and Brooklyn chapters of the American Institute of Architects and of the New York Society of Architects, is to take advantage of the development in scientific planning and economic construction which has taken place since the competition for model tenements held twenty-two years ago under the auspices of the Charity Organization Society and which later resulted in the appointment of the New York State Tenement House Commission and the drafting and enactment of the present Tenement House Law.

The Phelps-Stokes Foundation is planning to commence the construction of a model tenement from the prize-winning design and it was stated by officials of this fund that the structure could be erected at a cost that would permit four room apartments to be rented at $31 per month, or a figure only 20 per cent. higher than pre-war rentals for living units of the same general character but with inferior equipment. Mr. Phelps-Stokes, in discussing the results of this competition, stated that the apartment could be erected on a cost basis that would net on the investment at least seven per cent. from rents less than $7.50 per room per month.

This model tenement for workingmen's families will be erected on a plot 100x100 feet, with forty-six rooms, exclusive of baths, on each floor. For $1.80 per room a week, plus 60 cents for bathroom, or $16.80 a month for two rooms; $24 for three rooms and $31.20 for four rooms, a workingman will be able to rent a large, light apartment with hot water, steam heat, electric lights and janitor service.

Several prominent builders, with long experience in the construction of multi-family housing projects in this city, stated in discussing this projected operation with a representative of the RECORD AND GUIDE that the progenitors of the plan must have some entirely new scheme of building if the costs are to be kept down to a point where these extremely low rentals will provide any margin of profit at all. Some were positive in stating that it cannot be done and that the old-fashioned cold-water tenements could not be erected under present costs to rent at such figures as announced.

So far no responsible firm of builders has been quoted as willing to assume a contract for the construction of a building from these plans for the stipulated sum and until such a statement is forthcoming practical builders are likely to remain apathetic regarding this plan.

Report Shows Seasonal Drop in Building Commitments

Figures of F. W. Dodge Company Indicate Influence of Inclement Weather on Construction Industry Throughout Metropolitan Area

CONSTRUCTION records for the fifth week of 1922 show a slight drop in the total commitments in New York State and New Jersey, north of Trenton, when compared with the figures for the previous weeks but the decrease is largely attributed to inclement weather conditions that have prohibited work on new structures. The statistics of projected work indicate a steady increase in the volume of both building and engineering construction being planned for an early spring start and as a result the outlook for the coming season grows more promising each passing week.

According to figures compiled by the F. W. Dodge Company work on plans for 381 new building and engineering operations was reported in this territory during the week of January 28 to February 3, inclusive. These projects will involve a total expenditure of approximately $15,798,800. During the same week 225 contracts were reported at an estimated total valuation of $5,421,900.

Study of these figures shows a steady increase in residential construction throughout this territory with about two-thirds of the total of proposed building devoted to this type of project. The ratio is not nearly so great when the totals for contracts actually awarded are analyzed, but this type of operation also continues to dominate recent commitments.

Among the 381 projects for which plans were reported during the fifth week of 1922 were 63 business buildings such as stores, offices, lofts, commercial garages, etc., $1,684,500; 9 educational projects, $1,707,000; 1 hospital, $30,000; 15 factory and industrial buildings, $972,400; 4 public works and public utilities, $106,000; 5 religious and memorial projects, $270,000; 268 residential operations, including apartments, flats and tenements and one and two-family dwellings, $10,355,900 and 14 social and recreational projects, $673,000.

The list of 225 projects for which contracts were awarded during the week of January 28 to February 3 inclusive was grouped as follows: 39 business buildings of various types, $1,537,500; 4 educational projects, $625,000; 4 hospitals and institutions, $978,700; 9 factory and industrial buildings, $224,000; 1 public building, $50,000; 4 public works and public utilities, $147,400; 1 religious edifice, $125,000; 162 residential projects of various types, $1,519,300 and 2 social and recreational buildings, $215,000.

Among the recent contracts obtained by this organization is included the installation of two large electric freight elevators for the Ault Wiborg Co., manufacturers of printing inks, in their new plant in Jersey City. Isaac Beers Co., Inc., are the engineers and contractors.

CURRENT BUILDING OPERATIONS

A STEADY improvement has been noticed since the first of the year in the local building situation, and both contractors and material dealers are confident that a season of unusual activity is rapidly approaching. During the past few weeks commitments for new projects have been numerous, and there is a large amount of proposed work being released for bids. The construction recently reported is excellently diversified as to character and although residential construction is in the majority, the proposed activity scheduled for the Metropolitan district includes a growing percentage of commercial and industrial work and a goodly number of theatres, schools, parish houses, etc., and several large private residences.

Reports from speculative interests both in New York City and in suburban districts indicate an early start on the 1922 residential building program. Architects have been exceptionally busy during the past few months on multi-family house projects, with the Bronx and Brooklyn as the most popular locations, but with Manhattan and Queens also showing considerable activity in this respect.

Although local building material markets are quiet at present, there has been a considerable amount of new inquiry current of late that indicates an early resumption of construction on a large scale. Some anxiety has recently been felt regarding the prospects of adequate material supplies to fill the building requirements of this city during the forthcoming season. At present there is no over-supply of common brick and other materials, notably Portland cement, lime, lath and lumber are not protected by heavy reserves and prices are very firm.

Common Brick—The New York wholesale market for Hudson River common brick has been very quiet during the past week, largely because there is so little brick on hand to be sold. The ice-bound condition of the river has prevented arrivals of new brick and at present there is a scarcity of brick in the wholesale market, although the dealers' yards are supplied with brick sufficient for any emergency. Reports have been current this week that common brick is coming into New York City by rail, but not in sufficient quantities to affect the market. Several of the inland plants, at Cohoes and Mechanicsville, have consigned brick to New York by rail and will in all probability continue to ship by this method as long as the river is closed to navigation. According to the condition of the ice up-river, it is likely that brick barges will not be able to get through until the middle of March at least. Common brick prices are very firm in the wholesale market, with $17 a thousand the base figure quoted.

Summary—Transaction in the North River brick market for the week ending Thursday, February 9, 1922. Condition of market: Demand light; prices very firm and with a tendency to advance. Quotations: Hudson River, $17 a thousand to dealers in cargo lots alongside dock. Number of cargoes arrived, none; sales, 4. Distribution: Manhattan, 2; Brooklyn, 2. Remaining unsold in the New York wholesale market, 4.

Face Brick—Demand is steadily growing for face brick, and New York dealers are confident that the early spring months will witness a tremendous improvement in this business. The large number of high-class apartments scheduled for erection next spring and summer and the large amount of office building and similar construction on the program indicates an active demand for face brick. Prices are very firm and in a number of instances showing an advancing tendency.

MATERIALS AND SUPPLIES

Lime—The market is dull at present, but the anticipated revival of building next spring will materially change conditions for the better. Announcement has been made this week that common lime prices, with the exception of New Milford brands, have been reduced by the manufacturers. The new price on common lime, in three hundred pound barrels, delivered, is $3.75 per barrel.

Lumber—Demand for lumber is increasing slightly as a result of retail yards buying stocks so as to be ready for the early spring demand. Retailers throughout the Metropolitan district report excellent prospects for a vast amount of business from speculative building interests who are preparing for an unusually busy season. Although the wholesale movement of lumber has been showing some improvement, there is no increase in the amount of this material coming in from production points. As a matter of fact the mill situation is quiet and the production is considerably under the rate of consumption at present. Lumber prices are very firm and several important items have recently advanced.

Electrical Supplies—Increased business has marked the past week or so and both manufacturers and dealers feel that a real buying movement has started. Demand for wiring materials for new construction projects is steadily improving, and as there is every likelihood of a steady increase in the number of active building operations the future of the market is bright. Prices are fairly steady, with several slight reductions reported, but which were not sufficient to affect the market. Supplies are adequate for all immediate demands, and manufacturers are in a position to fill orders promptly.

Structural Steel—Tonnage commitments for fabricated structural steel have improved materially during the past week or so, and according to all reports the local market is now on a sound basis. There is every probability that demand for fabricated steel will continue to gain in intensity, as there is a large amount of important construction for which plans are rapidly maturing and which will be released for bids within the next few weeks at most. Recent commitments have ranged from 8,000 to 1,000 tons for individual projects and include several office building operations and multi-family house jobs in Manhattan. Prices are fairly steady and quotations are holding at $60 to $65 per ton, fabricated and erected.

Cast Iron Pipe—Manufacturers are fairly well satisfied with conditions, as the demand has been excellent throughout the winter, and prospects for early spring business are better than they have been for several years. At present municipal demand is dull, but private buying is quite active. Prices are steady and show no change since last week.

Window Glass—Some of the important manufacturers recently announced a reduction of approximately twenty-two per cent. in their price lists and the new schedule will in all probability remain in force until a protective tariff schedule can be worked out to give adequate protection to American glass industries. This reduction in glass prices was largely the result of the thirty per cent. wage cut that has been agreed upon as a compromise measure by representatives of the National Window Glass Workers' Association. This measure will affect approximately 100,000 glass workers. The original demand of the manufacturers was for a reduction of forty-five per cent., but the unions seriously opposed this, and as a result of a general conference with union officials the compromise offer of the unions was finally accepted by the employers.

Lockwood Report in Serial Form

The publicity managers of the Lockwood Committee usually so adept, evidently slipped a cog somewhere in announcing that the report of that committee would be submitted to the Legislature at Albany last Monday evening. The Lockwood report which Chief Counsel Untermeyer has been preparing aboard the houseboat Nirodha, cruising in the vicinity of Palm Beach, was not presented when the legislators reconvened, but in its stead Senator Lockwood submitted a brief statement which had for its high spot the claim that the committee has saved $280,000,000 for tenants in New York City. Any committee which has saved $280,000,000 for anybody in these hard times, the statement seemed to intimate, ought to have an extension of life so it could save $280,000,000 more for somebody. Suing actions to words, Senator Lockwood on Tuesday offered a concurrent resolution extending the life of his committee until March 1, 1923, and providing an appropriation of $79,000 to cover its deficit and $50,000 for paying the freight on the committee's further activities.

There was disappointment in the legislative halls when the Lockwood Committee's report failed to make its appearance as scheduled on Monday evening. The claim that the committee had saved $280,000,000 got big headlines in all the newspapers, of course, and some thoughtless persons immediately jumped to the conclusion that Chief Counsel Untermeyer, even though way down South in the houseboat, had been heard from and had lost none of his genius for holding the newspaper spotlight. A little further along, however, the Monday-night statement declared that the work of the Lockwood Committee, to be done successfully, "had, and has to be, under the direction of a lawyer of great experience and ability and of wonderful industry," and, furthermore, that "the people of the state have been most fortunate that the committee has as counsel the Hon. Samuel Untermeyer." As the reading proceeded there naturally arose a question if Senator Lockwood was submitting to the Legislature the real, blown-in-the-bottle report of the committee as prepared by Chief Counsel Untermeyer aboard the houseboat Nirodha. There must be some mistake, the thought evidently ran through the minds of the legislators, for certainly Mr. Untermeyer, even though glowing in the warm rays of the Florida sun, hardly would feel called upon to pay, in a report of his own preparation, such a handsome tribute to the Lockwood Committee's Chief Counsel. Mr. Untermeyer's modesty, it was all too apparent, would have prevented.

Upon second thought, therefore, the members of the Legislature must have realized that what they were hearing was not Mr. Untermeyer's report for the Lockwood Committee but a little curtain-raiser prepared by the committee itself. And such proved to be the case. That the legislators were disappointed is clear, for Albany dispatches state that they received in silence this preliminary report from Senator Lockwood, not going wild over the news that the Lockwood Committee had saved New York tenants $280,000,000, and not cheering madly the revelation that the committee stands ready to save hundreds of millions more if given a new lease of life.

Later advices from the State Capital are to the effect that the real thing in the way of a Lockwood Committee report is yet to come. It won't all come at once, it seems, but will be administered to the legislators in homeopathic doses. Chief Counsel Untermeyer was not ready with the real report last Monday night, but he has now sent to Senator Lockwood Chapter 1, and it is announced that the report will be submitted to the Legislature from time to time in serial form, each chapter presumably to be closed with the phrase, (in italics and enclosed in parentheses), "To be continued in our next." This novel arrangement should stimulate interest and arouse, in increasing ratio, the curiosity of the Lockwood Committee members and the other legislators. When Chief Counsel Untermeyer has finished his labor it is to be expected that the Legislature will have before it a Lockwood Committee report which will be recognized at once as the genuine article. The preliminary report submitted by Senator Lockwood last Monday night perhaps will seem like a Florida zephyr as compared with a West Indian typhoon when the real report comes along.

And in the meantime, while the Legislature is waiting to hear from Mr. Untermeyer, might it not be proper to suggest that, if the Lockwood Committee really has saved $280,000,000 for New York tenants, the committee takes steps to have this vast sum utilized for the immediate construction of additional homes for the homeless. It seems hardly fair that the Lockwood Committee should be struggling to get $100,000,000 from the insurance companies for building more homes if this $280,000,000 already saved is floating around in the hot air somewhere.

Interests of Public Should Come First

Without taking time to thoroughly digest the provisions of several bills recently introduced in the Legislature, designed to bring about the settlement of industrial disputes without resort to strikes and lockouts, labor leaders have expressed alarm and indignation that this effort should be made to protect the public from the serious consequences of disputes between labor and capital, for the arbitrament of which there is no established court of last resort. Employers have not yet publicly expressed approval or disapproval of the measure introduced by Senator Duell, which provides for an Industrial Term of the Supreme Court, or the plan sponsored by Assemblyman Miller, proposing the creation of an industrial trial jury panel of 100 representative citizens from which may be drafted three members to act as a board of mediation and conciliation.

The New York State Federation of Labor denounces the bills as revolutionary; as Bolshevism; as unfair to employer and employee alike, in that the measures would prevent a private settlement between these two interested parties; that the bills emanate from advocates of the "open shop" who seek to defeat trades unionism in the courts, knowing organized labor cannot bear the enormous expenses of extended litigation.

Governor Miller, on the other hand, before committing himself to any specific method for settling industrial disputes, reserves the right to examine the question of the establishment of a tribunal for the weighing and final decision of questions constantly arising between employers and employees, to which representatives of capital, of labor and of the public shall state their cases and the decisions of which must be based on the rights of, and justice to, every member of the community.

Of the three chief parties interested in the matter, numerically the strongest, the general public has recently shown unmistakable signs of impatience with the methods heretofore indulged in by the other two, the employers and employees, in their clashes over wages and working conditions.

The street-car magnate in an Ohio city is just as much incensed by the absurd prolongation of a strike in the shoe factories of Massachusetts which sends the price of footwear soaring as is the shipyard worker along the Delaware, or the Kansas farmer. All suffer alike. Each realizes that the Boston shoe manufacturers and their employees should use a little common sense, get together and compromise their difficulties, or at least seek immediate arbitration with complete acquiescence in the award. The street-car magnate, the shipyard worker and the farmer can all see what is the right thing to do in the shoe strike, but when it comes to a question of wages of conductors and motormen the magnate is unwilling to listen to reason; when the shipyard worker's pay is cut he resorts to violence; and when the price of wheat falls declivitously the farmer reduces his acreage and holds his crop in the granaries until quotations rise.

The fault lies in the fact that each man wants to be exempt from the regulations which he feels are justifiable for the concerns of other men. The antithesis of this is the realization that only by the enforcement of general laws and regulations can the rights of the whole people be safeguarded and their interests enhanced in value. This is why eventually there must be established a tribunal of some sort to inquire into and decide judicially all industrial disputes. There is much to be said for the Grand Jury idea latent in Assemblyman Miller's bill, and there is more to be praised than criticised in many of the provisions of the Duell bill. Certainly this bill, upon which the maledictions of organized labor are especially centered, does not, as is asserted, prevent employers and employees from getting together and settling their own differences. On the other hand, it specifically enjoins such action, and not until after the parties to the dispute have exerted every effort to come together does it lay down a course of action finally reaching the Industrial Relations Term of the Supreme Court.

It is not to be expected that either of the measures now before the Legislature is perfect. They both merit, however, that attention which Governor Miller proposes to give them, and they should be carefully studied by the representatives of labor and by employers, neither of whom can much longer withstand the demand for the inauguration of some system by which the public shall cease to be the chief sufferer from strikes and lockouts.

Propose to Levy Cost of Removal of 42d Street "L" Spur on Taxpayers

REPRESENTATIVES of property owners on Forty-second Street have appealed to the Legislature for relief from a peculiar situation which prevents the removal of the elevated spur from Third Avenue to Grand Central station.

A law which was enacted with that end in view during the 1917 session, representatives of the property owners asserted, has remained ineffective because of the impossibility of tracing $325,000 out of a total of $800,000 raised by railroad promoters to indemnify owners of abutting property when the elevated structure was set up in Forty-second, in 1870.

When the proposal to discontinue the Third Avenue-Grand Central link was first broached the company demanded that the city pay to it $1,250,000 in return for what it had spent, as indemnity. The city, it was stated, started out to levy assessments against the properties involved in amounts identical with those received in indemnity by the owners forty years ago. Search in the County Clerk's office, according to the story told here, however, showed that only $475,000 actually had been paid to the owners of adjoining property. Where the rest of the money went remains an enigma.

In making its new fight, the Forty-second Street Association has caused to be introduced a bill which would permit the Board of Estimate to levy the cost of removing the structure, including the payment of any claim advanced by the railway company, against the entire city instead of against property owners within the area originally defined as specially benefited by the removal of the elevated structure. The members of the Forty-second Street Association vigorously oppose the proposal to honor the claim of the railway company. The company, however, insists on getting its original $800,000 back.

Assemblyman John J. O'Connor, representing Tammany Leader Murphy's district, is sponsor for the new bill, which has been approved by the Hyman administration as part of a plan to beautify Pershing Square.

Production of Fabricated Steel in 1921 Was Low

THE records of the Bridge Builders and Structural Society, from reports collected by its secretary, George E. Gifford, 50 Church Street, New York, show that in December 71,500 tons of fabricated steel was contracted for throughout the United States. This is roughly equivalent to 40 per cent. of the capacity of the bridge and structural shops of the country, put at 180,000 tons per month.

The total fabricated steel business for 1921 appears thus to be 758,000 tons or 35 per cent. of annual capacity. This exceedingly low performance of slightly over 63,000 tons per month compares with about 90,000 tons per month in the two poor years of 1913 and 1914 and with nearly 105,000 tons per month for the nine years of 1912 to 1920 inclusive. Whereas normally the tenth year of the decade should, other things being equal, show a large total, as a mark of the expansion of the country, the 1921 volume is in fact only 70 per cent. of either of the two poorest years for which records are available. The foregoing recapitulation is merely another commentary on a year which furnishes many records for low production.

Electrical exports for the calendar year 1921 are reported by the Department of Commerce at $97,935,597, compared with $102,870,434 in 1920. Chief among the items recording losses were batteries, interior wiring and fixtures, magnetos and spark plugs and electric locomotives. Increases were made in motors, telephones and transformers.

Lockwood Report Arriving from Florida in Sections

Housing Chairman Says It Will Be Presented Next Week, When Fight to Continue Committee Another Year Will Start at Albany

Albany, Feb. 16.

SENATOR LOCKWOOD, Chairman of the Legislative Committee on Housing, presented on Tuesday a concurrent resolution to extend the life of that committee until March 1, 1923, and making an additional appropriation of $129,000 for committee expenses. Of this total, $50,000 is intended for future expenses of the committee, and $79,000 is needed to cover a deficit already incurred. Senator Lockwood's resolution was referred to the Senate Committee on Finance, which will consider it next week.

"A week or so should be enough time for deliberation by the committee on a resolution of this kind," Senator Lockwood declared. "Should there be any further delay, I am prepared to make a fight to have the resolution taken from the committee and brought before the Senate, where we can have it out in the open."

Senator Lockwood announced that the report of the Housing Committee would be received at Albany in sections. The first section, he announced, already has been received from Chief Counsel Untermeyer, who is in Florida, while four other sections, which are to complete the report, are on the way from Palm Beach.

"This report," the Senator said, "will show in more detail than has been shown to date, accomplishments by the committee fully to justify its existence and the money that has been spent to keep it going. The report will also show in some detail the reasons that impel us to ask that the life of the committee be extended. We believe that our arguments made in that connection are unanswerable."

There is a strong division in the Legislature as to the wisdom of granting further time to the Lockwood Committee or to any other of the committees which have been investigating various subjects. Speaker Machold, when asked about Senator Lockwood's resolution, replied:

"Whether the time of the Lockwood committee is to be extended and whether we are to give that body more money to spend is a question I would not care to answer, one way or the other, right now," he replied. "In a general way I believe all existing legislative committees should be required to make their final reports and go out of existence with the present session. But the question is to be taken up at a conference which will be held within the next few days. It will be determined then, and not before, whether there is merit in the demand that the life of the Lockwood committee be extended."

When the Legislature met on Monday evening it had been expected that the report of the Lockwood Committee would be presented. The report not being ready, however, Senator Lockwood submitted a preliminary report in which the committee claimed to have saved $280,000,000 to tenants in New York City by curbing profiteering landlords. This estimate, it was explained, had been worked out by real estate statistical experts not friendly to the investigation.

Senator Lockwood's preliminary report also asserted that, as a result of the committee's activities, fines aggregating $502,550 had been turned into the public treasury, that on one State construction job $450,000 had been saved, that the City of New York saved $13,000,000 through the committee's work on contracts for public school buildings, and that $800,000 more had been saved through the annulment of the limestone contract for the proposed new County Court House. Credit for a saving of $2,000,000 on school contracts in Buffalo also was made by the committee, the grand total of these savings being placed at $16,752,550.

The Lockwood Committee, which was originally appointed in 1919, has had total appropriations of $152,500, of which it has spent $150,651. About $50,000 has been used for counsel fees. The committee has unpaid bills totaling $78,975. The report added:

"The saving in money to the tenants cannot be compared to the satisfaction of mind, the alleviation of mental distress and worry of thousands of mothers and fathers in the city that followed the enactment of the rent laws. Threatened with loss of home because of demands for unjust increases in rents they were unable to pay, and, knowing that no vacancies could be found anywhere, one can imagine their state of mind and the relief that came from assistance that they could not be dispossessed under the new laws."

During the past year nine legislative committees, including the Lockwood Committee, incurred expenses of approximately $750,000.

The belief prevails here that the Lockwood committee bill to give life insurance companies the right to invest up to 10 per cent. of their assets in real estate is practically dead. The measures introduced in the Senate and Assembly were referred to the insurance committees, of which the chairmen are Senator James E. Towner, of Dutchess, and Assemblyman Eberly Hutchinson, of the Fulton-Hamilton district. Neither committee has received a letter in favor of the measure. No request for a hearing has been presented. Senator Towner declared today that he did not believe the bill should pass until it is proven conclusively that the building program proposed by Samuel Untermeyer, counsel for the housing committee, and endorsed by all members of that body, is financially sound. He expressed the opinion that before the measure gets through some direct figures will have to be submitted showing that insurance companies can realize a profit from the proposed investment in real estate and construction of tenements. Another question to be considered, he said, was whether it would be right to have ten per cent of the assets of a company—money collected from all its policyholders—spent in a housing program centered in New York City.

As a successor to their State-wide License bill, which was passed by the Legislature last year but vetoed by Governor Miller, the New York State Association of Real Estate Boards today had introduced a measure under which real estate brokers and salesmen would be licensed if doing business in cities or in the counties of Westchester and Nassau.

Licenses would be issued by the State Tax Commission. The fees would be $25 in cities of the first class, $15 in cities of the second and $10 in cities of the third class. It is estimated that it would bring in approximately $300,000 in annual revenue to be divided between the State and localities.

The annual appropriation bill was offered in Senate and Assembly.

Many Amendments to Emergency Rent Laws Proposed

Real Estate Board Sends to Lockwood Committee Suggestions Intended to Simplify and Eliminate Worst Features of Existing Statutes

THE following amendments to the existing landlord and tenant laws have been recommended by the Real Estate Board to the Joint Legislative Committee on Housing, with brief statements giving reasons for their adoption. The changes proposed are in italics:

First:—Amend Subdivision 1-a of Section 1410 of the Civil Practice Act as follows:

(a) A proceeding to recover such possession upon the ground that the person (is) holding over (and), or an occupant of the demised premises, is objectionable, in which case the landlord shall establish to the satisfaction of the court, that the person holding over or such occupant is objectionable.

The present law permits the recovery of property if the hold over tenant is objectionable. As there have been many cases where hold-over tenants have sublet to objectionable persons, it is necessary to extend the exemption to include objectionable sub-lessees as well. Many tenants have profited on sub-tenants.

(b) Or a proceeding in which the owner of record of the building seeks IN GOOD FAITH to recover possession of the demised premises for immediate and personal occupancy of the superintendent or janitor of said building as a dwelling.

Subdivision (b) is designed to remedy a defect in the rent laws which has compelled property owners to violate the tenement house law (Section 110) providing that a janitor or superintendent must be housed on the premises if the building contains eight or more apartments.

(c) Or a proceeding where the petitioner shows to the satisfaction of the court that he desires in good faith to recover premises for the purpose of demolishing the same with the intention of constructing a new building; or for the purpose of making such substantial alterations in a building, other than an existing tenement house, as will make it suitable for two or more families to dwell therein independently of each other, plans for which new building or alterations shall have been duly filed and approved by the proper authority.

Much can be done toward relief of the "housing shortage" by the alteration of old buildings in such a way as to make them accommodate more families. When such an alteration is contemplated there is as much reason for exempting the building from the operation of the rent laws as for the exemption of an entirely new building, as is done by the existing law.

(d) Or a proceeding to recover premises constituting a part of a building and land which has been in good faith sold to a corporation formed under a co-operative ownership plan [whereof the entire stock shall be held by the stockholders in proportion to the number of rooms occupied or to be occupied by them in such building and all apartments or flats therein have been leased to stockholders of such corporation for their own personal, exclusive and permanent occupancy, to begin immediately upon the termination of any tenancy of the apartments or flats leased by them, existing on the date when this subdivision takes effect] under which plan the entire stock of such corporation shall be held by the stockholders in proportion to the value, as agreed upon under such plan, of the portions of the building occupied or to be occupied by them respectively, and in which proceedings it shall be established that the particular apartment constituting the demised premises has been leased to one of such stockholders who seeks in good faith to recover possession of such demised premises for immediate and personal occupancy as a dwelling by himself and his family.

It is an established fact that a man who owns his own home is a better citizen. This is because property ownership encourages economy and thrift.

In the laws previously adopted, the co-operative ownership plan was indorsed with the limitation, however, that all apartments in the building must be sold. This is the so-called one hundred per cent. plan. Such plan must, of necessity, have very restricted use, for it is usually impossible to "sell" the ground floor, or otherwise unattractive apartments.

This amendment will enable them to obtain possession of those few apartments, but it will be impossible for the purchaser of an apartment to secure possession for any other purpose than the personal occupancy of himself and his family. Tenants occupying unsold apartments in the building will be protected from ejectment, and from increase in rent, by regular operation of the Rent Laws. The sale of a cooperative apartment under the conditions in subdivision (d) does not reduce housing accommodations. Such sale means that the buyer become a prominent resident of the community. Adoption of sub-division (d) of this act will be beneficial to the community, socially and economically.

(e) Or a proceeding in which it is established that the tenant holds over after the expiration of a written lease containing a "cancellation clause" coupled with a provision for the payment of a bonus to the lessee upon the exercise of a privilege to terminate the lease.

This proposed amendment exempts from the operation of the law the case where a tenant has occupied a temporary lease at a reduced rent, with provision of a payment of a bonus in the event of cancellation.

(f) Or a proceeding in which it is established that the tenant holds over after a written lease was made previous to April 6, 1910.

Where the tenant has had the benefit of a long-term lease at the low rental prevalent in pre-war times, and has been carried at such rental in spite of the advancing costs and heavily increased expenses of his landlord, it seems only fair that such tenant either pay the increased rent sought by his landlord or give up possession to some one who will do so.

(g) Or a proceeding in which it is established that the tenant holds over after a written lease which was made previous to April 1, 1919.

Since under the provisions of the law a tenant may remain in possession as a hold-over, without the formality of a new lease—if not withstanding that privilege he does actually enter into a new lease, he should not be permitted to repudiate it.

(h) Or a proceeding in which it is established that at least four months before the expiration of the term, the landlord, or his authorized agent, served upon the tenant, written notice, by mailing the same by United States registered mail, addressed to the tenant at the demised premises, offering to renew the lease for one year, at the same rate of rent as that payable by the tenant at the date of such notice, but it shall be a defense to such proceeding in such case that the tenant served in like manner upon the landlord or the said authorized agent of the landlord, written acceptance of such offer within thirty days after the service of the offer on behalf of the landlord.

As the Rent Laws operate at present it is possible for tenants to withhold all information from their landlords as to whether or not they intend to remain in possession. In consequence, a landlord cannot negotiate with another applicant for an apartment until the apartment is actually vacated. In all fairness, the landlord is entitled to information three months previous to the termination of a lease as to whether or not a tenant will hold over.

(i) Or a proceeding in which the demised premises consist of a room or rooms in a hotel of one hundred and twenty-five rooms or more, whether used for transients or under lease, or in a lodging house occupied under a tenancy of a week or less.

The purpose of this amendment is to exempt apartment hotels from the operation of the law.

Second:—Amend Section 10 of Chapter 136 of the Laws of 1920 as amended by Chapter 944 of the Laws of 1920, to read as follows:

This act shall not apply to a room or rooms in a hotel of one hundred and twenty-five rooms or more, whether used for transients or under lease, or in a lodging house occupied under a tenancy of a week or less.

The purpose of this amendment is to place apartment hotels upon the same basis as hotels for transient guests.

Amend Section 12 of the same act, to read as follows:

This act as hereby amended shall not apply to buildings in the course of construction [at the time this amendment takes effect] on the first day of April, nineteen hundred and twenty or commenced thereafter, nor to written leases made subsequent to the date upon which this amendment shall take effect, and shall be in force until November first, nineteen hundred and twenty-two.

As has already been pointed out in the argument for the preceding act on summary proceedings, buildings under construction on April 1, 1920, or commenced thereafter were erected when the prices of building material and labor were the highest and therefore such buildings should not be restricted by the operation of the rent laws. The second part of the proposed amendment would restore the power to tenant and owner to make a binding contract, which was taken away by Chapter 136 of the Laws of 1920 as amended by Chapter 944 of the Laws of 1920.

Third:—Amend Section 232 of the Real Property Law as amended by Chapter 130 of the Laws of 1920, to read as follows:—
Duration of certain agreements in New York. An agreement for the

Up-to-Date Developments of Land for Industrial Use

Martin Dodge, of Merchants' Association, Points Out Principal Factors in Successful Conduct of Business in Community Where Property is Located

MARTIN DODGE, manager of the Industries Bureau of the Merchants' Association of New York, delivered the lecture last Tuesday night in the course on real estate subjects being held at the West Side Branch of the Y. M. C. A. on West 57th street. Mr. Dodge's subject was "The Development of Property for Industrial Use." Defining "property" as land and "industrial use" as for the purpose of manufacturing the speaker said the title of the lecture might read: "The Development of Land for the Purpose of Manufacturing."

Mr. Dodge first described the English city of Letchworth, 35 miles from London, as typical of ideal conditions. Here, with a population of 25,000 in an area of 45,000 acres the retail trade is located in the centre, within a ring of parks separating it from the residential quarter which is again separated by a ring of parks from the manufacturing district, outside of which are farms. No factory worker need live more than ten minutes from his factory and no farmer more than ten or fifteen minutes from his farm. Yet his residence is separated from his place of work by forests and parks and his home is located with other homes in such a way as to give him a maximum of community and social benefits.

Only 38 American cities, Mr. Dodge said, have adopted zoning regulations, but 42 others are considering doing so, and it is therefore of the greatest importance to anyone considering the development of a piece of property for industrial use to determine what the existing regulations are concerning its use or what regulations are apt to be applied to that property.

Only recently, the lecturer continued, have manufacturers located their factories on the basis of a careful scientific investigation concerning the relative advantages and disadvantages of the site chosen. All too frequently the decision has rested upon unimportant issues. A particularly cheap piece of land has been discovered or the plot may be located conveniently to the manufacturer's residence. An illustration in point is the case of a manufacturer who located a factory near Clifton, Staten Island, some fifty years ago. He found a high hill which was picturesque and attractive. First he built his residence there, then a few hundred yards distant he built a factory. For fifty years he has received raw materials at the railroad station at the foot of the hill and trucked these to the top of the hill. He has trucked all of his coal from the same station to the top of the hill. His industry required only the processing of the material and practically no change in its bulk. When the process was finished he trucked it back down the hill to the same railroad station and took it away. It has taken the manufacturer fifty years to discover that although the top of the hill was suitable for residential purposes, the bottom of the hill near the railroad station was the suitable place for his manufacturing plant. He has now located his factory there.

A positive factor which unfortunately has been responsible for a considerable part of the unsound industrial development which characterizes many of our communities has been the practice of chambers of commerce, followed until comparatively recent years, of engaging in wholesale campaigning methods and factory grabbing methods for the purpose of establishing new industries in their localities. Cash bonuses have been paid, tax exemption has been secured, the stock of the prospective manufacturer has been endorsed by the chamber of commerce or even sold through a special committee appointed for this purpose. The commercial organization has intervened to secure favorable terms on mortgages; and in various other ways has offered an artificial stimulus in order to secure additional factories.

This experience has proved disastrous in a large measure. The rate of mortality among factories established in communities as a result of such methods has been very high and instead of adding to their prosperity has left them with bankrupt industries.

This experience has led to a radical change in the policies of chambers of commerce. They are now making an effort to analyze their communities more carefully on the basis of their real economic advantages and drawbacks. They are appealing only to industries which if properly managed will have a good chance for success. They are increasing the attractiveness of their communities by supplying more parks, better streets and boulevards, and improved transportation facilities. They are attempting to decrease the death rate. They hope by these methods to make their communities so desirable for industrial purposes that industries will naturally be attracted.

Given a piece of property suitable for industrial development, declared Mr. Dodge, it is important to analyze this property to determine the type of industrial development for which it is best suited. In the first place, is it suited for heavy or light manufacturing? If the site is extensive, if it is not too close to a residential community, if freight transportation facilities are ample, then perhaps it is well suited for heavy manufacturing purposes. If on the other hand the site is comparatively small, if it is not located near a residential community, and if tall loft buildings may be erected without excessive cost for the foundation, then perhaps the

A distinctive type of development is that known as the district or terminal development. This is perhaps best typified by the Bush Terminal, Brooklyn. Other terminal developments on New York Harbor are those of the New York Dock Company, the Degnon Terminal, Long Island City, the Brooklyn Eastern District Terminal on East River in the Williamsburg section of Brooklyn and the Hoboken Terminal. Chicago has eight or nine large terminal developments and probably manufactures a larger proportion of its products in such districts than any other large city in the country. The Central Manufacturing District is Chicago's largest development of this kind.

This type of development is usually undertaken by a central corporation which purchases a large tract of land, preferably on the waterfront and with rail transportation facilities. Loft buildings and warehouses are erected and railroad sidings are constructed to connect these with the main lines and with the piers. The matter of the transfer of the freight, even to cartage and movement on elevators, is frequently taken charge of by the central corporation, which leases the buildings in whole or in part to manufacturers.

There are many advantages to this kind of development. Although rents are somewhat higher than in the ordinary locality, the facilities are usually better. A particular effort is always made to supply adequate transportation facilities, power, water and other necessities for manufacturing. The manufacturing buildings are usually constructed along the most modern lines providing for adequate light, ventilation and convenience. Insurance rates in such districts are usually low.

Mr. Dodge described the type of homogenous developments typified by such manufacturing towns as East Liverpool, Ohio, a pottery centre; Akron, Ohio, famous for rubber products and Troy, N. Y., the home of collars and cuffs.

The single unit development, the lecturer declared, is illustrated in the effort now pending with respect to six hundred acres fronting on New York Harbor, which is in the hands of an agent who believes that this property will yield the best return for all concerned if used as the location of the iron and steel industry. Having come to this conclusion the agent has analyzed the industry from every point of view. He has determined the cost of securing coke and coal, the cost of shipping not only Lake Superior ores but Champlain and Cuban ores; also the availability of scrap material in this vicinity which might be used in the process of manufacturing. Further, he has not only estimated the approximate market for the products of the plant in this vicinity, but he has made an extensive survey to determine whether or not those using the products here would prefer to patronize a local plant rather than plants in Pittsburgh, Bethlehem and other steel producing centers.

Obviously the most important factor affecting the development of a particular piece of property for industrial use is the location of that property; but going back of the question of location I contend that the factors which will lead to the most satisfactory development of a given piece of property for industrial use are the same factors which make for the successful conduct of a manufacturing enterprise located on that property. If a manufacturer chooses a certain location and is successful, the fame of that success soon spreads abroad. It is inseparably connected with the location of the plant. Success begets success, and other industries are attracted to the same vicinity. Land values are enhanced. On the other hand, if he fails that failure is also inseparably connected with his location or the particular site and that location suffers in reputation, especially in so far as the particular industry is concerned.

Now the principal factors which make for the successful or unsuccessful conduct of a manufacturing enterprise are as follows: Proximity of raw materials, proximity of markets, shipping transportation facilities, freight rates, labor supply, rapid transit facilities, cost of capital, cost of management, actual extent of site, price of site, power supply, water supply, taxes, insurance, police and fire protection.

These factors are not given in the order of their importance, as this varies very greatly with different industries. But generally speaking, I should say that the first half dozen were the more important.

Usually a decision must be made between proximity to raw materials and to markets. If the industry is one in which a large part of the raw materials is waste, then it is uneconomical to ship this raw material a considerable distance only to discard sixty or seventy per cent. of it after the process of manufacture is completed. If, on the other hand, the product is fragile or perishable and likely to be damaged by long shipment it is necessary that the plant be located near the points of consumption. These matters must be considered entirely in relationship to particular industries and cannot be settled abstractly. It always should be remembered that nearness to markets or raw materials is not merely a matter of miles but of costs, which means that transportation facilities and freight rates are important factors to be considered.

A labor supply, of course, is necessary to any industry. In this connection not only the supply of labor should be determined but the character of labor which may be depended upon. Of course, the matter of labor supply cannot be considered apart from the question of rapid transit facilities.

The importance of water supply varies very greatly with the different industries. Concerning power, it must be determined whether power can be purchased more advantageously from a central power company than it can be generated in the plant itself.

Taxes are now not so important a factor in industry as they formerly were, as the tax rate in the large industrial communities has tended to equalize. Taxes, moreover, do not bulk large in proportion to many other factors entering into production.

Insurance rates vary more with the particular line of industry, the character of the construction of the building, the materials to be consumed and the carefulness of the management than they do with the general locality in which the factory is located.

In conclusion, said Mr. Dodge, the only policy which can be consistently advocated and followed in the development of property for industrial use is a policy based on the sound industrial development of the community in which the property is located; for this means increased prosperity for that community and increased prosperity means not only good business but more business for all concerned.

Renew Fight for Fifth Avenue Apartments Above 60th St.

Owners Petition Supreme Court for Mandamus Order to Compel Superintendent Brady to Issue Permit for 13-Story Building Opposite Central Park

A TEST case to determine the height to which buildings may be erected on the east side of Fifth Avenue, between Sixtieth and Ninety-sixth Streets, has been brought before Supreme Court Justice Bijur on the application of Mary Brewster Jennings for a peremptory mandamus order to compel Charles Brady, Superintendent of Buildings, to grant a permit for the erection of a thirteen-story apartment house at the southeast corner of Fifth Avenue and Ninety-Sixth Street.

This action is the direct result of the association of a number of owners of Fifth Avenue property in the section mentioned to oppose the efforts of the Fifth Avenue Association, the City Club and other interests to have the height of building along this section of the avenue limited to three-quarters of its width, or 75 feet. The Board of Estimate on Nov. 25 last passed a resolution, by a vote of 13 to 3, amending the Zoning Law so that this became the limit to which buildings could be constructed. Exception to the legality of the action by the Board of Estimate was immediately taken by property-owners interested in preserving their rights under the Zoning Law as originally enacted which allowed structures of 150 feet height, equal to one-and-one-half the width of the avenue at this point, which is one hundred feet. The basis for exception to the decision of the Board of Estimate was that when more than 20 percent of the owners of property protested against a change in the Zoning Law unanimous action on the part of the Board of Estimate was necessary to make the change. The protestants claimed that more than 20 percent of the property-owners had objected and therefore the vote by which the change was made was invalid.

On Jan. 20 last the Corporation Counsel advised the Board of Estimate that including the Central Park frontage as well as that on the East Side of Fifth Avenue less than 20 per cent of owners had objected to the change in the Zoning Law as therefore this amendment limiting the height of buildings to 75 feet was legally adopted.

The application for a mandamus order on Superintendent Brady is made by Robert B. Knowles, of Taylor, Knowles & Hack, for Mary Brewster Jennings, owner of the southeast corner of Ninety-sixth Street and Fifth Avenue. Mr. Knowles, it is understood, selected this as a test case in the fight a number of owners, including Vincent Astor, Jacob Ruppert Realty Co., J. E. R. Carpenter and the Van Ingen Estate, are making to prevent the city authorities from limiting the development of their property on lines effective under the original terms of the Zoning Law.

Mr. Knowles has developed three arguments upon which his application for a mandamus order is based. These are that the plans for the apartment house to be erected on the Jennings plot were filed on Nov. 23, 1921, with the Tenement House Department and the Bureau of Buildings, prior to action by the Board of Estimate on Nov. 25, 1921, and that under this law nothing in the Zoning Law "shall require any change in the plans, construction or designated use of a building for which a building permit has been heretofore issued or plans for which are on file with the Building Superintendent or with the Tenement House Department at the time of the passage of this resolution." The second contention is that the Central Park frontage should not be included and that if it is not more than 20 per cent of the owners of frontage objected to the change in the Zoning Law and a unanimous vote was necessary to award the law. The third contention is based on the following provision of the Zoning Law defining words used in the resolution:

"The 'width of the street' is the mean of the distances between the sides thereof within a block. Where a street borders a public place, public park or navigable body of water the width of the street is the mean width of such street plus the width, measured at right angles to the street line, of each public place, public park or body of water." The width of Central Park at Ninety-sixth Street, measured at right angles to Fifth Avenue, is approximately 2600 feet. If the "width of the street" is based on the width of Fifth Avenue at Ninety-sixth Street, which is one hundred feet, plus the width of Central Park, which is 2600 feet, the result is 2700 feet. Under the original Zoning Law the height of a building on Fifth Avenue might be one-and-one-half times the width of the street including Central Park. Under the amendment passed last November by the Board of Estimate limiting the height to three quarters of the width of Fifth Avenue between Sixtieth and Ninety-sixth Streets the width of Central Park must be taken into consideration.

Arguments on the application were made last Wednesday and the court took the question under advisement.

occupation of real estate in the City of New York, which shall not particularly specify the duration of the occupation, shall be deemed to continue until the first day of October next after the possession commences under the agreement.

An occupant of premises in the City of New York used for dwelling purposes, who obtained possession thereof under a lease or rental agreement, and who remains in possession after the expiration of the term created by said lease or rental agreement, shall be deemed to have elected to continue in occupancy of the premises until the first day of October next ensuing after the commencement of the holding over, under all the terms and conditions of the expired lease or rental agreement except the amount of rent reserved, and shall be liable during the term hereby created for a monthly rent payable on the first day of each month in advance at the rate agreed upon between said hold-over and the landlord, or as determined in judicial proceedings, unless expressly released in writing by the landlord.

As the operation of the Rent Laws has done away with binding contracts, it is now possible for tenants to occupy apartments part of the rental period and then vacate without notice to the landlord. This condition, if unremedied, would result in heavy financial loss to owners of property, particularly if the apartments were left vacant during the summer months, when apartments are not in demand.

Fourth:—Repeal the concluding sentence of Section 6 of Chapter 136 of Laws of 1920, as amended by Chapter 434, Laws of 1921, which provides.

"The plaintiff shall be entitled to costs only in the event that he recover the full amount demanded in the complaint."

Were the law restored to its traditional state in which costs went as a matter of course to the prevailing party, much would be done to remove the chief cause of the congestion in the Municipal Courts.

Fifth:—Enactment of the bill authorizing the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court, 1st Dept., to designate 15 referees to hear and determine cases in the Municipal Courts of that Department in order to relieve the congestion in such courts; the Appellate Division, 2d Dept. to appoint 10 referees to assist in the Municipal Courts of that Department to the same end.

Such a measure was proposed by the Joint Legislative Housing Committee during the Session of 1921, and was passed by both houses of the Legislature, but was vetoed by Mayor Hylan.

Sixth:—Enactment of a bill to amend Section 2 of the Tenement House Law by providing that the definition of "tenement house" shall be read to relate to houses accommodating four families, instead of three families or more as now provided.

The purpose of this measure is to encourage the re-modelling of existing one family houses into dwellings for three families and also to promote the construction of three family houses in the comparatively undeveloped sections of the Bronx, Queens and Richmond.

Review of Real Estate Market for the Current Week

Some Large Leases and Sales Gave Distinctiveness to a Market Well Dotted with Substantial Transactions of All Kinds

PROBABLY the most interesting phase of the real estate market this week was the closing of large leases in important trade and traffic centers. Of striking interest was the leasing of a store in the Broadway front of the Loew Theatre building, at Times Square, at the rate of $1,300 a front foot per annum, whereas the same tenant, less than three years ago, paid for the old store, on the same site, an annual rental of $200 a front foot. This rental, along with other new store rentals on Times Square during the latter part of last year, emphasizes the premier status of trade in this upper Broadway district. The rental in discussion is on the East or Seventh avenue side of Times Square, near 45th street. It is timely to note that a Seventh avenue corner, three block north of 45th street, was leased to a well known operator, this week, as the site for a new office and store building, while during the week before a corner at Seventh avenue and 49th street was leased to the same operator for a similar improvement. It looks as if the Times Square zone would be a storm center of real estate activity for a long time to come.

Other leases of more than passing interest were the leasing of three floors, on the plans, of the Pershing Square building, to be built on the site of the old Grand Union Hotel, at the southeast corner of Park avenue and 42d street, for a long term of years, at an aggregate rental running into the millions; also a hotel for a long term of years; and the leasing of other good sized properties and floor areas that our news columns set forth in detail.

In the sales market a transaction of more than ordinary moment was the sale by the Congregation of the Church of The Blessed Sacrament of its edifice, at the southeast corner of Broadway and 71st street, to a prominent firm of builders. The site fronts 112.5 feet on Broadway and 254.7 on the street. Heavy traffic has long focused in this section and it is therefore likely that a modern building of varied business character will supplant the church edifice. Only last December, Christ Church, at the opposite, or northwest corner, leased a portion of its church grounds at that point to builders, who will erect thereon a 7-story business building. In West 69th street, a block and one-half distant, the Government recently leased, on the plans, large space in a new building for post office space to supersede the postal station now at the northwest corner of Broadway and 69th street.

Several superior dwellings, in the Fifth avenue section, changed hands, one of them entirely for cash, while there were several other cash transactions during the week in other parts of town. A notable sale was that of the 9-story St. Margaret apartment hotel, in West 47th street, to the lessee. This is a marked instance of tenant buying. The entire city gave a display of varied dealing that shows a good bottom to the general market. The Bronx and Brooklyn were both active in diversified dealing as well.

PRIVATE REALTY SALES.

THE total number of sales reported, but not recorded, in Manhattan this week was 101, as against 64 last week and 70 a year ago.

The number of sales south of 59th st was 31, as compared with 17 last week and 22 a year ago.

The number of sales north of 59th st was 70 as compared with 47 last week and 48 a year ago.

From the Bronx 33 sales at private contract were reported as against 29 last week and 38 a year ago.

Statistical tables including the number of recorded instruments will be found on page 210.

Sale of a Fine Residence

Albert B. Ashforth, Inc., in conjunction with Douglas L. Elliman & Co., sold the new 5-sty English basement dwelling, 16 East 68th st, on a lot 21.6x100.5, for the Charmouth Realty Co., to a prominent client for occupancy. The property was held at $185,000, and an interesting feature of the transaction is the fact that the entire purchase price was paid in cash. The dwelling is new, having just been erected by the F. H. Wakeham Co. on a day's work basis. The building is of white limestone, and both the interior and exterior are handsomely finished. Directly adjoining, on the east, is the large residence of Henry T. Sloane, from whom the site of this dwelling was purchased through Douglas L. Elliman & Co. last spring. Directly opposite are the mansions of Alfred Anson and Mrs. George T. Bliss.

Builders Buy Apartment Site

The two 3-sty buildings, 103-105 East 63d st, have been bought by the J. E. Watson, Inc., apartment house builders, who, after negotiations have been completed for the enlargement of the site, will erect a 9-sty apartment house. The seller of the property at 103 was the Seligman estate, and Mrs. Emma Lyman was the seller of 105. The properties occupy a plot 50x100.5, and were held at $125,000. Harris, Vought & Co. were the brokers.

The site for the proposed operation is diagonally in the rear of the new Fifth Avenue Baptist Church, at the southeast corner of Park av and 64th st, and is in the vicinity of the new Third Church Scientist. The Farmers Loan and Trust Co. and Moritz Wormser represented the Seligman estate, and William B. May & Co. represented Mrs. Lyman.

Synagogue for Upper West Side

Congregation of the Free Synagogue, Stephen S. Wise, Rabbi, has bought 32-44 West 68th st, between Central Park West and Columbus av, seven 4-sty and basement brick dwellings, on a plot 135.8x100.5. The synagogue already occupies 34-36.

The entire site, including the present synagogue house, will be razed at once, and it is expected that the new edifice will be completed by November.

It will be a 5-sty structure and will house the religious school, social service and child adoption bureaus, a seminary for the training of young Jewish college and university students for the ministry in the reformed church and other branches of work carried on by the congregation. The congregation has subscribed $175,000 toward the $250,000 needed to erect the building. The synagogue will continue to hold services at Carnegie Hall.

Buy Lower West Side Corner

Brown, Wheelock Co., Inc., sold for Hearth and Home, Inc., to Leonard Weill, a real estate operator, a plot 40x80, on the northeast corner of West Houston and Macdougall sts, known as 146-148 West Houston st, on which there are two old buildings. Negotiations are now under way for a long term net lease upon the premises to a chain store. This plot is opposite the new moving picture theatre on the northwest corner of Macdougall and West Houston sts, now in course of construction. It was held at $65,000.

Larkin estate; 1221 Third av, a 4-sty brick flat with stores, on a lot 16.8x80, for the Giebler estate; 226 East 74th st, a 5-sty brick tenement house with store, on a lot 25x102.2, for Lena Rueseler; 194 East 76th st, a 4-sty stone double flat, on a lot 25x102.2, for the estate of Benjamin S. Strauss; 229 East 80th st, a 4-sty stone double flat, on a lot 25x100, for Mary Kelly; and 333 East 90th st, a 5-sty stone double flat, 25x100, for Arthur Viertel.

Operator Deals Heavily

Joseph Shenk, operator, figured recently in six transactions. To H. Goodstein he sold the 6-sty elevator house at the southeast corner of St. Nicholas av and 172d st, on a plot 100x125, renting for $52,000 a year, and held at $350,000; to Hershkwitz & Rames, through Max Rosenfeld, Harold Court, at the southwest corner of St. Nicholas av and 158d st, a 6-sty house, 105x150, renting for $62,000 and held at $450,000, and to the Maxroe Realty Corporation, Claremont View, a 6-sty building at 59 Tiemann pl, 100x150, renting for $60,000 and held at $375,000.

Mr. Shenk also sold for the Ardmore Estates to a client of Hiram T. Wood the 6-sty apartment house at the northwest corner of Amsterdam av and 103d st, 75x100, renting for $35,000 and held at $225,000, and for the same seller to a client of B. From a client of B. Harris he purchased two 6-sty houses at 506 and 510 West 150th st, 100x100, renting for $35,000 and held at $250,000.

Brown Buys Grand Opera House

Famous for half a century as an amusement centre, the Grand Opera House, at the northwest corner of Eighth av and 23d st, has been sold by the estate of Jay Gould to Frederick Brown, operator. It is a 4-sty white stone theatre, office and store building. The plot is L shaped. It fronts 113.6 feet on Eighth av and 115.10 feet on West 23d st, with an interior depth of 159.2 feet. Included in the sale is the 2-sty brick building, 320-322 West 24th st, which adjoins the rear of the Opera House and connects with it. The latter is a Clement C. Moore estate leasehold.

The house has a seating capacity of 1,900, with standing room for 1,500 more. It is assessed by the city at $829,000.

The Opera House site itself was originally also a Moore leasehold, being leased in 1843 from Bishop Clement C. Moore, author of the "Night Before Christmas." Later Samuel Pike bought out the lease and acquired the fee in 1864. For a time it was the scene of the greatest opera productions in this country. Jim Fisk and Jay Gould bought the house in March, 1869, but Gould's name was withdrawn from the enterprise. It was Fisk who gave the theatre its spectacular furnishings and grand stairway. At one time the property was owned by the Erie Railroad, and while Fisk was president of the company its executive offices were there. In 1884 it was reopened as a theatre.

The heirs of the Gould estate are George J. Gould, Mrs. Finley G. Shepard, formerly Helen Gould; Edwin, Howard and Frank Gould, and the Duchess de Talleyrand of France, formerly Anna Gould. The estate was represented by Taylor, Knowles & Hack. John M. Thompson was the broker.

Ninth Av. Corner Changes Hands

Large Third Av. Corner Sold

A. H. Levy sold to Meister Builders, Inc., 973-977 Third av, northwest corner of 58th st, two 6-sty brick apartment houses with stores, one being on a plot 50.2½x105, and the other on a lot 25.1¼x105. They contain 10 stores and 53 apartments of from 4 to 5 rooms each.

This sale disposes of all of the holdings of the State Bank in Manhattan, which were held since 1911, when Mr. Levy assumed charge of the disposal of same. The property was held at $300,000. Unusual terms were obtained by Meister Builders, a 21-year second mortgage being one of its features. The buyers have resold.

Fine Apartment House Sold

Daniel H. Jackson sold through Derschuch & Co. 562-568 West End av, adjoining the northeast corner of 87th st, a 12-sty and basement elevator apartment house, on a plot 78x100. It was built by Sumner Gerard in 1914 and is considered to be one of the most modern buildings on the avenue. Mr. Jackson bought the property and 560, at the corner, 18 months ago.

Each floor contains two 8-room apartments, with 3 baths. They are rented to well-known New York families and the building yields an annual rental of $100,000. Mr. Jackson still owns the adjoining corner parcel.

Sale Wipes Out Restrictions

The vacant plot, 125x100 feet, on the north side of West 81st st, 100 feet east of Columbus av, and facing the Museum of Natural History, has been purchased from the Marshall O. Roberts estate by I. Randolph Jacobs and Everett Jacobs, operators. The property has been in the hands of the seller for more than 50 years, but as it was restricted to improvement with private residences it was practically unsalable.

The restrictions included the seven residences at 62-74 West 82d st, abutting in the rear. In order to make the plot available for an apartment house the Messrs. Jacobs were obliged to buy the houses at 64, 72 and 74 West 82d st, and to purchase from the owners of the remaining three houses a release of this restriction.

The buyers announce, through N. A. Berwin & Co., the brokers, that they are having plans prepared for a 14-sty apartment house, which they expect to erect on the site facing 81st st. They will offer for resale the houses on 82d st. The entire operation, it is expected, will involve about $1,500,000.

Valuable Church Site Sold

The property of the Church of the Blessed Sacrament, at the southeast corner of Broadway and 71st st, has undergone a change of ownership, according to an announcement made by the Rev. William J. Guinan, its rector.

Important Sale at Long Beach

Edward J. Farrell, of Long Beach, sold the plot of 4 lots on the boardwalk, adjoining, and west of the Hotel Nassau, at Long Beach, to Richard E. Weingart, representing the Nassau Hotel management. The Nassau has remained open throughout the winter season for the first time in several years and the plan has proved to be a complete success.

RECENT LEASES.

Big Lease of Floors On Plans

Charles F. Noyes Co. and Manning & Trunk leased, at an aggregate rental of about $3,000,000, for the Pershing Square Building Corporation, Harry Mandel, vice-president, to the Royal Indemnity Co., Charles H. Holland, president, the 4th, 5th and 6th floors, containing about 75,000 square feet of space, in the new 23-sty Pershing Square Building, which will occupy the east block front on Park av, from 42d to 41st sts, directly opposite the Hotel Belmont and the Grand Central Terminal. The lease is one of the most important negotiated either uptown or downtown. The floors are being specially designed for the occupancy of the tenant, and this work is being handled by York & Sawyer and John Sloan, architects, representing the owners of the building, and Starrett & Van Vleck, architects, representing the tenant. The executive offices of the leasing company, with directors' rooms, etc., will occupy a special open office, taking in two floors, which will give a height of about 25 feet, along the 42d st side of the building.

In selecting this building, Mr. Holland, president of the leasing company, stated: "Our company has selected the Pershing Square Building for its permanent home because we believe that this building, with direct entrances to the Grand Central Terminal, all subways and the Queensborough Tube, gives us the best central location in the Metropolitan district. Not only will our new offices be more convenient to our many agents coming from out of town, but, regarding accessibility for our staff, we believe the location of the building is almost ideal, because by subways, tubes and rail it taps New Jersey, Brooklyn, Queens and Westchester." The Pershing Square Building covers a plot measuring 125 feet on 42d st and 200 feet on Park av. The cost of the ground and building will be nearly $10,000,000. The same brokers have one other important negotiation pending for a similar amount of space in the building, and it is stated that several other important leases will shortly be announced.

New Branch Post Office

Through a $750,000 transaction closed late last week, the Government is to have a new sub-postal station on the plot at 203-209 West 69th st, west of Amsterdam av. This station will replace the one now at the northwest corner of 69th st and Broadway, which is inadequate to handle the growing business of the district.

The plot, measuring 78.8x100.5, was purchased by Francis B. Robert from the Campion estate and James McLaughlin. The new owner has concluded necessary negotiations with the Government, through which it will be leased to the Post Office Department for 20 years at an aggregate rental of $750,000. Mr. Robert will also erect the building, which is to be completed by October 1. S. D. Cooper and John Hill were the brokers.

Bank Leases Bronx Corner

Rice and Hill leased for Marcus Loew Realty Corporation to Herman Bach, Jeweler, the store 1533 Broadway, in the Loew Theatre Building, for a long term of years, at a rental of about $1,300 per annum a front foot. For sixteen years prior to the demolition of the old buildings formerly occupying the site of the present Loew Building, Mr. Bach was at this identical location, and for a considerable portion of that time his rental was less than $200 per front foot. When the construction of the present building was commenced, Mr. Bach moved two blocks north on Broadway, where he has been located for the last two years.

BUILDING SECTION

Contract Awarded for $5,000,000 Addition to Macy's Store

Marc Eidlitz Sons, Builders, Will Construct Nineteen-Story Annex in Herald Square, from Plans by Robert D. Kohn

PERCY S. Straus, Vice President of R. H. Macy & Co., has announced the award of a general contract to Marc Eidlitz Sons for the construction of a nineteen-story department store annex to the firm's present building in Herald Square. The new structure will occupy frontages in Thirty-fourth and Thirty-fifth Streets and will adjoin the present store building on the west. The new building and the changes required in the original structure will cost approximately $5,000,000 and will give this store a total of about 1,500,000 square feet, or nearly forty acres of floor space.

The announcement of the decision to begin work immediately upon this large addition to Macy's was made in connection with the sixty-fourth anniversary of the establishment of the business. Mr. Straus, in discussing this project, declared that in 1902 his father estimated that the then new store in Thirty-fourth Street could do just half of the volume of business the store is doing at present. Improved methods have been responsible for the great increase in trade which can be handled now but the store some time ago reached a point where radical expansions became urgent. Construction on the new annex will be pushed with all speed consistent with good construction and it is anticipated that the addition will be completed and ready for business in the autumn of 1923.

This large project will be erected according to plans and specifications prepared by Robert D. Kohn. The contract for the structural steel has been awarded to Levering & Garrigues and calls for 8,200 tons of fabricated material. This contract is said to be the largest single commitment for structural steel in this city since the Equitable Building was erected nearly ten years ago. A further interesting fact in connection with the award of this contract is that the price is said by the architect to be approximately that of the 1914 or pre-war level for fabricated material, which indicates the extent to which some of the important basic building materials have receded in cost since their high peaks of 1920.

In the study of these plans the architect gave careful attention to traffic conditions in the building and the new structure will be a model for its method of handling both merchandise and customers. The addition, with frontages of 125 feet in each street, will have a basement and sub-basement in which great elevators will transport automobile delivery trucks to the subterranean driveways, where one hundred and thirty cars may be handled at one time. Other large elevators and huge conveyors will carry incoming merchandise to the reserve stock floors, while additional elevators and a most complete system of escalators will be installed for the use of customers. It is planned that the major portion of the passenger traffic in the first eight floors of the new building will be handled by the double line of escalators which will carry passengers up and down. The upper floors will be served by electric traction elevators, with express cars for the topmost floors. The eighth floor will be the highest in the combined building to which customers will go. This floor will be devoted to use as a restaurant and when completed will be the largest in New York City.

The floors from the ninth to nineteenth inclusive will be reserved for the use of the departments of this great enterprise that customers rarely if ever see. Space on these floors will be used for recreation, with locker rooms, rest rooms, etc., for the employees; marking, receiving, reserve stocks, etc. The executive offices and the departments devoted to advertising, accounting, mail order, bureau of investigation, training, planning and various other purposes will be located on the upper floors, and a large space will be set apart for use as a hospital, with emergency rooms, all completely equipped for instant service.

In describing the proposed addition to Macy's, Mr. Kohn, the architect, said that the new structure, which will conform with the old and form a part of a single edifice, will have facades of limestone and architectural terra cotta from grade to fifth floor levels, above which Harvard brick and terra cotta will be employed. The plans call for setbacks at the levels of the thirteenth and eighteenth floors in compliance with the Zoning Law.

Architectural League's Exhibition of Unusual Interest

Arts Tributary to Building Gaining in Popularity and Wide Range of Subjects Are Displayed in Harmonious Groupings

BROADER in its scope than ever before, the thirty-seventh annual exhibition of the Architectural League of New York, in the Fine Arts Building, 215 West Fifty-seventh Street, is a delight not only to the professions and crafts represented but to all laymen who enjoy the beautiful and who take pleasure in encouraging the artists and craftsmen responsible for its creation.

The exhibition opened with the usual League reception on Saturday afternoon, February 4, at which more than 2,000 friends of the organization were present to view the works of the past year. The display will be open until Saturday, March 4.

The Henry O. Avery prize for 1921 was awarded to Miss Grace H. Talbot, her winning exhibit being a bronze figurine called "The Novice." The special collaborative prize of $300 for the best design submitted by an architect, sculptor and mural painter, with $500 added to cover mounting expenses, was awarded to Francis J. Creamer, George Davidson and C. Paul Jennewein.

Architectural League medal awards for 1921 were as follows: Architecture, Walker & Gillette; painting, to Ezra Winter, for his decorations in the new Cunard Building; sculpture, to Leo Lentelli, for the flagpole to be erected at the Rice Stadium; and in landscape architecture, to Olmstead Brothers, for photographs of work in Cleveland, O., and Brookline, Mass. The medal in native industrial art was awarded to Samuel Yellin, who exhibits some finely wrought iron and steel from designs by Walker & Gillette.

One of the new and interesting features of this exhibition is the series of small model rooms designed by mural painters with the fundamental idea of showing that mural decorations need not be restricted to public and monumental buildings but are appropriate in homes of simple construction and moderate cost and inexpensive furnishings. These model rooms are of more than passing interest and cover a wide range of subjects.

The exhibition galleries are marked by several exhibits imposing in size and character. In the Vanderbilt Gallery

Leo Lentelli, winner of the League Medal for sculpture, has his large flagpole base for the Rice Stadium at Pelham Bay Park and his much more distinguished reliefs for the Straus Building. Flanking the flagpole base are two superb decorative paintings on a very large scale, one by Ezra Winter for the Cunard Building, the other by Barry Faulkner, somewhat clearer cut in design. Both make a strong impression at long range.

In the Centre Gallery on the left is the elaborate model of the Harkness Memorial group of which James Gamble Rogers is the architect, enclosed in a cubicle made of the carved woodwork of the interior. On the right is a cubicle containing the plans and drawings for H. Van Buren Magonigle's Liberty Memorial in Kansas City, Mo., and other competitive designs, the central open space occupied by Robert Altken's moving and strongly modeled figure for the Lambs' War Memorial.

The art of building as distinguished from the arts tributary to it, is represented, as it was last year, by the photographs hung this time about the walls of the lesser galleries. This illustrative material points to a considerable accomplishment. In the industrial work there is the suggestion of great interest; such glimpses as we get of the freight terminal by McLanahan & Bencker, for instance, or Cass Gilbert's army supply base. Albert Kahn's storage building in Detroit relates itself to a similar interest.

There are traces of a vast amount of reconstruction, ranging from Walter Chambers's remodeling of No. 1 Broadway to the altered Connecticut farmhouse by William Dominick. Electus Litchfield's village is an essay in community design. A neighborhood pattern is afforded to a section of Montclair in a frankly foreign motive by Francis A. Nelson. C. Howard Crane's theatre, the Music Box, is beguiling. So is the candy store by Strickland, Blodget & Law. Among churches, soberly conventional, such as those by Allen and Collens, W. K. Rainsford, and others, a touch of originality in study of purpose and choice of forms brings forward the Park Avenue elevation by Delano & Aldrich. City banks are plentiful—Alfred Bossom's Seaboard National and several more.

sembly on Monday night, showing a net decrease of approximately $8,000,000 in this year's budget as compared with last year's total of $135,752,278. In submitting the bill, the Finance Chairman of the two houses, Senator Hewitt and Assemblyman McGinnies issued the following explanatory statement:

"The annual appropriation bill reported tonight totals $102,852,610.64. The annual appropriation bill of last year totaled $98,223,807.58, but objects which are cared for in the annual appropriation bill this year were provided for in separate bills last year. So that the annual appropriation bill of this year compares with a total of $112,445,081.77 for the same purposes in 1921, or a reduction in appropriations for similar purposes of $9,647,471.13. This reduction is made in the face of large increases in fixed charges carried in the Appropriation bill,

"The bill appropriates approximately $2,000,000 for construction work in the State hospitals. The appropriation will permit the progress of increasing the bed capacity and will round out the work already started at Kings Park, Central Islip, Middletown and Marcy, which, when completed, will increase the capacity of the hospital group by 1,600 beds. In addition to the construction thus provided for at the hospitals in the bill reported tonight, there was also made available by this Legislature an appropriation of $3,000,000 for the construction of a new hospital unit at Creedmoor.

"For the increase of terminal facilities and other improvements on the Barge Canal system the bill makes available appropriations aggregating $1,000,000."

Building Trade Employers' Association to Hold Annual Meeting

THE annual meeting of the Building Trades Employers' Association will be held in the rooms of the association, 30 West 33d street, Tuesday, February 21, at 3 p. m. The annual election of officers will be held on the same day and the polls will be open from 11 a. m. to 3 p. m. The nominating committee has presented the following slate: For president, Walter S. Faddis; for vice-president, A. J.

Rosenthal; for second vice-president, John J. Grace and for treasurer, J. Odell Whitenack.

At the annual meeting the reports of officers and standing committee, reviewing the work of the past year, will be read and discussed. There is also considerable new business of more than ordinary importance that will come before the meeting for action and the officers urgently request a full attendance.

Early Spring Building Revival Is General Prediction

Construction Statistics Tabulated by F. W. Dodge Company Indicates Extreme Activity in All Phases of Industry Throughout Coming Season

ACTIVITY in the local building industry has improved to a considerable extent during the past two weeks and practically every one affiliated with construction is now looking forward to an unusually busy spring and summer season. There are marked indications that the usual spring revival will commence earlier than it has in former years and that by early summer this locality will be in the midst of a real building boom.

According to statistics tabulated by the F. W. Dodge Company architects and engineers in New York State and New Jersey, north of Trenton, have already experienced the early season rush and contractors report that there has been a decided upturn to the volume of active construction. The report for the sixth week of 1922 shows that plans were announced for 474 new building and engineering operations at an estimated total cost of $20,916,100. During the same week 265 contracts were awarded in this territory for building projects that will cost approximately $16,259,700.

Residential construction is mainly occupying the attention of both architects and builders when the totals for the territory are analyzed but in some localities there has been a marked improvement in the volume of projected commercial and industrial building. Manhattan is notable in this respect but in Brooklyn, Queens and the Bronx along with some of the near-by suburbs the major portion of the work to be undertaken during the coming season will be residential in character.

The list of 474 proposed building operations announced during the week of February 4 to 10 inclusive was made up of the following groups: 82 business and commercial projects such as stores, offices, lofts, commercial garages, etc., $3,851,500; 15 educational buildings, $1,410,000; 3 hospitals and institutions, $25,000; 12 factories and industrial plants, $515,000; 3 structures for the Army and Navy, $30,000; 2 public buildings, $10,000; 11 public works and public utilities, $888,300; 10 religious and memorial buildings, $360,000; 328 residential projects, including apartments, flats and tenements and one- and two-family dwellings, $13,287,300 and 8 social and recreational buildings, $539,000.

Among the 265 operations for which contracts were awarded during the week were 37 business projects $1,048,000; 5 educational buildings, $181,000; 7 factory and industrial buildings, $674,000; 2 military and naval structures, $25,000; 6 public works and public utilities, $1,995,700; 3 religious and memorial structures, $147,000; 202 residential operations of various types, $12,153,000, and 3 social and recreational projects, $36,000.

Death of John J. Nutt

John J. Nutt, who as a member of the editorial staff of the Record and Guide was well known to many prominent building and real estate men in New York City, died suddenly at the home of his son, Clifford H. Nutt, 272 East 163d Street, Monday evening, February 6. His death was caused by heart trouble, following a short illness from bronchial pneumonia.

Mr. Nutt was born in Newburgh sixty-two years ago and received his education in the public schools at that city and the Newburgh Academy. As a young man he wrote numerous articles for the local newspapers and subsequently became a member of the staffs of the Newburgh News and the Newburgh Journal. Mr. Nutt was widely known in his home city and county through his book on "Newburgh," written in 1890-91, and also through his "History of Rockland County." He also wrote numerous special articles on historical and political subjects.

From 1891 to 1901 he was the editor of the Newburgh News and in 1902 he came to New York City as a member of the staff of the Record and Guide, and was associated with Clinton W. Sweet, its founder, as associate editor. During this association he was instrumental in establishing the Architectural Record and contributed to its editorial columns.

In 1917 he suffered a serious breakdown in health and was forced to discontinue his work with the Record and Guide. After his recovery, however, he became associated with the Yonkers Statesman as editorial writer and remained with that publication until its consolidation with the Yonkers Daily News last October. Since then Mr. Nutt had spent his time in travel. He was connected with numerous civic and religious organizations in Newburgh; was an officer of the Newburgh Volunteer Fire Department, secretary of the Newburgh Bible Society, member of the Hendrick Hudson and Hudson-Fulton Yacht clubs and of Newburgh Lodge, No. 309, F. & A. M. Mr. Nutt is survived by his mother, Mrs. Mary Lynn Nutt, and two sons, Weiland and Clifford H. Nutt.

ALTHOUGH weather conditions have been far from ideal for building the local situation is steadily improving and practically everyone identified with the industry is of the opinion that the coming months will witness one of the most active building seasons in history. There is a vast amount of new work being planned by architects and engineers and during the past week or ten days much important construction has been released for estimates. The awards of the past two weeks clearly show the trend of the industry in the increasing number of commitments for large projects in the Metropolitan district.

Common Brick—Aside from the sale of one barge-load there was nothing of interest in the New York market for Hudson River common brick. Inclement weather has obstructed building to considerable extent and although there is every prospect of early improvement in the building situation the wholesale brick market is likely to be lifeless until the ice in the river breaks up and it is possible for brick tows to get down from up-river yards. There is no need for anxiety on the part of builders as to a famine in common brick, however, as a number of barges are unloading at various docks in the Metropolitan district and dealers have adequate stocks on hand for all current requirements. Some brick is coming into the city by rail but high freight rates will preclude the possibility of continuing this method of transportation after the river is again open to navigation. Common brick prices in the wholesale market are firm at $17 a thousand and there is some rumor that higher prices will be asked for the three remaining barge loads.

Summary—Transactions in the North River brick market for the week ending Thursday, February 16, 1922. Condition of market: Demand extremely dull; prices firm and with an advancing tendency. Quotations: Hudson Rivers, $17 a thousand to dealers in cargo lots alongside dock. Number of cargoes arrived, none; sales, 1. Distribution: Manhattan, 1. Remaining unsold in the New York wholesale market, 3.

Lumber—Additional interest has been apparent during the past week in both wholesale and retail departments of the local lumber industry and there are marked signs that business will continue to increase until it reaches its maximum for the year early next summer. There are numerous predictions that the coming season will be historic as to the amount of new construction undertaken in this territory and material manufacturers and dealers are now making preparations for handling the business that will naturally result. Demand for lumber is excellent considering the time of the year and as there is more building being started all the time lumber interests are looking toward the future for very active trade conditions. At present lumber prices are firm and the market shows no signs of weakening. Wholesale prices are from $1 to $2 a thousand feet higher than they were a year ago and consequently retail prices are higher and firm. Supplies are adequate for all current demand but production at mill points is slow and some lumber dealers have recently expressed some anxiety about the possibility of a scarcity when the big demand comes next spring.

Structural Steel—Activity in the local steel market has improved to a very decided extent during the past week and the outlook is better than it has been for some time past. Recent commitments have amounted to a substantial total tonnage and include 8,200 tons for the addition to the R. H. Macy & Co. department store, to be furnished by Levering & Garrigues Co. The architect for this building stated that this order for fabricated steel was the largest awarded in New York City since the Equitable Building was erected nearly ten years ago. Architects and engineers have reported progress on plans for a large amount of new construction soon to be released for estimates and it is likely that commitments for the major portion of this work will be announced before long. Steel prices are fairly firm with no change in quotations on mill shipments and contractors quoting about $60 per ton for structural steel, fabricated and erected in commercial projects in New York City.

Builders' Hardware—Considerable buying activity has characterized this line during the past few months and there is every indication that business will increase steadily during the coming months. Dealers are stocking up for the spring building demand and manufacturers are all practically working on full time. At present prices are steady and no important changes are anticipated.

Window Glass—Improvement in the rate of demand was noticed during the past week, and the majority of jobbers feel that the buying slump is over. There is still a large amount of active construction with glass requirements still unfilled, and every indication that a large number of important operations will be in the market for window glass during the early spring. Prices are easier than they were several weeks ago and will in all probability hold hold to their present levels until spring.

Cast Iron Pipe—Demand holds good and for the most part manufacturers are optimistic about the future. Practically all of the Eastern pipe plants are running at about seventy-five per cent. of capacity which is far better than the situation one year ago. Orders from municipal sources are light at present although a considerable tonnage is scheduled to be awarded early next spring. Private buying, although light, is steady and at present the mainstay of the industry. Prices are firm with New York quotations $47.30 per net ton for 6 in. and larger; $52.30 for 4 in. and 5 in., and $62.30 for 3 in., with Class A and gas pipe $4 extra per ton.

Linseed Oil—The tone of this market has improved to some extent during the past week, but business is far from being upon a normal basis. Buying is light and inquiries are not quite as numerous as they should be at this time of the year. Jobbers are looking forward to a decided increase in spring business due to the excellent prospects for a building revival of large proportions. Prices are fairly firm and no changes have been reported during the week.

Nails—The market is quiet and practically without change of consequence. Demand is dull at present but there are evidences of an early improvement as a result of the steadily increasing volume of active building construction. There has recently developed considerable competition for all local nail business, and therefore prices are being shaded to some extent. It is stated that wire nails are being offered in New York City at $3.15 per keg, f.o.b. New York, and cut nails at $3.65 for lots of ten kegs or more, or for mixed lots.

Face Brick—The demand for face brick in the Metropolitan district is steadily improving and both manufacturers and dealers are looking forward to a very busy spring and summer building season. The large amount of apartment house and other residential construction on the program combined with an increasing volume of high class commercial building will stimulate the demand for face brick. Prices are unchanged.

A Positive Foundation Upon Which to Build

The Federal Reserve Board, in its January bulletin, declares that "the most encouraging feature of the business situation is that a positive foundation apparently has been established upon which to build development during 1922. Governor Harding believes that the country as a whole has passed safely the points of danger entailed in after-war deflation.

One positive foundation upon which real estate and construction interests can effectively build their business is regular, consistent advertising in

Wherein Lockwood Plan Is Weak

The Real Estate Board of New York is logical and convincing in its opposition to the bill which the Lockwood Committee has presented at Albany, permitting the investment by life insurance companies of 10 per cent. of their total admitted assets in the purchase of land and the construction thereon of apartment buildings in which the "average net rental of such apartment, tenement, or other dwelling house erected thereon, as estimated at the time of commencement of construction, be $9, or less, per month per room." In a brief sent to Albany for the enlightenment of the legislators the Real Estate Board exposes the dangerous possibilities of this measure and points out some of its most ambiguous features.

This measure, as drawn, applies to all cities of the first class, but it is a well-known fact that its sponsors expect its provisions to apply chiefly, if not exclusively, to New York City. Under its provisions life insurance companies are authorized not only to buy land and construct buildings for dwelling purposes, but they are authorized to hold the land and improvement, and to go into the business of renting, rent collection, etc.

The Lockwood measure raises a doubt as to what may be classed as "admitted" assets if so invested. The bill stipulates that land purchased by an insurance company shall not be allowed as an "admitted asset" unless improved, nor if improved shall the cost of such land and improvement thereon be so allowed "unless the average net rental of such apartment, tenement, or other dwelling erected thereon, as estimated at the commencement of construction, be $9, or less, per month per room." This presents a hard proposition to insurance companies, which necessarily would lessen their quick resources if partly invested in land not classed as an asset until improved by a building requiring months of construction work. There also remains the question of what shall constitute "net rental."

Entirely aside from the merits or demerits of the bill, however, the question arises as to why foreign companies doing business in this city, or New York companies also doing business in many other states of the Union, could be expected to invest ten per cent. of their assets in New York City property to help out the people of this city when these assets are derived from the premiums paid on life insurance policies held by persons living in other states. Policy holders outside of New York City undoubtedly would object to such a plan.

No one questions the desirability of attracting more mortgage money into the building field, but can it be reasonably expected that life insurance companies, or any other handlers of large amounts of money, would invest their funds in a scheme so speculative in character as the one covered by the Lockwood Committee plan? If it were proposed that life insurance companies be permitted to invest 10 per cent. of their assets in such mortgage loans as might appear safe to the company officials, without restriction as to the maximum rent per month which a room should produce, that would be one thing. But what this bill proposes is an entirely different matter, although, fortunately, the measure is permissive, and not mandatory, in its provisions. If it were mandatory it undoubtedly would be laughed out of the legislative halls.

If Senator Lockwood and his associates want to accomplish something really important in the way of protecting the mortgage loan market they might much better give their serious attention to the defeat of the Knight Bill, which seeks to amend the Banking Law so as to authorize trust companies and savings banks to invest their funds in Federal Farm Loan Bonds. This measure constitutes a very serious menace because, if it should become a law, the Western farmers would make a hard drive to get from New York institutions large investments in these bonds. The Farm Bloc which is now in the saddle in Congress has given the country a forceful illustration of what the Western farmers can accomplish when they set themselves to any given task. There is evidence that the success of the Farm Bloc in carrying out its selfish program at Washington has encouraged the organization of a somewhat similar Farm Bloc at Albany, having for its object the passage of legislation advantageous to the agriculturists of the state, regardless of the interest of all other classes. That the Farm Bloc at Albany is a force to be reckoned with was demonstrated early this week when its members won distinct victories in the Senate through the passage of measures re-organizing the Department of Farms and Markets and re-codifying the State Agricultural Law.

The Farm Bloc at Albany, according to dispatches from the State Capital, is out to do business. One of its chief objects is the passage of the Knight Bill, which might divert to other channels many millions of dollars which ought to be used for mortgage loans right here in the metropolis. The sinister suggestion has been made that the Farm Bloc may be prevailed upon to favor the extension of the life of the Lockwood Committee if the supporters of that plan indicate their willingness in turn to support the Knight Bill. If any such dicker should be made between the two elements at Albany it would constitute one of the most disgraceful incidents known at the State Capital in many years.

Way Cleared for Port Development

The New York Legislature now has joined the New Jersey Legislature in favorable action upon the plan which will make possible the systematic development of the port facilities in the Metropolitan District. Governor Miller and Governor Edwards both are supporters of the plan and no important obstacle to the carrying out of this great project is in sight.

Mr. Outerbridge, Chairman of the Commission, which has handled the preliminary work, says there will be no delay and expresses the pleasure of the Commission in informing the country that "The Port of New York is proceeding along progressive and systematic lines to make its facilities ample to take care of all the burdens that commerce will impose upon it."

Such efforts as have been made to inject politics into this great enterprise have failed. The way is now paved for the Port of New York to catch up with its opportunities, to come more nearly abreast of the times, and to check, through the possession of better facilities, the diversion of commerce from this to other ports. Co-operation in this project between the Federal Government and the state governments of New York and New Jersey must prove of tremendous advantage to all who use the Port of New York or have a genuine interest in it.

Hearing at Albany on Life Insurance Loan Bill

Albany, Feb. 23, 1922.

THE Lockwood Committee's plan to permit life insurance companies to enter the real estate field, buy land, and build dwellings or apartments thereon, had a nearing before the Senate and Assembly Insurance committees, and its reception was cold.

Walter Stabler, Comptroller of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, said that the company was in sympathy with every move that would help in any way to improve housing conditions in New York City.

"If the bill is passed," said Mr. Stabler, "we will satisfy ourselves that we can, with absolute safety to the policy holders of the company, invest in real estate. We are not anxious to own real estate as an investment, but we would like to do something to help relieve the present stringency in dwellings. But I want to tell the members of this Committee that we will investigate this thing in dead earnest before we make any move. If we find that we can go into this project with safety to the policy holders, we intend to build, as a starter, one block of dwellings, which will probably cost us between $900,000 and $1,000,000. If that proves to be a success, we intend to ask the Board of Directors of the company for permission to go further into the matter. I cannot say definitely now what course we will take, but I can almost assure you that it will be favorable.

"It looks to us now as if dwellings could be erected to rent on an average of $9 per room per month. Of course we would want to obtain 6 per cent. on our investment with an additional 5 per cent. for amortization."

Edward P. Doyle, legislative agent of the New York Real Estate Board, produced evidence to show that if the legislature by any chance passes the law, and life insurance companies enter into the scheme for competing in the real estate field, private money will be driven from real estate markets, and construction work on new apartments will cease.

F. A. Matthews, a builder who in the last twenty years has constructed houses in which 25,000 people now live, told the committee that he would guarantee to build houses to rent for $7 a room a month if the measure became law. He said there was no reason why houses could not be built today to rent for that sum.

"Any one who is ready to invest money in real estate to relieve the present housing shortage," said Mr. Matthews, "ought to be encouraged, and for that reason I think this measure should be passed by the Legislature. When I first heard of the bill I thought I would be opposed to it, but after I read it I changed my mind. Its passage would be the best thing that has happened in the real estate field in years.

"The measure has a provision in it which says that the rooms must rent for not more than $9 a month, and I want to say right now that my company will guarantee to build homes if this bill is passed which will rent for $7 a month or less."

Leroy A. Lincoln, of the Metropolitan Life, told the Committee that if the bill were passed the company intended to go into the subject very carefully and that if it found that it would be possible to invest its money in such houses as the bill proposes without danger to policy holders, it would do so.

Elias H. Cohen spoke against the plan, as did Stewart Browne, president of the United Real Estate Owners' Association.

Members of the Lockwood committee are studying "their" report this week to find out what they are to "recommend." This report was written at Palm Beach by Chief Counsel Untermeyer, and sent to Albany in sections. Section after section of the report has come from the south, with a string of recommendations, drastic, widespread and lengthy. One proposal is that the state take over the regulation of rates of all insurance companies, including fire and casualty companies. Mr. Untermeyer claims that insurance costs eat up six per cent. of building expenditures today, and says these represent enormous profits.

Executive sessions of the Lockwood committee are scheduled for every day this week, so that each phase of the report and the recommendations, can be considered in detail.

Record and Guide Annual for 1921 a Valuable Volume

ISSUED at an earlier date than in many years, the Annual Number for 1921 of the Record and Guide Quarterly is now ready for delivery. The year was an active one in large transactions and well diversified in medium-sized and small sales, and the Annual reflects the good bottom that characterized the real estate market for the twelve months it covers. It was a year that brought many substantial investors into the market, as well as a wide range of professional operators. The greater part of the summer was unusually active for that season of the year. As a reference book on everything pertaining to the real estate market of the year last past this volume of 641 pages is invaluable. It contains all of the Manhattan records from January 1 to December 31 inclusive.

Arranged geographically, chronologically and alphabetically, all of the records, of whatever kind, may be easily found by the subscriber. It is the most complete publication covering the field issued anywhere. In one volume are all conveyances, mortgages, leases, wills, real estate appraisals, assignments of mortgages, satisfied mortgages, auction sales, release of dowers, contracts, agreements, consents, assignments of rents, powers of attorney, designation, resignation and appointment of new trustees and executors, etc., extension of mortgages, participation and subordination, agreements of mortgages, cancellations and surrenders of leases, new buildings and alterations, together with cross references for the entire year. This is why the Annual is an indispensable adjunct of every up-to-date real estate office. The attorney's name in all mortgages and cross reference to appraisals is included.

As a quick reference to old business and as a stimulus to new business the Record and Guide Annual should be in the hands of every real estate owner, operator, agent or broker. The new volume fully sustains its past reputation for complete performance of the service it undertakes to give to its subscribers.

HEALTH DEPARTMENT figures show that the death rate in New York City for adults and children was the lowest in 1921 of any year since the records have been kept.

The general death rate was 11.17 per 1,000 population. In 1920 the rate was 12.93. Ten years ago it was 16, and twenty years ago it was 20. Fifty years ago it was 30 per 1,000 persons.

The infant death rate was 71.1 per 10,000, the lowest, Dr. Copelands reports, in any great city. In 1920 this rate was 85.

REAL ESTATE SECTION

First Appellate Division Fixes 8% as Reasonable Rental

Holds Basis of Calculation of Yield After Deduction of Expenses Is on Fair Valuation of Property Unencumbered by Mortgages

A REASONABLE rental return to the landlord has been adopted by the Appellate Division, First Department, as that which will yield eight per cent on the fair valuation of the premises as though they were unencumbered by mortgages.

This decision agrees substantially with that of the Appellate Division in Brooklyn and of Judge Learned Hand in the Federal District Court both rendered last Fall. Justice Shelby in Brooklyn laid down five rules for guidance in fixing rentals—to determine the present fair market value; the gross rentals; the operating expenses for the last year; deduct operating expenses from gross rentals giving net; net rentals not to exceed ten per cent of the present value. He added that rental value is in no way affected whether the property is mortgaged or by change of ownership.

Judge Hand took the assessed rather than the market value as a basis for calculating the return and allowed eight per cent as a reasonable rental and stated that the lessor is entitled in each case to that portion of the reasonable rental of the whole building which the value of the tenants accommodation bears to that of the aggregate tenants.

The latest decision was rendered in the case of the A. C. & H. M. Hall Realty Co. against Leon Sidney Moos involving the rent of an apartment at 251-255 West Ninety-eighth Street, reversing the judgment of the Municipal Court rendered in favor of the plaintiff, and ordering a new trial. Sixteen cases were involved in the appeal, having been tried together under a stipulation that the same evidence should be applicable to all of them. Louis W. Stotesbury appeared as counsel for the plaintiff; Samuel Untermeyer and William Unger for the defendant; and Lewis M. Isaacs for the Real Estate Board of New York. The opinion was delivered by Justice Samuel Greenbaum and concurred in by Justices John Proctor Clarke, Victor J. Dowling and Walter Lloyd Smith, and dissented from by Justice Alfred R. Page. The opinion follows:

The pleadings in all of the cases are substantially alike. The complaint alleges that the defendant was in possession of certain designated apartments in one of the two adjoining apartment houses located respectively at 251 and 255 West 98th Street, Borough of Manhattan, under a written lease from the plaintiff, which expired on September 30th, 1920, and that defendant wrongfully held over and continued in possession after the expiration of the lease without the permission of the landlord. Judgment was demanded for the reasonable value of the use and occupation of the premises at the rate of $250 per month.

The answer, in addition to a general denial, sets up the affirmative statutory defense that the rent is unjust, unreasonable and oppressive. The judgment awarded against the defendants in the 16 cases covering the months of October, November and December, 1920, were from 60 to 70% higher than the rents under their leases which expired on September 30th, 1920.

It is the contention of the respondent that the evidence did not warrant the conclusions of the Trial Justice. A bill of particulars, as required by Chap. 944 of the Laws of 1920, was filed by the plaintiff. The apartments under consideration are in two adjoining buildings known as 251-255 West 98th Street, which constitute one unit, and which are operated as a unit. The two buildings are substantially identical in size and character, excepting that on the roof of No. 251 is an apartment of four rooms and two baths described as a "pent house." All of the other apartments, with the exception of two of them, one in each building, which have five rooms and two baths each, consist of six rooms and two baths each. The assessed valuation of the two houses for the year 1920 was $400,000 and for the year 1921, $450,000. One of the properties is subject to a mortgage of $190,000, bearing interest at the rate of 5½%, and the other is free and clear of incumbrances. The bill of particulars alleges that the plaintiff purchased the land on which the buildings were erected at a cost of somewhat over $173,000, and that the buildings were constructed in 1913 under the supervision of the plaintiff at a cost of upwards of $349,000, making the total cost of the land and buildings somewhat upwards of $522,000. The actual operating expenses from October 1st, 1919, to September 30th, 1920, omitting interest on the mortgage and including water rates and insurance, agent's commissions and an item designated as allowance for "depreciation" of $7,944.00, are stated to have been $37,793.21. Adding thereto the sum of $9,920.00 the taxes for the year, total expense for maintenance would be $47,885.00, thus leaving a net income of $27,171.79. In the foregoing resume we have omitted the item of interest on the mortgage, since we are of the opinion that the return or profit in this class of cases should be calculated upon the basis of the value of the property regardless of any mortgage thereon.

The bill of particulars also sets forth details of the estimated cost of maintenance and other deductions for the year commencing October 1st, 1920, and ending September 30th, 1921, which aggregate $87,976.00, and include interest on the mortgage and a number of items which were not embodied as items of expense for the preceding fiscal year. Deducting the item of interest on mortgage, the total estimated expense for the year ending September 30th, 1921, would be $77,526.00, which is an increase over the preceding year of $29,812.79.

Upon the trial plaintiff assumed the burden of proving that it was entitled to largely increased rentals, owing to the increased cost of maintenance and the enhanced value of the property in October 1921. The decision of the Trial Court does not disclose upon what findings of fact the judgments were predicated. It therefore becomes necessary to analyze the proofs for the purpose of ascertaining whether there was sufficient, competent and proper evidence to uphold the judgment.

The testimony in behalf of the plaintiff on the subject of the market value of the properties was given by four witnesses. One was a real estate agent having charge of a large number of apartment houses in the neighborhood where the property is located. Another was a real estate owner and agent and the two remaining ones were real estate owners and builders. These witnesses were in substantial accord that the value of each building was about $300,000, and each lot about $100,000, making the total value of both properties $800,000, a sum nearly $300,000 more than the properties cost the plaintiff in 1913.

The testimony of the agent demonstrates that he was absolutely incompetent as an expert on present values. His testimony was not based upon any experience in cases of sales, but was simply an expression of his opinion. He constantly kept saying that the figures given by him were what he thought the properties were worth. In our opinion his testimony lacked any probative force and should have been disregarded. Incidentally it may be said that this witness is a member of the firm which is the agency in control of other properties belonging to the plaintiff.

The witness who was both an owner and an agent merely estimated the value of the buildings upon an arbitrary calculation of present cost of construction, without showing his qualifications, based upon the cubical contents of the buildings multiplied by 60c per cubic foot, thus reaching a figure of about $400,000 as the value of each building, including the land. He also testified that in 1913, the cost of construction was 42 cents a cubic foot.

The third witness was a real estate owner and a builder, who testified that he had purchased property in the neighborhood. His testimony on values was given as the result of computations of present cost of construction mentally made by him, based upon the amount of steel and plaster and the number of bricks and the quantity of excavation which he thought would be necessary in the construction of the building, without giving any details of quantity or prices. He had made no written calculations. His testimony on cross-examination as to the cost of construction in 1913 is as follows:

Q. And you simply knew the general type of construction?

A. Yes.

Q. How much a cubic foot did the Hall building (meaning plaintiff's building) cost to build?

A. Well, we will say around sixty cents a cubic foot.

Q. In those days?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you hear Mr. Sharpe testify here this morning that the cost of that building was forty-two cents a cubic foot?

A. I heard him testify, but I didn't pay any attention; I don't know."

The remaining witness as to market value of the properties was a builder and owner, who had erected apartment buildings and who had purchased and sold buildings between 110th and 72nd Streets in the City of New York. He testified on his direct examination that he had examined the buildings two days before he testified, and that in his opinion they would cost $312,500 to "build today" without carrying charges. He gave it as his opinion that the value of the building and land today was $412,500 for each house. When asked upon cross-examination if the figures he gave as to the value of these two buildings were the cost of replacement today, he answered, "If I were giving the value of those buildings at the cost today, they would be worth $550,000 apiece."

"Q. Didn't you testify just a moment ago, I think on direct examination, that the value of these buildings was three hundred and twelve thousand five hundred dollars, because of what it would cost to build them today?"

A. No. Counsel asked the stenographer to read the witness' testimony. The witness then stated: "If you want to know what I said, I said they would cost today $312,500 without carrying charges." Then there was a question asked as to the value."

"Q. What do you mean by carrying charges?"

A. The interest and taxes and other incidental expenses which are incurred during the construction of the building, such as the building loan operations, which amount to quite a little." When asked what the carrying charges on the building during the time of construction would be, he answered about $35,000 a building. It is quite apparent that the testimony of the witness was reckless. It is a matter of judicial experience that expert opinions of real estate values are of the most unsatisfactory character. Touching upon this subject in City of Knoxville v. Knoxville Water Co., 112 U. S. 18, the Court stated: "That most unsatisfactory evidence, the testimony of expert witnesses employed by the parties."

It is our opinion that the so-called opinion testimony given in this case as to the value of the properties, was most unreliable in character and most unsatisfactory in any aspect.

The first witness whose testimony we referred to, merely said what he thought the property was worth, regardless of any experience on his part in effecting sale or knowing of sales of similar property in the neighborhood. In the case of the other witnesses their opinions when probed were not based upon any actual experience of sales, but upon present reproduction value of the property in question.

In Brooklyn Borough Gas Company vs. Public Service Commission, 17 State Dept. Rep. 81, 98, 99, former United States Supreme Court Justice Hughes, acting as referee, aptly observed in his opinion: "To base rates upon a plant valuation simply representing a hypothetical cost of reproduction at a time of abnormally high prices due to exceptional conditions, would be manifestly unfair to the public." We may take judicial notice of the fact that during the past few years the excessively high price of building materials and other factors that enter into building construction work have discouraged the erection of buildings for dwelling purposes. Reproduction value during such an abnormal period is not a fair test of property valuation for the purpose of fixing fair rental values under the emergency rent laws. The natural law of supply and demand is not applicable to an abnormal period any more than would the law of supply and demand be favorably considered by the courts in justification of the existence of monopolies controlling the necessities of life. It is, of course, difficult to formulate an absolute rule for ascertaining the base upon which the fair rental return to the landlord is to be calculated, at a time when a fair market value is not ascertainable. It seems to us that, where it can be shown that there was an existing market value of property before the period of abnormality set in, it would be proper to accept such proof if competently given, taking into consideration at the same time the cost of the property when the owner purchased it or constructed the building, its assessed valuation, actual bona fide sales of similar property, if any, in the vicinity, and such other facts and circumstances as may be pertinent in a given case, in order to fix the fair value of the property for the purpose of determining a fair rental.

The testimony in this case bearing upon the market value of the properties, aside from its inherently unsatisfactory character, was based on an erroneous theory, and hence has no probative force.

In addition to the abortive attempt to prove market value, there was testimony given in behalf of the plaintiff by a witness who qualified as a real estate agent of many years experience, familiar with the renting of apartments in the neighborhood of the property in question, who testified as to what he considered was a fair rental for the premises in question.

Under the Rent Laws it devolved upon the Court, or the jury in the event of a jury trial, to determine what a fair rental was. The Rent Laws were enacted to combat the "Unreasonable" rents which the Legislature found were oppressively being exacted. To permit a witness to give his opinion as to what he thought was a fair rental based upon prevailing oppressive rentals would be to permit a usurpation of the functions of the court or jury. Besides the lack of competent evidence of values, the record discloses errors in the admission of items affecting the expenses for maintenance for the year ending September 30th, 1921, to which respondent made objection. These are: Pro rata share in Federal and State taxes, $3300.00; rental losses estimated at $5864.50; telephone service at $1250.00; sundries, $800.00; and salaries and office expenses, $10,000.00.

The items of Federal and State taxes refer to income taxes. Income tax is a tax on profits as such. We are here merely concerned with determining the profits to which the landlord is entitled upon the investment in the two buildings under consideration. The tribute that the landlord must pay to the Government by reason of the income derived from the property in question and from other sources may not be foisted upon the tenant. The tenant, too, is expected to pay taxes to the Government upon his income, but he is not required to contribute towards the payment of the landlord's income taxes. As to the item of rental losses, the case is barren of any proof showing the experience of the plaintiff with respect to such losses. Rental losses would be a proper charge in connection with the expenses for operating an apartment building. But there must be some proof offered showing the past experience in respect of such losses, upon which an estimate of probable losses in the future may be fairly made. The experience of rental losses is particularly important during a period when housing facilities were restricted. Vacancies would necessarily be fewer under existing housing conditions than during a normal period. In the absence of evidence in the matter of vacancies no estimate as to rental losses could be made by the Court, and that item, therefore, must be eliminated from consideration.

The item for telephone service of $1250.00 paid to the Telephone Company, was absolutely unwarranted for the reason that it was conceded by the landlord that the tenants more than repaid the actual money paid to the Telephone Company for the yearly service. The only proper charge in connection with telephone service would be the expense incurred by the landlord over and above the reimbursements therefor made by the tenants. But such evidence was not adduced from the trial. As to the item of $800 for sundries, there was not the slightest proof as to what these sundries consisted of. The item of $10,000 for salaries was properly stricken out by the Court, and it must be assumed that it was not taken into consideration by the Trial Court as an item of expense.

Among the "operating expenses" for the year ending September 30th, 1920, there was an item in the bill of particulars for "allowance for depreciation" of $7944.00, and in the statement of "estimated cost of maintenance" for the year ending September, 1921, there were the following two items: "2% depreciation, $6456.00;" and "1% obsolescence, $3178.00."

It seems to us that "obsolescence" was not allowable in the case of a comparatively new fire-proof apartment building, for the reason that there was no evidence that such buildings were obsolete or were becoming obsolete in the locality in which they were. "Depreciation" is a different matter. Such an allowance would be proper; but the proof in this case that 2% is a proper percentage for depreciation was not satisfactorily established. Thus we understand that the Federal Government, in the enforcement of the income tax law, permits an annual loss on fire-proof apartment buildings to the extent of 1%. The percentage allowable upon a fire-proof building assuredly should be less than upon an ordinary brick and masonry building.

As heretofore mentioned, the estimated cost of maintenance from October 1st, 1920, to September 30th, 1921, was $87,976.00, from which should be deducted the items which we have criticized and disallowed, aggregating about $26,000, as also the item of interest on mortgage, amounting to $10,450, thus making the estimated cost of maintenance the sum of $51,506.00.

The judgment appeal from fixes the amount of the defendant's rent in the instant case at $475 for three months, which is equal to an annual rental of $1900. The annual rentals thus adjudged in the other fifteen actions are $1000 for the "pent house," $1800 for the five-room apartment occupied by the defendant Lichtenstein, and from $2000 to $2300 for each of the remaining twelve occupancies of six rooms. The adjudged rentals of the sixteen apartments aggregate $33,000, or an average of $2100 for each apartment. The evidence is that there are 55 apartments in the two buildings consisting in all of 326 rooms. At an average rental of $2100 per apartment, the 55 apartments would yield an annual gross rental of $115,500. Deducting from that figure the sum of $51,506, the established cost of maintenance, we find an annual profit of $63,994. If the value of the property be assumed to be $800,000, it would show substantially an 8% return. But, as pointed out, the evidence does not warrant any such valuation. Eliminating the incompetent evidence, a valuation of more than $523,250, the cost of the property in 1913 would not be justified. Even a lower valuation might be found, if we take into account the 1921 assessed valuation of $450,000 on both properties.

In this connection we would state that, in our opinion, in cases of this kind, the rental should be based upon the fair percentage of profits upon the fair valuation of the premises as though they were unencumbered by mortgages. It is true that upon that basis an owner of the equity therein would apparently receive a higher return upon his investment than the owner of an unencumbered fee. But so far as the tenants are concerned, the adoption of the methods of calculation based upon an unencumbered fee valuation would result in the establishment of a fairly uniform scale of rentals of similar properties, and it would at the same time obviate the necessity of determining, in case of ownership of mortgaged premises, the cost of procuring loans, brokers' commissions and other charge and simplify the trial of this class of actions. We also think it might not be amiss to express our views as to what would be a fair percentage of return on the fair value of the property under existing conditions. What such a percentage should be is not readily determinable. It would necessarily vary with market fluctuations of the rates of interest or returns on other classes of investments. There is however a limit which we believe impartial thinkers will agree should not be exceeded, giving due heed to prevailing financial and industrial conditions. It seems to us that the fair net return on the valuation of unencumbered properties under existing circumstances should be 8 per cent.

Upon the basis of an 8% return upon an unencumbered fee valuation of the property at $523,250, the landlord, upon the proofs in the instant case, would be entitled for the year ending September 30th, 1921, to a net income of $42,580. To secure such a net income, the gross rentals must aggregate $94,086, which is reached by adding the desired net income of $42,580, the estimated cost of maintenance of $51,506. Dividing the figure $94,086 by 55, the total number of apartments in both buildings, we obtain an average rental of $1,700 per year. We have merely made the foregoing demonstration upon the admissible evidence for the purpose of establishing that the judgments appeals from were not justified. In our opinion the judgments were properly reversed.

The determination of the Appellate Term must be affirmed with costs, the court held, and judgment absolute rendered against the plaintiff upon its stipulation, with costs.

Weak Spots Exposed in Lockwood Insurance Loan Bill

Real Estate Board of New York Point Out to Legislature Dangerous Features of Ambiguous Measure Which Imperils Interests of Policyholders

THE Real Estate Board of New York has sent to the Joint Legislative Committee on Housing at Albany criticisms and suggestions relative to the bill which proposes to amend the Insurance Law by extending the powers of insurance companies to permit "every life insurance corporation, foreign or domestic," which does business in the State, to go into the building business, in all that that implies, limiting, however, this novel extension of authority to the building of dwellings and apartment houses; and limiting the "investment" in these enterprises to 10 per cent. of the total "admitted assets" of such corporations, reported to the Superintendent of Insurance as of December 31, 1921. The memorandum follows:

"The cost of the land acquired as sites for these dwellings and apartments must be improved in order to be allowed as admitted assets, and the cost of the buildings so provided will not be so allowed unless the average net rental value of such apartment, tenement or other dwelling house erected thereon, as estimated at the commencement of construction, be nine dollars or less per room, per month. These new powers granted to the life insurance companies, are to continue until March 1, 1924, and so long thereafter as the emergency in housing * * * shall continue. The ostensible purpose of this bill is to increase the volume of housing for the poorer

"The Real Estate Board of New York second to none would welcome an increase in the supply of housing for all classes, at rents within the means of those in need of such housing. The Board has a vital interest in this matter, not only in the abstract, but because its membership, inclusive of property owners, business, commercial and industrial concerns, represents a large employing class, who appreciate the importance of adequate, sanitary and moderate-priced housing for those in their employ, as well as other conditions of living which make for the health, welfare and morals of those in moderate and poorer circumstances. It therefore owes a duty to its members and to the whole community to scrutinize all measures affecting the housing situation, and weigh equally the merits and defects of such measures.

"The Real Estate Board of New York has a further interest in this bill because its membership includes a great number who are policy-holders in the life insurance companies. For these reasons the Board presents the following analysis of "This bill, like others introduced by the Joint Legislative Housing Committee during 1920 and 1921, is predicated on a 'housing emergency.' The Real Estate Board is convinced, and has stated to the Joint Legislative Housing Committee, that whatever color may have been lent to the claim two years ago that a housing 'emergency' existed has long since faded; that an almost unprecedented amount of housing construction in 1921 has converted a temporary shortage of housing into an almost sufficient amount of housing, though this has been produced at costs which the average wage-earner cannot meet.

"The business of producing housing is highly speculative. In normal times it is surrounded by a degree of risk which individual builders, or private corporations, have to assume. Errors of judgment, changes in market conditions, overproduction and so forth all lay speculative builders open to the hazard of financial loss.

"All this is beyond question. The history of speculative building in this city makes clear the fact that this form of enterprise is frequently disastrous to those who take the initial step in producing housing, namely, speculative builders. It is now proposed to permit the life insurance companies to embark upon an enterprise of this character, entailing the use virtually, for speculative purposes, of millions of dollars of the savings of the poor and thrifty, entrusted to these companies for the benefit of widows and orphans against the time of the decease of the breadwinner. Is there not grave reason to think that the Legislature would be acting unwisely in granting this authority?

"In the past it has been not uncommon for these fiduciary corporations to be compelled, through errors in judgment or for other reasons, to foreclose on property upon which they have made loans and to carry these properties on their books and sometimes to dispose of them at a loss. In any event, they have not willingly continued to hold assets of this character. So sacred has the Legislature considered the trust placed in these institutions that it has prohibited their investing them in stocks and even in real estate, restricting such securities to certain specified investments, among them mortgages upon real estate. Their real estate holdings are confined exclusively to such buildings as may be needed in the administration of their business as insurers.

"It is now proposed to remove these wise restrictions. And while no one would question the conduct of these corporations under existing management, this high standard of efficiency or probity is not necessarily guaranteed for all time, nor even for so long a time as the Legislature might consider that 'an emergency' existed.

"Practical builders, and those having other than a theoretical knowledge of the housing situation, are aware that the crux of the matter is not lack of housing, but inability to produce housing at rents which the wage-earner and others of moderate means can afford to pay; and that the main reason for this condition is the fact that wages of labor in the building industry remain at war-time levels, while the income of wage-earners generally are declining.

"The proposed bill," the memorandum continues, "makes it incumbent upon the insurance companies to produce housing at an average net rental value of $9 or less per room per month, and this on a bare estimate of cost at the time of commencement of construction. But what is an average net rental value? To whom is it net? How much is net? Does it mean that this is to be net after all operating and maintenance charges are deducted? Does it mean that the net rent to the tenant shall be $9 per room per month?

"If it is net to the tenant, it is difficult to see how such housing is to be produced without assuming philanthropic aid indirectly from the insurance companies but actually from their policy-holders. And if, in any event, the plan in practice should prove a failure, the unsuccessful lands and houses would be among the 'not admitted' assets of the companies involved.

"If it is net to the insurance company or the owner, it assumes, first, a gross rent including all of the cost of maintenance and operation; in which case it is difficult to see how this will benefit the classes the plan is devised to benefit. Loans made recently by insurance companies to builders of housing have been on a basis of approximately 50%, or less, of value at present cost of construction, and they have also required amortization on a basis of 2% to 4% per annum. Both of these requirements have been to safeguard the interests of the policy holders. To what extent has the proposed plan taken this point into consideration?

"If now, in any event, the life insurance companies embark on a plan involving the keenest competition with their own mortgages, will it not have two obvious results, namely—(1) To jeopardize their own loaned funds; (2) To discourage those planning to provide housing and thereby to prevent the construction of, let us say, ten houses that might have been built privately for every one that would be built under the proposed plan?

"Aside from the foregoing, the bill, as drawn, is ambiguous in its terms. It does not seem to the Real Estate Board of New York to be sufficiently clear in its language, or specific in its provisions, to meet the requirements of a plan involving so radical a departure from the existing safeguards heretofore considered necessary to be thrown around the use of the funds entrusted to the safe-keeping of life insurance companies."

Interesting Program at Monthly Meeting of Building Managers

THE regular monthly dinner meeting of the Building Managers' and Owners' Association, held at the Advertising Club, Tuesday evening, February 14, although not so well attended as the January meeting, was most interesting. The speaker of the evening was Clarence H. Fay, former Commissioner of Public Works, and he gave some excellent advice and suggestions on the subject of co-operation with the city government.

Several committee reports were read which indicated not only the activities of the association but the intense interest that each committee is taking in its work, and showed also that the men chosen to carry on the activities of the association for the coming year were wisely selected.

After the routine business of the evening was concluded

William C. McTarnahan, second vice-president of the Petroleum Heat & Power Company, delivered an interesting lecture on "Fuel Oil." This lecture outlined the process of using oil for heat and power in commercial buildings and also described the equipment required and its cost as compared with coal.

Although the amount and value of 1921 exports were below figures for the preceding two years they were in general far above pre-war averages. According to a study made by the foreign commerce department of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, out of twenty principal exports only five show a decline, as measured in value, during the January to September period over the same nine months of 1909-1913.

Review of Real Estate Market for the Current Week

The Bronx Maintained a Steady Sale of Plots and Apartment Houses, While Manhattan Buyers Absorbed a Variety of Properties

THIS was not a spectacular week in real estate. There was a steady drift toward a good total business, involving fair-sized properties in Manhattan and the Bronx, with one or two exceptions that proved the rule. A tract of 65 lots in the Bronx held in one family for three generations was sold to a builder for improvement with high-class apartment houses. Several other plots not so large, but larger than ordinary, also changed hands there, for improvement along similar lines. Another feature of the Bronx market was the sale of numerous newly-finished apartment houses to investors.

Two important transactions recorded during the week were the sale of the Pathe Exchange, a 13-story loft building in West 45th street, and a 12-story loft building in West 36th street, the latter to the tenant. Both parcels are within half a block of Fifth avenue. The last-mentioned property was bought by a prominent furniture firm which until a few years ago was near the old Eden Musee property on West 23d street. Following the farther-north movement, this firm has found its final bearings for some time to come and has bought the property it leased when it first tried out the Fifth avenue section. The two sales total about $1,250,000.

The selling of all kinds of multi-family houses still continues steady. Medium-sized elevator apartment-houses are in good demand. Many of the latter type in the northern reaches of Manhattan are changing hands. The tendency for business, both retail and wholesale, to creep into Harlem neighborhoods, more and more, is reflected in some of the sales made during this week, and during several weeks last past.

The Strand Chop House, which recently took a profit on the sale of its old quarters at 224-226 West 47th street, has shown its intention of sticking to its old neighborhood by buying the property 156-158 West 48th street, adjoining the Vanderbilt Theatre, which it will improve. Several medium-sized business holdings throughout the city changed hands.

Some interesting leases were effected during the week, notably a floor in the Heckscher building, a half floor or more in the Liggett building, and several large commercial leases farther south in Manhattan. A long leasehold in the Bronx was a strong feature of the market.

PRIVATE REALTY SALES.

THE total number of sales reported, but not recorded in Manhattan this week, was 76, as against 101 last week and 75 a year ago.

The number of sales south of 59th st was 18, as compared with 31 last week and 23 a year ago.

The number of sales north of 59th st was 58, as compared with 70 last week and 52 a year ago.

From the Bronx 44 sales at private contract were reported, as against 33 last week and 8 a year ago.

Statistical tables, including the number of recorded instruments, will be found on page 244.

Report of Register Annie Mathews

Register Annie Mathews has made public the annual report of the Register's Office for 1921, prepared from figures collected under the direction of her predecessor, County Clerk James A. Donegan. The financial receipts and the number of real estate transfers and mortgages show a decrease from 1920, which was a record year in the recording offices of New York City, but indicate a considerable advance over the figures for years preceding 1920. The main items of the report are:

	1921	1920	Average 1915-1919
Conveyance instruments recorded	16,115	21,501	11,390
Mortgage instruments recorded	19,916	21,141	10,672
Miscellaneous real estate papers recorded.....	981	888	732
Satisfactions of mortgages	7,559	7,261	4,635
Chattel mortgage instruments filed	84,806	80,275	85,537
Notary and commissioners' certificates	10,456	9,573	7,110
Chattel mortgage inspections cards	17,710	13,344	15,069
Last owners' cards.....	4,461	4,603	4,736

The revenues of the office from statutory fees in 1921 were $221,903.70, as compared with $242,489.95 in 1920, and a yearly average of $119,241.73 for the five years preceding 1920.

The receipts from taxes collected by the Mortgage Tax Bureau in 1921 were $1,511,771.76. Receipts from the same source were $1,782,135.37 in 1920 and the yearly average receipts from 1915 to 1919 were $808,357.87.

The expenses of the Register's Office in 1921 were $311,938.35. The cost of maintaining the office in 1920 was $246,415.43, while the average yearly expenses for the five years preceding 1920 were $247,875.89.

Register Mathews also reports that the number of real estate instruments recorded in January of the present year greatly exceeds that of January, 1921, and unusual activity in real estate is indicated by the increased number of transfers.

Conserving Yacht Club Property

In order to enable the Atlantic Yacht Club at Sea Gate, Brooklyn, to pay off its obligations and to permit the members to obtain a share of the stock in the valuable property, the trustees have originated a plan whereby the real estate will be vested in the Atlantic Realty Corporation, capitalized at $250,000. A share of stock will be presented to each member and, in addition, a limited amount of stock will be sold to each one. The club will continue to use the property under lease from the realty company and will pay the actual carrying charges and 6 per cent. on the realty company's stock.

The club was organized in 1866 and is one of the oldest in the country. Its club house, grounds and anchorage are favorably known to all yachtsmen. Sir Thomas Lipton has always made his headquarters there during the cup races.

Tenants Buy Big Building

The Flint & Horner Co., Inc., furniture dealers, purchased the 12-story building 20-26 West 36th st, which they have occupied under lease since the structure was put up about 8 years ago. The deal was negotiated by Samuel Kronsky for the Glenalla Realty Co. Conrad Hubert, president. The property was held at $600,000. The sale is regarded as an indication that the furniture trade is safely anchored in the shopping district to the west of Fifth av in the vicinity of 34th st.

The buyers occupy the entire building, which stands on a plot 65x98.9, between Fifth and Sixth avs. Title was taken in the name of the 20 West 36th Street, Inc., a holding concern for the new owners. The buyers operate a large factory on East 68th st. The sale is recorded.

Pathe Exchange Building Sold

Louis and Harry Ferguson bought through Slawson & Hobbs from the 35 West 45th Street Corporation the 13-story loft building 35-39 West 45th st, on a plot 50x100.5 known as the Pathe Exchange. It was held at $700,000. The sale is recorded.

Lexington Ave. Corner Sold

Harry B. Cutner sold for Fernando Bose, of San Francisco, to the Viga Realty Co., Inc. Mortimer L. Hanover, president, 61 Lexington av, northeast corner of 25th st, a 6-story brick building, on a lot 20x79.10. It is part of the structure known as the Hotel Belmore, the other part being 39.2x79.10.

The purchaser owns the other sections of the building which originally were separate dwellings. The entire plot is 59.2x79.10.

Lutherans Establish Social Center

Nehring Bros. sold for a client 1244 Madison av, adjoining the northwest corner of 89th st, a 5-story brick apartment house, on a lot 20x87.9. The buyer is a committee representing the Metropolitan District of the Walther League, a national organization of 600 Lutheran Young People's Societies. The building, after alterations and renovations, is to be used as a Lutheran hospice, providing accommodations for out-of-town Lutherans coming to New York on business or social visits. The Walther League maintains such Lutheran hospices in Detroit, Chicago, Milwaukee, Omaha, Washington, D. C., and Buffalo, N. Y. The purchase of this property was considered favorable in view of the fact that it is very closely situated near Emmanuel Lutheran Church, Lexington av and 88th st, one of the largest Lutheran congregations in the country. George H. Siebern is president of the Metropolitan District; of the Walther League, Gustav Zimmermann is Hospice Chairman and J. F. E. Nickelsburg is Hospice Secretary of the League.

Sells a South St. Parcel

It was held at $50,000. The purchaser will erect a 6-story elevator apartment house. Owing to the total frontage of about 227 feet, the plans will call for all front apartments.

Notable Broadway Improvement

Contracts have been signed in the sale of the Church of the Blessed Sacrament at the southeast corner of Broadway and 71st st to the George Dose Engineering Co., builders, who will improve the site with a 15-story apartment house, 112.10x175. The report of the sale of the church property was published last week. Edward M. Simmonds was the broker.

Restaurateurs Buy Plot

The La Hiff Realty Co., which operates the Strand Chop House at 224 and 226 West 47th st, and which recently sold the property at that address to the Greenwich Bank, has purchased the two old 3-story and basement dwellings, on a combined plot of 34x100.5, at 156 and 158 West 48th st, adjoining the Vanderbilt Theatre on the west. The properties were sold by Mrs. Felicie Foulton and the estate of Dr. Francis D. Buck, respectively. They were held at $120,000. James S. Woodward, who was the broker in the sale of the chop house property on 47th st, was also the broker in the present deal. The newly acquired property will be used for restaurant purposes as soon as alterations are completed.

Some Recent Buyers

Arthur H. Springer has acquired title to the New York Evening Post property at 255 to 265 West 33d st, sold recently. The seller had acquired the plot as a site for a newspaper plant, but changed its plans.

Dr. L. M. Lemich is the buyer of the block of six apartment houses sold on February 15, by the Realty Associates at 307 to 321 Flatbush av, corner of Prospect pl, Brooklyn.

Lillian Stimel, secretary of the Pulaski Babe Clothes, Inc., is the buyer of the northeast corner of Fifth av and 109th st, sold recently. The recorded price was $152,000.

A Car Barn Sold at Auction

The car barn property of the New York City Railways Co. on the west side of Madison av, between 85th and 86th sts, was purchased at auction on February 16, by M. Turner Brockway through his attorney, C. P. Northrop of 31 Nassau st, for $925,000. Mr. Brockway, through Mr. Northrop, announced that he intends to improve the plot with a high class family hotel at a cost of about $3,000,000. The site has a frontage of 204.4 feet on Madison av and 120 feet on each of the side streets. According to the recent action of the Board of Estimate in amending the Fifth av zoning district, 20 feet of the western portion of the plot cannot be improved with a building more than 75 feet, or about 7 stories in height.

The sale was conducted by Joseph P. Day in the County Court House at 11 o'clock for Nathaniel A. Elsberg, special master for the receiver of the New York City Railways Co. Before bidding on the property Mr. Northrop inquired of Mr. Day whether the site would be sold subject to the Fifth av zoning regulations. The auctioneer replied that it would be sold subject to the zoning laws and any other laws affecting the premises. Mr. Northrop, after making the highest bid, deposited $45,000 in certified checks and $1,250 in cash to guarantee the purchase, which is subject to the approval of the United States District Court.

Before the plot was offered in one parcel it was offered in four, the total high bids aggregating $760,000. It was then offered again in four parcels differently arranged as to boundaries and the bids for two of them indicated a boost of $10,000. The remaining two parcels, however, were not bid for at all under this arrangement.

The bid offered by Mr. Northrop, being so largely in excess of the other bids, was accepted provisionally by Nathaniel A. Elsberg, who was recently appointed special master in place of the late ex-Justice Francis M. Scott. The certified checks of the parcel bidders were returned to them.

It was then announced by Alexander Rossner, for Mr. Day, that if for any reason the sales should be set aside by the United States court the property will be reoffered on the steps of the County Court House on March 16, when the sale of the property of the railroad company on 33d st, between Lexington and Fourth avs, will be held.

The sale took place in connection with the receivership proceedings instituted by the Guaranty Trust Co. as trustee and the American Brake Shoe & Foundry Co. of New York of which Job E. Hedges was appointed receiver. Stetson, Jennings & Russell are attorneys for the Guaranty Trust Co.

I. Flugelman, proprietor of the Hotel Hamilton, is reported to be the actual buyer of the car barn.

Government to Sell 301 Dwellings

The United States Shipping Board will sell at Buckman Village, Chester, Pa., about 301 dwelling and apartment houses, on Saturday, March 18. Joseph P. Day has been commissioned by the Shipping Board to conduct the sale at Chester.

When the Camden and Bristol sales were held, last December, many people went away disappointed, being unable to purchase homes, and Chester, Pa., presents another opportunity, because it is only about 12 miles from Philadelphia, while Bristol was about 25 miles away.

Among the large concerns which have plants in the vicinity are those belonging to the Texas Oil Co., National Aniline Co., General Chemical Co., Sinclair Co., Sun Oil Co., Congoleum Co., Viscose Co. and the American Steel Co.

New Offices of Spear & Co.

Spear & Co. have opened a new real estate office at 1261 Broadway, where they have taken the second floor in the Martin Building, at the northeast corner of 31st st. A sales and renting department, with 15 brokers, will have offices here in addition to the industrial, insurance and publicity departments.

When Spear & Co. opened their first office in a small room at 63 Bleecker st in 1905, that neighborhood was the centre of the fur district. Tenth st was "away up-town," and the first big lease closed by the firm, which transferred a large cloak and suit firm from Division st to Tenth st, placed the latter firm at the extreme northern limits of the cloak and suit district. In 1908 the office of the firm was moved to Broadway and Washington pl, which was then the centre of the cloak and suit district. In 1914 a move was made to the corner of 13th st, at 840 Broadway.

When the move was made to 840 Broadway, the organization numbered eighteen. The growth of the staff to its present size of 46 persons and the increase of business north of 23d st led to the establishment of the present office at 31st st. The office at 840 Broadway is maintained.

Kenneally Indicted for Extortion

William P. Kenneally has been indicted on a charge of extortion by the Grand Jury, of which Robert Appleton is foreman. Robert P. Brindell, former president of the Building Trades Council, now serving a term in Sing Sing for extortion, was also named in the indictment, which was handed up to Justice Isidor Wasservogel in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court.

The indictment alleges that Kenneally and Brindell extorted $3,000 from Saul Blickman on February 21, 1920, when Blickman was erecting a building on Nelson av, Brooklyn. The evidence was submitted to the Grand Jury by Deputy Attorney General Timothy N. Pfeiffer and Assistant District Attorney Stanley M. Richter. The indictment was a result of information obtained by the Lockwood Committee.

Mortgage Loans

Edwards, Dodwney & Richart, in conjunction with Frank Sullivan, placed a loan of $240,000 for the Twelve John Street Corporation on premises 12-16 John st.

George Milne obtained a loan of $60,000 for 5 years on the property at Coney Island known as the Jefferson Baths, at 37th st, extending from Surf av to the new ocean front boardwalk now under construction by the city.

New York Title and Mortgage Co. made two building loans, aggregating $130,000, on the east side of Harrison av, 95 feet south of 180th st, Bronx, to the Poleck-Crause Building Co., Inc., composed of Morris Polky and Bernard Crausman, on two 5-sty and basement brick apartment houses.

Better Light, Better Production

Only an increase in the productiveness of machinery and of employees, it is commonly admitted, will bring about normalcy in prices and in trade. Maximum efficiency is needed. Maximum efficiency must be attained. The general public demands to share in the benefits that will result therefrom.

The methods employed in getting that maximum may vary widely with different businesses, excepting only in the proper use of light. Experience has proven that good light in any industry can raise production more than enough to pay the cost. But not that alone. In many instances production has been increased from 10 to 30 per cent. at a cost of from 1.9 to 5.5 per cent. of the pay roll.

The how and the why of all this is not a secret. The explanations and reasons given by the lighting engineer are as simple as they are logical.

Daylight illumination in well lighted factories usually ranges from 10 to 25 foot-candles and near windows, often from 50 to 200 foot-candles. Yet in artificial lighting, most factories employ an intensity of only 3 or 4 foot-candles. The eye, adjusted by nature to daylight, cannot maintain maximum production under such a disparity in light intensities.

Accidents resulting from eye fatigue, shadows and glare often prove serious and costly. Spoilage and inaccuracy, due to improper lighting, cause irretrievable and substantial losses. Labor turnover and discontentedness, too, is often only the effect of "lighting neglect."

Give a serious thought to Better Lighting. Plant, factory and office productiveness cannot reach its maximum point of efficiency until you do.

Our representatives will be glad to make a scientific Foot-Candle Meter Survey of your premises and suggest lighting improvements, if they are found to be necessary, without cost or obligation to you.

REAL ESTATE NOTES.

HERMAN A. LEWINE, of Lewine & Co., Inc., has been elected an active member of the Real Estate Board of New York.

W. D. AHRENS, formerly with Slawson & Hobbs, has formed a company under the name of W. D. Ahrens & Co., with an office at 3210 Third av.

R. E. LEIGH, who was associated with the Charles F. Noyes Co. for a period of years, has become associated with Charles B. Van Valen, Inc.

HERBERT McLEAN PURDY & CO. is a new firm of general real estate brokers and managers that has opened an office at 25 West 43d st. They were formerly with William A. White & Sons.

THE PETITION of many residents of Clafin av, Bronx, to extend that thoroughfare to Kingsbridge rd, heard by the local board, has been denied on opposition by Herman A. Brand, attorney, representing the Paragon Construction Co., which recently bought 169 feet on Kingsbridge rd.

FOR THE PURPOSE of changing the control of ownership of 147-149 West 57th st, a 5-sty brick building and a 4-sty and basement brick building, respectively, and each containing stores, a special meeting of the stockholders and directors of the company owning the parcels was recently held and the ownership was vested in Max Marx.

PEASE & ELLIMAN have been appointed by J. E. R. Carpenter, owner and architect, renting agents of the new 13-sty apartment house now being erected on the southeast corner of Fifth av and 72d st. The house will have apartments of 11 and 12 rooms and 4 baths, with one of each size on a floor. Those on the 12th and 13th floors will be duplex apartments of 12 rooms each with a private roof garden. In this house, a definite attempt will be made to erect the finest constructed building on Fifth av, without exception. Mr. Carpenter built the famous 907 Fifth Avenue, corner of 72d st, which took an architect's prize, but it is expected that this new house, which will be known as 920 Fifth av, will be a still finer structure.

BUILDING SECTION

Arthur S. Lukach, Engineer, Discussed Problems and Relative Costs at Y. M. C. A. Lecture Course for Real Estate Interests

ARTHUR S. LUKACH, engineer of the George Backer Construction Company, was the speaker last Tuesday evening in the lecture course on real estate and allied subjects being held at the West Side Branch of the Y. M. C. A. Mr. Lukach had for his subject "Modern Building Construction," and in his talk he outlined the various steps involved in erecting modern structures and included a description of the more common problems met with and their methods of solution. Although his subject was highly technical in character his presentation of the facts was interesting and instructive to all. Major S. Fullerton Weaver, prominently identified with the development of Park Avenue along modern multi-family housing lines, presided at this lecture.

"Modern building construction seems to hold an almost universal appeal for men and women of all classes and occupation," said Mr. Lukach. "Whether it is the almost human steam shovel removing huge portions of earth at the beginning of a job, or the steady climb skyward of column on column, the appeal is there, as evidenced by the interested street audience, row on row, who completely surround the structure during its early stage.

"If the next time you gentlemen watch a modern building in the course of construction, because of this lecture you are able to understand the why and wherefore of the various operations, or the place that the different materials occupy in the completed structure, I shall feel more than repaid for my effort this evening."

Mr. Lukach then gave a description of the various important steps that must be taken before a building operation is actually started. The survey of the site, the usual alternate bids for excavating both earth and rock, with frequent references to unit costs, were the subjects treated in that part of the lecture which preceded his remarks on the problems of building. The speaker's description of the usual methods employed in substructure work for large buildings compared the open-pit with the one in which steel and concrete piles is used. Interesting facts and figures were quoted as well as instances in which these methods were employed successfully in recently constructed buildings.

Following the course of an ordinary building operation through its various physical stages Mr. Lukach described the erection of the structural steel framework and the enclosure of the building with curtain walls of brick or other materials and outlined the manner in which the various elements are interwoven and tied together in order to create a beautiful and safe structure. Safe floor loads, factors of safety, and other important engineering considerations were brought out and the speaker also gave considerable data as to cost and volume of steel and other materials consumed in the construction of several prominent buildings erected during the past year or so.

"The remarkable feature of modern construction," said Mr. Lukach, "is the speed with which even the largest buildings are erected. Owners today demand that a structure be tenantable at the earliest possible moment, commensurate with good workmanship and a minimum of overtime. The result has been an effort on the part of experienced builders to have their various jobs so scheduled and planned in advance that the different trades step in at exactly the right moment and carry on their work with a sufficient quantity of men and material until completion.

"As I write these notes, there is a picture of a 16 story building in the course of construction in front of me. The brick work has reached the 7th floor, the concrete floor arches are up to the 11th story and the steel work has just been completed. On the other hand, but a stone's throw away, a building over 10 stories is being constructed. In spite of the fact that the steel and floor arches are complete, the brick and stone work has not reached the 2nd floor level.

"Stairs should be run almost simultaneously with the structural steel. The plumbing contractor should be at work on his house drains and sewer connections while the foundations are still being prepared. He follows closely on the heels of the concrete arch contractor in running his riser lines. As soon as the exterior walls enclose a floor, elevator and stairs partitions may be started. In cold weather the immediate glazing of all windows just as soon as they are in place is of extreme importance. At least one of the house elevators and preferably two, should be put into operation at the earliest possible moment, so that the temporary material hoist may be discontinued and the holes in the floors filled in. Architectural terra cotta (artificial stone) should be assorted on the floors where it is to be used and the individual pieces laid out in proper sequence according to the setting plan. If necessary it is preferably that this work be done on overtime rather than have the bricklayer stop his work to hunt for a certain piece. At the Heckscher Building alone 17,474 individual pieces of architectural terra cotta were set.

"A shortage of basic materials on a job, such as cement, sand, lime, terra cotta block, etc., except in rare instances, is generally due to negligence on the part of the superintendent. The orders for material manufactured out of town should be placed well in advance to take care of delays in transit. Last minute changes in plans can always be counted upon to retard the progress of a job and it is therefore advisable that all drawings be given the greatest attention before work has started.

"For rough approximation, the cost of a building before the plans are drawn, can be determined by a knowledge of the cost per cubic foot of similar buildings that have been erected. Thus today, apartment buildings would average 50c per cu. ft. while loft buildings with large open floors would run in the neighborhood of 25c-30c.

"While a general knowledge of the Building Code and Tenement House Laws of New York City is extremely desirable for those engaged in the real estate or building profession, there are certain important parts in both which should be familiar to those desiring to know the reason either for the use of various materials or certain architectural designs."

A brief outline of the principal provisions of the Tenement House Law was given by Mr. Lukach, and he also brought out some of the most important of the conditions imposed by the Building Code. He described at length the fireproofing requirements in both tenements and commercial structures, and laid considerable stress upon the provisions for safety from the fire hazard and the great need for greater care in constructing new buildings with full regard for the safety and comfort of those who will occupy them.

"I can think of no better way to close this very informal talk than to leave with you a short quotation from Ruskin," declared the lecturer, "which I am sure would serve admirably as a motto for every builder who holds his profession in high repute, 'When we build, let us think that we build forever. Let it not be for present delight, nor for present use alone. Let it be such work as our descendants will thank us for, and let us think, as we lay stone on stone, that a time is to come when these stones will be held sacred because our hands have touched them, and that men will say as they look upon the labor and wrought substance of them, 'See! this our fathers did for us.'"

"If builders everywhere would take this quotation to heart, there would be fewer theatres collapsing in various sections of our country."

Annual Meeting of Building Trades Employers' Association

Committee Reports Indicate Organization in Flourishing Condition—Walter S. Faddis Elected President for Ensuing Year

THE annual meeting of the Building Trades Employers' Association was held Tuesday afternoon, February 21, at the association headquarters, 30 West Thirty-third Street. President Hugh Getty occupied the chair and called the meeting to order promptly at three o'clock. Nearly one hundred members were present.

After a brief opening address by the president, Samuel B. Donnelly, executive secretary, read the minutes of the last annual meeting which were accepted and ordered filed. The annual reports of officers and standing committees followed. A. J. Rosenthal, first vice-president and chairman of the House Committee in his report submitted a statement of the business done by the restaurant, cigar counter and billiard room, all of which showed substantial profits. John J. Grace, second vice-president and chairman of the Finance Committee reported the association in excellent position financially and his report was confirmed by the detailed report of the treasurer, J. O'Dell Whitenack, which followed.

Samuel B. Donnelly, in his report analyzed the membership of the association and gave a summary of the numerical strength of the various trade organizations comprising the Building Trades Employers' Association. In the report of the Legislative Committee, Robert Christie, chairman, told of the number of bills scrutinized by the committee and their final disposition by the Legislature.

C. G. Norman, chairman of the Board of Governors, in his report briefly outlined the work of the association during the past year, showed what had been accomplished in settling disputes with labor through mediation and arbitration and then spoke of the building prospects for the coming year. The strike of the painters, as well as other difficulties over jurisdictional matters were disposed of without great loss of time and at the close of the year the employers and unions were working in complete harmony. Mr. Norman spoke also of the intolerable conditions imposed by the Plasterers' union and the efforts being made to bring about a more reasonable attitude on the part of this trade which is not affiliated with the Building Trades' Council.

An important part of Mr. Norman's report was devoted to the survey of the local building situation recently completed by the association. Charts, illustrating in graphic style the relation of building trade wages to living costs and also the record by months of the plans filed in the New York City Bureau of Buildings. These charts show conclusively that in many of the principal trades wages are entirely out of line when compared with other costs and also that despite the claims to the contrary there is actually more building being done today than there was in the pre-war period.

The report of the inspectors of election was called for after the conclusion of Mr. Norman's report and the Chair formally announced the election of Walter S. Faddis, president; A. J. Rosenthal, first vice-president; John J. Grace, second vice-president and J. O'Dell Whitenack, treasurer, and their installation immediately followed.

President Faddis, upon assuming the chair, delivered a brief address in which he spoke of general conditions in the building industry and their application to the local situation.

Ronald Taylor, in a brief but gracious address told of the unstinted effort of the retiring president, Hugh Getty, in behalf of the association, and of the high esteem and love in which he is held by the members and called for a rising vote of thanks which was carried unanimously after which Mr. Getty briefly responded.

Prior to adjournment President Faddis called upon Otto M. Eidlitz for a few words and he responded with a brief outline of conditions in the industry necessary to guard against and closed with some really optimistic predictions regarding the future.

The meeting adjourned at 5 p. m.

Ball of the Fine Arts a Magnificent Success

THE Ball of the Fine Arts, which was given by the Society of Beaux Arts Architects at the Hotel Astor, Thursday evening, February 16, will be written into the history of this organization as the most magnificent, interesting and financially successful function of its kind ever staged in New York City. Calling this event a monumental success but faintly describes an entertainment that was replete with glowing color and wonderful spectacular effects from the time the first dance started until the last of the merry-makers decided it was about time for breakfast.

The proceeds of this ball were for the benefit of the students in architecture, painting and sculpture of the Beaux Arts Institute of Design. As the tickets were $10 each, and nearly three thousand artists and their friends attended, a substantial sum will be credited to this fund.

James Gamble Rogers, president of the Society of Beaux Arts Architects, and Whitney Warren, chairman of the General Committee, headed the committee of arrangements. Kenneth M. Murchison was chairman of the Executive Committee and was assisted by Donn Barber, W. Lawrence Bottomley, George S. Chappell, Howard Greenley, Frederick C. Hirons, Raymond M. Hood, Harry Allen Jacobs and H. Van. Buren Magonigle.

For the key-note of the ball the committee followed the general program of the famous Bal de Quat'z' Arts of Paris and the sub-committees were given every latitude in the matter of decorations, costumes and stunts. The problem of costumes for the revel was disposed of with a general order that "fancy costume was obligatory and must be worn throughout the evening, but may be of any old period, B.C., A.D. or B.V.D.

Many extra diversions leading from the ballroom also helped swell the fund for students in architecture and art. Mayor Hylan's playground, with its slide and merry-go-round was well patronized throughout the evening and Henry B. Culver's "Palace of Illusions" displayed the S.R.O. sign for every performance. Arthur Ware and the Atelier Redon group of artists managed the "Theatre Intime" and were forced to give extra matinees to satisfy the demands of its patrons. "Paris by Gaslight" a sort of Parisian Eden Musee, a product of the imaginative brain of J. H. Freedlander, was a paying attraction and the hotel management was probably jealous of the success of the Taverne du Pantheon and the Cafe des Deux Magots. The "Old Fashioned American Bar" was a haven of refuge all evening but it was old-fashioned only in name and such signs as "Volstead Jin" and "A Bas Ale" were for atmosphere only and really meant nothing as thirst slakers.

Various artistic stunts were pulled off during the evening and as they came when least expected the large crowd of revelers was kept in a constant atmosphere of suspense. Captain Walter E. Traprock, Skipper of the good ship "Kawa" true to his word sent several of his "Filbert Island" brides to dance under the direction of Miss Gilda Gray. Miss Margaret Severn danced one of her favorite classic numbers and James Ben Ali Haggin arranged a series of tableaux in which a number of the most beautiful of the Follies chorus were posed.

The Society of Beaux Arts Architects predicted that this ball would be an especially brilliant occasion and these predictions were borne out in the fact. Much credit is due to those who gave unstintedly of their time and effort to the preliminaries that meant so much toward its ultimate success.

Commercial and Industrial Building Gains in Volume

Weekly Statistics of F. W. Dodge Company Show Definite Improvement in Business Construction Throughout Metropolitan Area

REPORTS of proposed construction in New York State and New Jersey, north of Trenton, indicate that the spring and summer of 1922 will be a season of unusual activity in the building industry. There has been a steady upward trend to the totals of both proposed construction and contracts actually awarded since the first of the year and the figures are not expected to reach their peak until early during the summer.

According to figures tabulated by the F. W. Dodge Company far the seventh week of this year it is shown that architects and engineers had plans in progress for new building and engineering operations in this territory to the value of approximately $16,590,300. This total represents 440 separate projects new to the building industry. During the same period contracts to the number of 258 were reported as awarded and this work represents an outlay of about $9,972,100.

In both proposed construction and contracts let there has been a very decided improvement in the number of commercial operations. Although residential construction is by far the most important group, as the totals for this type of construction will show, there has been a consistent gain in the number and value of commercial and industrial operations since the beginning of the year.

The list of 440 operations for which plans were announced during the week of February 11 to 17 inclusive was made up of the following groups: 66 business and commercial projects, such as stores, offices, lofts, commercial garages, etc., $1,813,500; 11 educational buildings, $882,500; 7 hospitals and institutions, $369,000; 18 factory and industrial buildings, $2,035,000; 3 public buildings, $83,000; 17 public works and public utilities, $2,929,200; 2 religious and memorial structures, $250,000; 308 residential operations, including apartments, flats and tenements and one and two-family dwellings, $7,740,500, and 8 social and recreational projects, $487,600.

Among the 258 projects for which contracts were awarded during the week of February 11 to 17 were included 52 business and commercial buildings of various types, $1,864,000; 3 educational projects, $45,000; 2 hospitals, $69,000; 9 factory and industrial buildings, $259,000; 1 public building, $7,000; 4 public works and public utilities, $317,000; 1 religious edifice, $1,000,000; 183 residential projects, including multi-family dwellings and one and two-family houses, $6,373,500, and 3 social and recreational projects, $37,600.

struction Co. is the general contractor. They have also obtained a contract from the Realty Associates, of Brooklyn, for the excavation incidental to extensive building development in the neighborhood of Fourth and Fifth avenues, 30th to 35th streets, Brooklyn.

F. J. Kloes 50 Years In Business

Coincident with the fiftieth anniversary of his entrance into the manufacture and sale of shades and awnings in New York, F. J. Kloes has removed his business to larger and moderately equipped quarters at 269 Canal street. Mr. Kloes recently purchased the building and remodeled it to meet the requirements of his steadily growing business.

Established in 1872, this business commenced in a modest shop at 98 Chatham street. In 1879 it was removed to 173 Canal street and seven years later it was removed to 240 Canal street. Steadily expanding, the business was again removed, in 1908, to 243 Canal street. A recapitulation of the years shows that Mr. Kloes was at 98 Chatham street from 1872 to 1879, seven years; at 173 Canal street from 1879 to 1886, seven years; at 260 Canal street from 1886 to 1893, seven years; at 240 Canal street from 1893 to 1908, 15 years; at 243 Canal street from 1908 to 1922, 14 years. It is likely that the business will remain in its present new location for a long time to come.

Lead Too Pure for Roofing.

There is such a thing as too pure lead for roofing purposes. The ancient Gothic cathedrals of Europe were topped with this gray metal that blended well with the stone work and the style of architecture.

Lead was the metal that was specified for the roof of the Episcopal Cathedral, of Washington, which is now being built, but after it had been applied for some time it was found that sheet lead on the steep roof slopes had a tendency to flow downward under its own weight and the heat of the sun. The nail-holes enlarged and allowed the metal to slip partially off.

Metallurgists of the Bureau of Standards of the Department of Commerce were called upon and they found that the grade of commercial lead used was 99.9 per cent. pure, far too pure for satisfactory roofing. They recommended the use of what is technically called "hard lead," which contains approximately 6 per cent. antimony.

Lead roofs on European cathedrals have lasted for 300 to 500 years, and the metallurgists are of the opinion that lead as manufactured in those days had impurities sufficient to harden it for roofing use.

DESPITE adverse weather conditions and several other retarding factors the local building situation is encouraging and all affiliated with the industry are optimistic for the future. A large amount of new construction has been released during the past few weeks and according to the manner in which architects and engineers are speeding up work on plans there will be considerable additional work submitted for estimates within the next month or six weeks.

The spring building program for the entire Metropolitan district shows a tremendous amount of new work and while residential building will predominate there will be a more even balance between this type and other kinds of construction than there was during 1921. Recent announcements of plans for new structural projects show a larger percentage of commercial, industrial and social building than prevailed last season and as a consequence contracting interests are more hopeful than they were regarding the outlook.

Although the local building material and supply markets are not particularly active at present, largely because of the inclement weather, there is a steadily increasing amount of inquiry for materials to be used in early spring construction that gives considerable tone to the situation. Prices are steady for the most part and no changes of importance have been reported during the past week. With the exception of common brick supplies are easily available and although the wholesale brick market is practically cleaned out the dealers have sufficient brick on hand to fill all orders until new supplies are available from up-river plants.

Common Brick—The New York wholesale market for Hudson River common brick is practically without activity at present, with little or no demand and not much brick on hand to satisfy it if there was. No building is being held up, however, as the dealers have fair stocks and there is some brick coming in from up-river plants by rail and also some few consignments from New Jersey and Staten Island. Prices are very firm and no one would be surprised if an advance was to be announced at almost any time. At present there are three cargoes of Hudson River brick unsold in the wholesale market, but manufacturers are not pushing their sale at this time.

Face Brick—Dealers in this commodity report an excellent demand and a bright outlook for the spring. The large volume of projected apartment house construction on the schedule for New York City and vicinity will undoubtedly be responsible for heavy face brick orders and as a consequence of this anticipated business face brick manufacturers are making preparations for prompt shipments. Prices are steady and range from $45 to $55 a thousand and for the popular shades and textures.

Builders' Hardware—Business in this line is quite active and all signs point to a continuation of strong demand throughout the coming season. There is a steadily growing volume of active building in

New York City and vicinity and both manufacturers and dealers are confident that business will be unusually active during the next few months. Jobbers and dealers are both arranging their stocks for the anticipated demand. Prices are firm and no changes of importance have been announced.

Structural Steel—Local business in fabricated steel has picked up considerably during the past few weeks. Several orders have been booked for large building projects in New York City and there is quite a lot of new construction, for which the total tonnage requirements will be unusually heavy, are being figured. Architects report the preparation of plans for several important operations that will shortly be released for bids so that there are excellent signs of a fairly active demand for fabricated material throughout the spring and summer months. Prices are fairly steady with quotations on mill shipments of fabricated steel practically unchanged and New York quotations on steel, fabricated and erected in commercial structures ranging from $60 to $65 per ton. According to the records of the Bridge Builders and Structural Society it is shown that during the month of January, 1922, 72,100 tons of fabricated structural steel were contracted for throughout the United States. This is equivalent to forty per cent. of the entire capacity of the bridge and structural shops of the country.

Electrical Supplies—Conditions in the electrical trade in the Metropolitan district are steadily improving. Demand is good and there are indications of a consistent increase throughout the coming spring and summer months. The large amount of active building is a profitable source of business in electrical lines and the program of projected work assures an increasing demand for these materials. Some price changes have recently been announced. Manufacturers have reduced price on flexible armored conductor by about 5 per cent. bringing this price back to the level current just before the recent shortage. Prices have also been reduced on one type of electric range and on some of the smaller household appliances.

Cast Iron Pipe—The market for this commodity shows signs of increasing activity, with demand improving, inquiries more frequent and prices very firm. There is some municipal business current with more in sight for the next few months and private interests are steadily becoming of greater importance as buying factors. As a general rule manufacturers are optimistic and anticipate a season of excellent business ahead. Prices are unchanged with New York quotations $47.50 per net ton for 6 in. and larger; $52.30 for 4 in. and 5 in., and $62.30 for 3 in., with $4 extra per ton for Class A and gas pipe.

Window Glass—The market for both plate and window glass is stronger than it has been for several weeks and the improvement in the situation is generally attributed to the recent reduction announced by manufacturers, which the majority of dealers feel was a substantial cut in prices. Buying is not particularly active at present, however, but there are marked indications that demand will improve shortly as the result of the general improvement in the local building situation.

Nails—During the past week or so the demand for nails has grown spotty, and although reports indicate considerable buying in some sections, others are inactive. The only recent development of interest in the nail situation is the announcement from Pittsburgh to the effect that the American Steel & Wire Company and several other prominent manufacturers had reduced their prices on nails from $4 to $6 per ton. As yet these reductions are not reflected in changed New York quotations, but for some time past the local prices have been negotiable.

Linseed Oil—The local market is quiet and no change in business conditions is expected before spring. Current buying is in relatively small lots and car lot purchasers are apparently out of the market for the time being. Prices are steady.

Labor Reforms Brighten Building Outlook

The outlook in the building industry, both national and local, was greatly improved when international union officials, representing the bricklayers, masons and plasterers, signed at Washington a code of reforms eliminating many of the trade abuses which for years have been prolific sources of contention. This document is destined to become historic in construction annals, as it settles several important questions and leaves the way open to harmony and prosperity for both workmen and employers. In the past building progress has been severely handicapped by disputes based upon these questions and the settlement now obtained will hasten an early return to normal conditions in the industry, along with a maximum of production, which is of paramount importance. That is, the new decree will most certainly prove of great benefit to all concerned if it is accepted in good faith and if a sincere determination to abide by its provisions is shown.

After conferences with Attorney-General Daugherty and United States District Attorney Hayward, the executive heads of the three International unions agreed to institute these reforms and signed a consent to the entry of a Federal Court decree affecting their national organizations and all of their local unions. In this action the unions represented have abandoned the tactics heretofore employed in labor disputes and have apparently decided to co-operate with capital in an effort to end the grave housing shortage without further delay. These trades, by their far-sighted policy in this respect, are deserving of the highest commendation. Their action will exert a salutary influence upon other important building trade organizations which are still operating under a schedule of union rules and regulations detrimental to an early return to normalcy in the construction industry.

The Washington agreement follows in its fundamentals the one made last year with the Lockwood Committee by local unions. It removes the limit of productive capacity of the individual workman and gives to the employer the right to purchase his building materials wherever and from whomever he pleases, whether those materials are union-made or not. The agreement also abolishes favoritism by organized labor toward trade organizations or contractors' associations and it furthermore forbids labor organizations from being used by material manufacturers and dealers, contractors and sub-contractors as instruments for the collection of debts or the enforced payment of disputed claims.

The new agreement brings about an understanding between building labor and employers at a time when conditions are growing more favorable for the resumption of building on a gigantic scale. Locally the construction industry is on the eve of one of the most active building seasons ever known. Prior to the announcement of this agreement building interests had expressed grave doubts as to the attitude of labor regarding certain well-established trade abuses which have hampered production and kept construction costs at extortionately high levels. The Washington agreement, however, removes in part the outstanding abuses and practices in three important trades long recognized as retardants, and the signatories to the consent should have the warm approval of the building fraternity for their action.

The Lockwood Committee, as the prime instigator of this effective effort to bring about a return of industrial peace, deserves a large share of the credit for the results obtained through the recent conferences between the national officers of justice and union building labor. Upon the disclosures of the pernicious trade practices brought out in evidence by Samuel Untermyer, Chief Counsel to the Committee, Col. Hayward based his investigation into union rules, regulations and practices which has now been brought to a successful conclusion.

"Reasonable Rent" Still in Doubt

It had been hoped that the decision of the Appellate Division in the case of Hall vs. Moos would establish principles that would finally resolve some of the complexities and uncertainties of the rent laws and make it possible for landlord and tenant, where the facts are conceded, to figure by a mere mathematical process the "reasonable" rent of an apartment. Unfortunately, the decision falls far short of accomplishing this much-desired result. It does settle one problem and that favorably to the contention of the landlords, viz: that "the rental should be based upon the fair percentage of profits, upon the fair valuation of the premises as though they were unencumbered by mortgages." In other words, the return must be figured on the full value of the property and not upon the owner's equity. The soundness of this cannot be doubted, as any other basis would result in gross inequalities between rentals paid by different tenants for similar accommodation.

The opinion, however, is far from clear as to the method of ascertaining and proving the "fair value" of the property. The court recognized the difficulty of this problem and criticized severely the expert evidence by which plaintiff had attempted to establish the value of the properties involved; but unfortunately supplies no solution. It states: "It is, of course, difficult to formulate an absolute rule for ascertaining the basis upon which the fair rental return to the landlord is to be calculated, at a time when a fair market value is not ascertainable." Having assumed that it is not possible to ascertain a fair market value, the court suggests that proof of an existing market value "before the period of abnormality set in" might be given. When this so-called period commenced, however, or whether it is now at an end, is left to the imagination.

Did values commence to be abnormal when the European War began, or when we entered the war, or when it was half over, or after the Armistice, or a year later? It is only the latter date which in fact marks the period of rapid advance in real estate values. Have we now reached a period of stability and normalcy, or does the court believe that we must return to pre-war values first? If so, its opinion would be in conflict with the expert opinion of most economists.

The court says that the cost of the property when the owner purchased it or constructed the building, its assessed valuation, actual bona fide sales of similar property if any, and such other facts and circumstances as may be ascertained in a given case, should be considered in order to fix a fair value. While the learned judge who wrote the opinion quite evidently holds that the return should not be based on the amount of actual cash invested, he does not state positively that value and not original investment should be the basis of return. Proof of reproduction cost is not directly repudiated, but the criticism of the evidence offered in the instant case shows that the court did not value such proof very highly. Unfortunately, just how to prove value is left in the same state of obscurity and uncertainty as before the opinion was written, and the result will necessarily be further litigation until this question is determined.

The court discusses the allowance of 2 per cent. for depreciation and 1 per cent. for obsolescence, and, while throwing out the latter item on the ground that there was no evidence that the buildings were becoming obsolete, concedes that an allowance should be made for depreciation. The court criticizes as inadequate the proof that 2 per cent. was a proper percentage, adding "we understand that the Federal government, in the enforcement of the Income Tax Law, permits an annual loss on fireproof apartment buildings to the extent of 1 per cent." As a matter of fact, however, the Federal Government has uniformly allowed 2% depreciation on fireproof buildings.

The court excludes proof by expert evidence of the fair rental value of the premises on the ground that to permit such evidence would be "to permit a usurpation of the functions of the court or jury." Such evidence has been permitted in the past in rent cases and other cases where market or reasonable value is to be determined, its weight, of course, being for the consideration of the judge or jury.

Finally, the court expresses its views as to what a fair percentage of return under existing circumstances should be, and fixes 8 per cent. as the fair net return, not, however, indicating clearly whether this is intended to be a maximum or a minimum percentage.

After all, what a business man requires most in his business is certainty; an adverse but definite ruling is often less vexatious than continued indecision. The matter of renting apartments since the passage of the laws of 1920 has been involved in difficulty and surrounded by uncertainty and the reasonable landlord and tenant have tried but failed to find common ground on which to meet. It was hoped that the courts would ultimately clarify the vagueness of the rent laws; but we seem as far today as we were when the laws were passed from arriving at standards by which the reasonableness of rent can actually be tested.

Is the problem insoluble or are the courts unable to cope with it?

Lockwood Committee Gets Extension for Another Year

Albany, March 2.

THE Lockwood Housing Committee has been granted an extension of life to February 1, 1923, the Assembly on Tuesday having adopted the Senate resolution to this effect. The resolution carried an appropriation of $119,000 for the committee, and $40,000 of this sum is intended for the committee's expenses during the current year, and $79,000 for deficit.

Earlier in the session there was much opposition to the continued activities of the Lockwood Committee. It was pointed out that Senator Lockwood and his associates had been delving into the housing shortage over a period of three years, and many of the legislators believed the time had come to give the landlords and tenants and the courts a rest. In fact, it was generally expected when the Legislature met that the Lockwood Committee would go out of business with the filing of its report and the presentation of the various bills which are being prepared to carry out its recommendations. The members of the Legislature, however, experienced a change of view last week, and as a result the resolution to continue the committee's activities for another year passed both branches of the Legislature practically without opposition. The committee, under this resolution, retains all of the powers it has possessed heretofore, but additional powers which were sought by Chairman Lockwood and Chief Counsel Untermyer have not been granted.

Assured by Governor Miller that the present draft of the Gibbs-McWhinney bill licensing real estate brokers and salesmen overcomes the objections which prompted him to veto a similar measure last year, supporters of this legislation are contemplating an intensive drive to pass it before adjournment, which is set for March 17. The scope of the legislation has been confined to New York City and the up-state cities. This limitation is designed to meet the objections which Governor Miller saw last year when he vetoed a real estate brokers' license bill which was State-wide in its application. The Governor pointed out at that time that he did not believe the rural communities would be benefitted by such a law.

In addition to providing for the licensing of real estate brokers and salesmen the bill contains several punitive provisions designed to prevent splitting of commissions and other alleged sharp practices. The State Tax commission is made the administering body for the new law and the license fees are fixed as follows: First-class cities, brokers fee $25, salesmen $5; Second class cities, brokers fee $15, salesmen $3; Third class cities, brokers fee $10, salesmen $2. Where a corporation or co-partnership, the license issued to it shall entitle the president thereof or such other officer as shall be designated by such corporation to act as a real estate broker. Additional licenses shall be issued to the corporation for the benefit of its agents at one half the cost of the original license procured by the corporation.

The Davenport committee was given a new lease of life during the last week, after Speaker Machold had withdrawn his opposition to further appropriations for investigations.

New York's Receipts and Expenditures Each Now Exceed a Billion Dollars

COMPTROLLER CRAIG'S annual report, published last Tuesday, shows that in gross receipts and expenditures New York City, for the first time in its history, passed the billion dollar mark in 1921.

The gross receipts, including all the fund transactions and those between the city treasury and the sinking funds, and vice versa aggregated $1,243,429,411; the gross payments amounted to $1,194,- 705,153. After eliminating all entries reflecting the transactions between funds, the annual cash receipts amounted to $1,050,813,512, and the actual cash payments to $1,002,089,254. The entire over-turn was considerably more than $2,000,000,000.

The transactions for 1921 aggregated $338,500,000 more both in income and outgo, than the gross transactions in 1920, which were greater in receipts and expenditures than the transactions in 1919 by nearly $583,000,000.

REAL ESTATE SECTION

New Law Provides Uniform Tax Rate for All Boroughs

Amendment to Greater New York Charter Transferring Certain County Charges to the City Budget Rushed Through Legislature to Safeguard Tax Levy

BY the enactment of a bill amending the Greater New York charter in relation to county charges the tax rate throughout the five boroughs will be uniform this year. The bill was introduced in the Legislature at the instance of Comptroller Craig, and after it had passed both branches was sent to Mayor Hylan, who signed it after a public hearing, at which protests were made against it by the Real Estate Board, the Citizens' Union and the United Real Estate Owners' Association.

Before signing the bill the Governor held a hearing at which Comptroller Craig and Senator Downing appeared in support of the measure, and Stewart Browne, of the United Real Estate Owners' Association, opposed it. The latter threatened a taxpayers' action to test the legality of the measure if it was approved.

The Comptroller said the geographical and political conditions prevailing in Greater New York were different from those in other counties.

"In New York City," he said, "there is such a community of interests between the several counties comprised in the Greater City that this legislation is not only beneficial but necessary.

"There is indeed a distinction between Greater New York and up-State counties. Down there the Board of Aldermen is paid by the city at large, not by any county. We have no county treasurers, but rather a Chamberlain and a Comptroller. All the court houses in the various counties were built or reconstructed at the expense of the taxpayers in all the counties, that is in the Greater City. Our interests are identical."

The Comptroller admitted that the effect of this bill would be to increase the tax rate in Manhattan and to reduce it materially elsewhere. He said that the bill was drafted to correct what the administration believed were serious defects in the 1922-1923 tax levy. The Comptroller, in an interview on the bill, stated that the tax rate for all boroughs would probably be $2.74 per $100.

The Craig bill was introduced at Albany by Senator Downing following the decision by Justice May, of the Supreme Court, in which he held that the action of the Board of Aldermen in eliminating about $280,000 from the budgets of Richmond and Bronx Counties to bring them within the constitutional limit of not to exceed two per cent of the city's personal and real estate assessments, was illegal. The items eliminated provided for the payment of salaries of certain county officials, largely judicial.

With these items remaining in the county budgets, the whole tax levy for the city, was imperilled and Comptroller Craig decided to appeal to the legislature for relief. The bill, which legalizes the transfer of county charges to the city budget, follows:

[EXPLANATION—Matter in italics is new; matter in brackets [] is old law to be omitted.]

Section 1. Section nine hundred and two of the Greater New York Charter, as re-enacted by chapter four hundred and sixty-six of the laws of nineteen hundred and one, and last amended by chapter four hundred and fifty of the laws of nineteen hundred and fourteen, is hereby amended to read as follows:

§902. In the statement submitted by the comptroller to the board of aldermen, as above provided in this chapter, he shall each year include and state specifically the sum or sums necessary to be raised to pay during the current year the salaries of the county officers and other county charges and expenses in the counties of New York, Kings, Bronx, Queens and Richmond, respectively, and the board of aldermen is hereby authorized and directed to levy upon and collect from taxable property within [each of the said counties respectively] the city of New York as now constituted, the sum or sums so necessary to be raised to pay the salaries of county officers and other county charges and expenses of such [county] counties [;]. [to the end that each of such counties shall ultimately bear and pay all expenses necessary to be incurred within the county for county as distinguished from city purposes.]

§2. Section fifteen hundred and eighty-three of the Greater New York charter is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

§1583. The salaries of all county officers in the counties of New York, Kings, Queens and Richmond shall, unless otherwise provided by law, be fixed by the board of aldermen on the recommendation of the board of estimate and apportionment, and all county charges and expenses and salaries of county officers in said counties and each of them shall be audited and paid by the department of finance out of the fund or appropriation applicable thereto, and the audit of said department in respect to such charge and expenses shall extend to the reasonableness thereof and shall be, in all respects, as full and complete as the audit of city charges and expenses provided for by section one hundred and forty-nine of this act, but nothing in this section contained shall be construed as in any way changing or modifying the provision contained in section nine hundred and two of this act. [To the effect that the sums necessary to defray the salaries of county officers and to pay county charges and expenses in said counties shall be levied and assessed upon the property of said four counties, respectively, so that each shall ultimately bear and pay all its own county charges, nor to affect the county of Queens until after the thirty-first day of December, eighteen hundred and ninety-nine.]

3. This act shall take effect immediately.

At the hearing before Mayor Hylan, representatives of the Citizens' Union protested that the bill should not be accepted for the following reasons: That it violates Article VIII, Section 10 of the State Constitution, which by clear implication requires that the tax for county purposes shall be kept distinct from the tax for City purposes; while it is said to be demanded by an emergency created by this year's budget, the operation of the bill purports to change the existing order permanently and its enactment in its present form would tend to encourage repetitions of the present situation with a view to preventing repeal or amendment next year or thereafter; it is unfair because it would make the City at large, and particularly the Borough of Manhattan, pay for the extravagances of mandatory county legislation and all counties, which need not be and is not submitted to the Mayor for approval and over which the municipal authorities have no control; it is unwise because it will effect the concealment from the public of the cost and waste of county government in this City, thereby increasing the difficulty of reducing the City budget by constitutional and legislative changes which will abolish certain county offices, consolidate others and assimilate still others to the existing municipal government and is unnecessary because the Board of Estimate can eliminate a sufficient amount of non-mandatory Richmond and Bronx County charges and City-wide appropriations to keep within the constitutional tax limit.

The Real Estate Board objected to the bill because it amended out of existing law the "one check we now have on county extravagance, which is the fact that each county pays its own expenses and the difference in borough rates of taxation is due mainly to this." Quick action on the bill by the Legislature, the Mayor and the Governor was made necessary because the Board of Aldermen is obliged to fix the tax long for the year on or before March 3.

While a uniform tax rate for all boroughs does away with a great amount of confusion on the part of taxpayers the feeling of property owners generally in Manhattan and Brooklyn boroughs is that they should not be compelled to pay any share of expenses incurred by action of county officials. When the Comptroller proposed the measure to correct the 1922 tax levy so as to bring it within the constitutional limit of not to exceed two per cent. of the assessments it was understood that the bill was so drawn as to apply to the present emergency only. But the bill as passed does not limit its provisions to this year or any other fixed period, and the Comptroller's explanation of it, made at the hearing before the Governor at Albany, indicates that the city administration considers that these county charges should hereafter be carried in the general appropriations.

The statement of the Comptroller that the tax rate will be $2.74 indicates a reduction from last year's figure.

Mr. Simon Defines Real Estate Operators' Point of View

Points Out Necessity for Thorough Knowledge of Realty Business and Duty of Spreading Correct Information About It in Y. M. C. A. Lecture Course

ROBERT E. SIMON was the speaker at the West Side Branch of the Y. M. C. A., on Fifty-seventh Street, last Tuesday evening, his topic in the lecture course on various phases of the realty business being "The Real Estate Operators' Point of View." Frank E. Perley, President of the RECORD AND GUIDE Company, presided.

Mr. Simon, in opening, said that it was rather a large contract to express the operators' viewpoint. There are as many different points of view as there are operators, he said, and as there are classes of property in which they deal. He enumerated some of the kinds of operators as the speculators, dealers, developers, auctioneers (when they have an interest in the profits beyond the fees) the semi-investors and the building loan operators, who all deal in vacant, improved and semi-improved properties, either in special localities, in a particular borough or throughout the city generally. Then there is the operator's attitude towards the seller, the buyer and the broker.

"This course," continued Mr. Simon, "is the only serious attempt I know of to definitely encourage the study of the subject of real estate. It should be encouraged and developed. The 'Realtors,' the operators and brokers as a class are not nearly sufficiently well informed. The growth and development of a city should be a matter of scientific research and study. There are theories which should be analyzed, criticised and reduced wherever possible to a basis of fact—a course in economics and psychology should be taken by every real estate man. The broker, especially, could vastly improve his methods if he learned scientifically how to approach a prospective buyer and seller. The lack of knowledge of how to study the strength or weakness of an individual and how to size up your man, has been the cause of many a lost deal.

"The trend of business, its major and minor waves, moves on through the centuries with appalling regularity, and many a failure, and even general depressions or panics, could be averted, if a proper amount of knowledge were had by a sufficiently large number of people who are willing to unselfishly use this knowledge for the benefit of the good of all. The operator especially should learn how to employ his money to best advantage. There are times when it is profitable to be active and times when it pays to look on and do little or nothing. Too much idle capital is a source of great danger and has caused the downfall of many operating companies. One must either learn to be able to keep money idle, awaiting the opportune moment for investment, or to employ it temporarily and yet keep it liquid for the same purpose.

"Buying on a basis of inflated rents, or at the peak of high building costs leads to disastrous investments. Lack of courage to take a loss is also a fault. The average merchant, banker, stock operator all take a loss much more readily and willingly than does the average real estate operator.
